The official said that hackers apparently from Hong Kong tried to attack the website of the Indian Council of Medical Research around 6000 times in a span of 24 hours November 30. The attacks come close to the heels of the alleged ransomware attack that had paralysed AIIMS online services here. The contents of the ICMR website are safe. WB upgrades India GDP growth forecast to 6.9%

New Delhi: The World Bank Tuesday revised upwards its GDP growth forecast for India to 6.9 per cent for 2022-23, saying the economy was showing higher resilience to global shocks. In October, it had cut India's GDP growth forecast to 6.5 per cent from 7.5 per cent earlier. Now, it has upgraded the projection to 6.9 per cent for 2022-23 (April 2022 - March 2023). In its India Development Update, the World Bank said the revision was due to higher resilience of the Indian economy to global shocks and better-than-expected second quarter numbers. P11

China spy ship spotted in Indian Ocean region

The docking of the ship at Hambantota port in August had triggered a diplomatic row between India and Sri Lanka

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: Chinese spy ship 'Yuan Wang 5', known to be fitted with various tracking and surveillance devices, has entered the Indian Ocean Region ahead of a plan by India for a likely test firing a long-range ballistic missile in the Bay of Bengal, people familiar with the development said Tuesday. It is learnt that the Indian Navy is keeping an eye on the movement of the Chinese ballistic missile and satellite tracking ship.

The docking of the ship at Hambantota port in August had triggered a diplomatic row between India and Sri Lanka. Open source intelligence expert Damien Symon Monday tweeted that Yuan Wang 5, #China's missile and satellite tracking vessel has entered the #IndianOcean region. There is no official comment on the reports of the presence of the spy ship in the Indian Ocean region.

As per laid down protocol, India recently issued a NOTAM (Notice to Airmen/Notice to Air Missions) about a missile test. It is not clear whether India will go ahead with the plan for the missile test in view of the presence of the Chinese spy ship.

In November this year, the Yuan Wang 6 entered the Indian Ocean region ahead of a missile test slated for 11 November, for which India had issued a NOTAM, marking a significant area of the Bay of Bengal as a no-fly zone

According to experts, the Chinese vessel was last spotted in the Sunda Strait of Indonesia.

The visit of the Chinese ship to the Indian Ocean comes amid increasing concerns over growing forays into the region by Chinese military and research vessels.

India is bolstering defence and security ties in the Indian Ocean with like-minded countries in the backdrop of concerns over China's growing forays into the region, considered the backyard of the Indian Navy.

PARLIAMENT WINTER SESSION STARTS TODAY

BJD demands passage of Women's Reservation Bill

Several other political parties like the TMC, Congress, NCP, TRS and the JD(U) backed the demand

POST NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi, Dec 6: The Biju Janata Dal (BJD) Tuesday reiterated its demand for passage of Women's Reservation Bill, which seeks to grant 33 per cent reservation to women in Lok Sabha and state assemblies, during the Winter Session of the Parliament set to start today. BJD leaders Pinaki Misra and Sasmit Patra raised the demand during an all-party meeting chaired by Defence Minister and Deputy Leader in Lok Sabha Rajnath Singh a day before the commencement of Winter Session and said that the empowerment of women is necessary for overall development of the country.

The BJD leaders were astonished that the Women's Reservation Bill was not listed for this session and requested the government to introduce and pass the legislation in the Winter Session.

Several other political parties, like the TMC, Congress, NCP and the TRS supported the demand including the JD(U) which had once opposed the move. The demand was also raised in the BAC meeting by TMC and Congress. The DMK, SAD and the JD(U) supported them and demanded that an all-party meeting be convened to build consensus on the issue.

The passage of Women's Reservation Bill is a long-standing demand of the ruling party of Odisha. The BJD MPs in both Rajya Sabha and Lok Sabha had raised the issue often in the past during their speeches on various bills.

The Odisha Assembly had passed a resolution in November 2018 demanding 33 percent reservation for women in the Parliament and state assemblies. After that, as many as 22 BJD delegations were sent out to 22 national and regional parties by BJD President Naveen Patnaik asking for support for the passage of the bill. The BJD had also nominated women at 33 per cent in the Lok Sabha constituencies in 2019 Parliamentary elections.

Significantly, the Women's Reservation Bill was passed by the Rajya Sabha in 2010. But it could not be passed by the 15th Lok Sabha. The Constitution amendment bill got lapsed as the term of the 15th Lok Sabha ended. The BJD has been requesting the BJP led Union government to introduce and pass the legislation in the Lok Sabha where the saffron party has brute majority.

Besides, reduction of GST on Kendu leaves and expansion of Railways, National Highways and mobile towers in Odisha are among the BJD's demands. MORE P3

2 women Red rebels killed in Kandhamal

PNN & AGENCIES

Bhubaneswar, Dec 6: Two women cadres of the CPI(Maoist) died in a gunfight with security personnel in Kandhamal district Tuesday, a top police officer said.

Firearms, including an INSAS rifle with 11 rounds of ammunition and one IED, were found lying next to their bodies in Matakupa Reserve Forest, Director General of Police SK Bansal said. Acting on intelligence inputs on the movement of Maoist cadres in the forest, personnel of Odisha's special operation group (SOG) embarked on a search operation in the woods.

A gun battle subsequently ensued between the Maoists and the security personnel inside the forest, leading to the death of two women cadres who were dressed in the banned outfit's uniform. Their bodies have been recovered and the process of identification is underway," the DGP said. Search operation has been intensified with the deployment of additional teams of security personnel in the area, Bansal stated.

The DGP, in a statement, appealed to the Maoists to shun violence and join the mainstream. The state government has a very beneficial surrender and rehabilitation policy, and all Maoists should avail this, he added. Last month, at least four Maoist cadres were killed in two operations in Bolangir and Koraput districts.

The officials also examined the progress made in connection with the decisions taken in the last meeting at Raipur in July, 2022 and at IB Headquarters in August, 2022 over the LWE related issues. "It was stressed upon that all concerned agencies will work with more synergy to combat the LWE menace in a more proactive and effective manner," informed the police sources.

If I speak out, the entire scenario in the state will change: Archana Bhubaneswar, Dec 6: Archana Nag, the prime accused in the blackmail and extortion racket, Tuesday claimed that she has exclusive evidence against some people which will shake the state.

Nag, who was shifted from Jharpada special jail to the Capital Hospital here for a medical check-up before being taken to Enforcement Directorate (ED) office for interrogation, said she will fully cooperate in the probe instituted against her for amassing huge wealth by blackmailing rich and influential persons along with running a sex racket.

"I was waiting for the ED to take me on remand for questioning. I will fully cooperate with the probe," she said responding to media queries. "I need sufficient time to speak at least 30 minutes. If I speak, the entire scenario in the state will change. I have been trapped. I will give exclusive evidence and not spare anyone," she said. Nag was arrested by the local police October 6 and is in judicial custody.

She was also vocal against the commissionerate of police over the manner in which she was detained and later arrested.

"I am not a terrorist. The way I was arrested and my family was harassed by the Commissionerate Police - it is all a conspiracy against me," the 26-year-old woman said.

The ED took Nag on a seven-day remission Monday and will produce her in the district and sessions court here December 13.

The central agency is probing the money laundering aspect of the blackmail racket. It has so far grilled nine people. Her husband Jagabandhu Chand, a co-accused in the case, will be produced before the court December 7.

Earlier in the day, the architect of Nag's palatial residence Ranjit Behera appeared before the agency. The building contractor Pabitra Patra had faced interrogation Monday.

Nag has allegedly amassed assets of ₹30 crore, including a three-storey palatial bungalow at Satya Vihar in Bhubaneswar in just about four years from 2018.

Y chromosome is disappearing but rats have an X factor

The sex of human and other mammal babies is decided by a male-determining gene on the Y chromosome. But the human Y chromosome is degenerating and may disappear in a few million years, leading to our extinction unless we evolve a new sex gene.

Most mammals have an X and Y chromosome similar to ours; an X with lots of genes, and a Y with SRY plus a few others. This system comes with problems because of the unequal dosage of X genes in males and females.

How did such a weird system evolve? The surprising finding is that Australia's platypus has completely different sex chromosomes, more like those of birds.

In platypus, the XY pair is just an ordinary chromosome, with two equal members. This suggests the mammal X and Y were an ordinary pair of chromosomes not that long ago.

In turn, this must mean the Y chromosome has lost 900-55 active genes over the 166 million years that humans and platypus have been evolving separately. That's a loss of about five genes per million years. At this rate, the last 55 genes will be gone in 11 million years.

Our claim of the imminent demise of the human Y created a furore, and to this day there are claims and counterclaims about the expected lifetime of our Y chro-

HOW 'Y' FIXES HUMAN SEX

In humans, as in other mammals, females have two X chromosomes and males have a single X and a puny little chromosome called Y. The X contains about 900 genes that do all sorts of jobs unrelated to sex. But the Y contains a few genes (about 55) and a lot of non-coding DNA - simple repetitive DNA that doesn't seem to do anything. But the Y chromosome packs a punch because it contains an all-important gene that kick-starts male development in the embryo. At about 12 weeks after conception, this master gene switches on others that regulate the development of a testis. The embryonic testis makes male hormones (testosterone and its derivatives), which ensures the baby develops as a boy. This master sex gene was identified as SRY (sex region on the Y) in 1990. It works by triggering a genetic pathway starting with a gene called SOX9 which is key for male determination in all vertebrates, although it does not lie on sex chromosomes.

of eastern Europe and the spiny rats of Japan. A new paper in Proceedings of the National Academy of Science shows how the spiny rat has evolved a new male-determining gene.

The imminent - evolutionarily speaking - disappearance of the human Y chromosome has elicited speculation about our future. Some lizards and snakes are female-only species and can make eggs out of their own genes via what's known as parthenogenesis. But this can't happen in humans or other mammals because we have at least 30 crucial "imprinted" genes that work only if they come from the father via sperm. Continued on P4

Malaika has a fear of mouthing dialogues

Mumbai: Diva Malaika Arora, who is currently seen in her reality show 'Moving In With Malaika' expresses her fear of mouthing dialogues.

In a conversation with her manager Ekta, where she asks if Malaika was dodging a movie script because of her fear of acting, Malaika says, "I am not dodging it. I am just not sure. Honestly, it's not the fear of acting, but more about the discomfort I feel in mouthing dialogues. Standing up in front of people and actually being comfortable about mouthing with dialogues is something I have always been a little apprehensive about. I get a little nervous about it. So that's probably why I shy away from it."

She adds, "Over the years there have been loads of scripts that I have seen and read but somewhere I've always stayed away. Well, that's another fear of mine. Even in school, I used to hate when I had to mug up something and say it in public."
"I thought it was the most daunting task. I felt there was so much pressure, that it would make me feel very uneasy. I couldn't eat, sleep or do anything if I had to learn something. So this fear of mine has just always been there."

Border row, 'misuse' of agencies to dominate Parl Winter Session

In total, members of opposition parties have detailed around 16 issues to be raised during the Winter Session

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: Border stand-off with China, alleged misuse of government agencies, price rise and unemployment will dominate the proceedings of the Winter Session of Parliament starting Wednesday.

The results of the Assembly elections in Gujarat and Himachal Pradesh are also likely to play out during the start of the session. The session begins December 7, a day before the results of Assembly polls are out. The Opposition will seek to corner the government on several issues and a confrontation is likely on the demand for discussions on Chinese "incursions" at the border and alleged misuse of agencies.

Rahul Gandhi and several senior Congress leaders who are walking in the Bharat Jodo Yatra are unlikely to attend the session. Ahead of the session, leaders from more than 30 parties attended a meeting convened by the Union government to discuss the legislative agenda and the issues likely to be taken up during the Winter Session of Parliament.

The meeting, chaired by Union minister and deputy leader of the BJP in Lok Sabha Rajnath Singh, was to seek cooperation from all parties for the smooth functioning of the Winter Session.

Leader of House in Rajya Sabha

Piyush Goyal and Parliamentary Affairs Minister Pralhad Joshi were also present.

During the meeting, Joshi spelt out the government's legislative agenda for the session and sought opposition's cooperation for the passage of Bills. He concluded the meeting, saying he has taken note of all the issues raised by political parties and the discussions will be held as per the norms and procedures of Parliament.

Issues for discussion will be finalised in the business advisory committee meetings of both houses of Parliament, he said.

During the meeting, Congress and Trinamool Congress raised the issue of alleged misuse of investigating agencies, which was backed by the Aam Aadmi Party, Nationalist Congress Party and several other parties.

"There are so many issues before the country such as unemployment and price rise, and the government owes an answer to people," Congress leader in Lok Sabha Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury told reporters after the meeting.

He alleged the government did not "properly" inform the Opposition about the stand-off at the Sino-India border. "In the House, we will demand a discussion on it and also on the killings of Kashmiri Pandits," he added.

Congress leader Naseer Hussain, who attended the meeting in the absence of chief whip of the party in Rajya Sabha Jairam Ramesh, demanded discussions on the appointment of Election Commissioner in just one day and also on the Economically Weaker Section (EWS) quota.

TMC leader Sudip Bandyopadhyay said he and his party colleague Rajya Sabha MP Derek O'Brien sought discussions on price rise, unemployment, alleged misuse of agencies and alleged economic blockade of states.

While the government plans to bring 16 new Bills during the session, sources said Opposition members questioned the government's intent of getting around 25 bills passed, which include old bills as well, during the short span of 17 sittings.

The government has not allowed a discussion on the border situation with China and has denied charges of "misuse" of agencies.

Bhubaneswar, Dec 6: Chief Secretary Suresh Chandra Mahapatra Tuesday said that there is a need for a holistic action plan with concerted efforts among various departments to reduce malnutrition and stunting among children.

He said this while addressing a 'National Level Conclave on Childhood Stunting in India' held here Tuesday. The state government is all set to have an aggressive approach to reduce malnutrition and stunting among children which would be achieved in next few years, said the Chief Secretary.

The conclave was jointly organised by International and Food Policy Research Institute, the state government, the World Bank and Unicef. Odisha is the first state to introduce a separate nutrition budget. The state government is now spending on the social sector targeting health, education, nutrition and sanitation, he said.

Around 96.5 lakh families are covered under food security programme, while 75,000 Anganwadi centres (AWCs) are actively involved in supplementary nutrition and take-home ration programme being executed through women self-help groups (SHGs), he pointed out.

"Similarly, mid-day meal (MDM) is being served in 55,000 schools with active participation of women SHGs, Aahar centres in urban local bodies, fortified rice and millets being introduced in PDS and supplementary nutrition," said Mahapatra. Further, the household level data collection on malnutrition and stunting is being carried out through a robust and reliable method with regular check-up at AWC level, he added. With all these steps, Odisha is all set for targeted reduction in stunting and malnutrition.

Stating that the problems of stunting and malnutrition are multi-dimensional, the Chief Secretary said there is a need for a holistic action plan with concerted efforts among various departments to achieve the target.

He assured that the government would provide all financial and administrative support for concrete suggestions that would emerge from the deliberations in this national seminar.

Most Asian countries lag in biodiversity protection: Study

Most countries in Asia have failed to achieve a global minimum target of protecting at least 17 per cent of land by 2020, according to a study based on data from 40 countries.

Under current trends, the outlook for achieving the UN Global Biodiversity Framework's 2030 target to protect at least 30 per cent of land is bleak, with Asia set to miss this by an even greater margin, the researchers said.

To counter the global biodiversity crisis, at the 2010 UN Convention on Biological Diversity, almost 200 countries pledged to protect at least 17 per cent of their terrestrial environments by 2020 (known as Aichi Target).

To investigate whether they achieved this, researchers from the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge in the UK, with collaborators in Asia, analysed data from official reports submitted to the World Database on Protected Areas.

The study, published in the journal Communications Biology, found that only 40 per cent of Asian countries achieved the target of a minimum of 17 per cent coverage for protected areas by 2020. In particular, very few countries in West and Central Asia achieved the target. Overall, Asia was the most underperforming continent, with just 13.2 per cent of land being designated as a terrestrial protected area in 2020 - compared with a global average of 15.2 per cent protection, the researchers said.

Only 40 per cent (16) of Asian countries, mainly in East and South Asia, had met the 17 per cent protection target by 2020. However, 14 out of 19 West and Central Asian countries had not met the target, they said.

AICHI TARGET

In order to counter the global biodiversity crisis, almost 200 countries pledged during the 2010 UN Convention on Biological Diversity to protect at least 17 per cent of their terrestrial environments by 2020 (known as Aichi Target)

To investigate whether they achieved this, researchers from the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge in the UK, with collaborators in Asia, analysed data from official reports submitted to the World Database on Protected Areas

The study, published in the journal Communications Biology, found that only 40% of Asian countries achieved the target of a minimum of 17% coverage for protected areas by 2020

Asian countries also tended to have a slower year-on-year increase in the amount of land protected for conservation, at just 0.4 per cent per year on average, according to the study.

For 241 highly at-risk mammal species across Asia, on average 84 per cent of their ranges fell outside protected areas, the researchers said.

They calculated that almost all Asian countries will fail to meet the 2030 target unless their rate of establishing protected areas increases by up to six times faster. Under the current trajectory, Asia as a whole would only achieve 18 coverage by 2030 - far below the target of 30 per cent protection. The outlook was worst for West and South Asia, projected to achieve 11 per cent and 10 per cent coverage respectively by 2030.

"Asia is a challenging continent for setting targets for protected areas, since areas of high biodiversity typically conflict with dense human populations and rapid economic growth," said study lead author Mohammed Farhadinia from the University of Oxford. "While this research demonstrates the need for more investment in protected areas in Asia, it also shows the importance of establishing realistic, achievable goals that take into account socio-geographical restrictions," Farhadinia said.

The findings carry important significance ahead of the 15th meeting of the Conference of the Parties (COP 15), when the governing body of the Convention of Biological Diversity will convene in Montreal, Canada from December 7-19.

At this meeting, government representatives will review the achievement of the Aichi Biodiversity Targets and discuss strategies for meeting the post-2020 Global Biodiversity Framework targets.

To reproduce, we need sperm and we need men, meaning that the end of the Y chromosome could herald the extinction of the human race. The new finding supports an alternative possibility - that humans can evolve a new sex determining gene. Phew! However, evolution of a new sex determining gene comes with risks. What if more than one new system evolves in different parts of the world? A "war" of the sex genes could lead to the separation of new species, which is exactly what has happened with mole voles and spiny rats. So, if someone visited Earth in 11 million years, they might find no humans - or several different human species, kept apart by their different sex determination systems. Common mistakes people make while eating fruit

Fruit is great for weight loss because it is low calorie, high fibre, and water content. Fruit is nature's quick snack and is a great source of vitamins and other elements that help maintain a healthy diet.

Fruit has vitamins and minerals that the body needs in abundance. According to Archana Batra, a dietician and a certified diabetes educator, "Many people consume fruit wrongly, which might cause more harm than benefit if not corrected." She also shares a list of mistakes one makes when eating fruit.

Combining fruit with anything else- Fruit breaks down faster than any other food. When combined with other foods, it can cause the formation of toxins in the body known as ama. This is due to the fact that food pairing can slow down digestion. Fruit must stay in the stomach for as long as the heaviest food takes to digest, making nutrient absorption difficult. It begins to ferment in the digestive juices, which is usually toxic and may raise the possibility of illness and other health conditions. It is therefore preferable to consume it separately.

Fruit at nighttime- It is best to avoid anything 2-3 hours before going to bed because it interferes with the digestive system. This holds true for fruit as well. Fruit consumption right before bed has a high chance of disrupting sleep because it releases a lot of sugar, which spikes energy levels when the body should be resting. At night, our ability to absorb and assimilate nutrients is significantly reduced. In addition, eating fruits late at night may cause acidity symptoms. Fruit should be consumed as an evening snack and no later than that.

DRINKING WATER AFTER EATING FRUIT CAN CAUSE THE PH LEVEL OF THE DIGESTIVE SYSTEM TO BECOME UNBALANCED, ESPECIALLY CONSUMING FRUIT WITH HIGH WATER CONTENT LIKE WATERMELON, MUSKMELON, CUCUMBER, ORANGE, AND STRAWBERRY

Drink water immediately- Not

FRUIT CONSUMPTION RIGHT BEFORE BED HAS A HIGH CHANCE OF DISRUPTING SLEEP BECAUSE IT RELEASES A LOT OF SUGAR, WHICH SPIKES ENERGY LEVELS WHEN THE BODY SHOULD BE RESTING

only children but also adults, are frequently observed drinking water immediately after eating fruit. Drinking water after eating fruit can cause the pH level of the digestive system to become unbalanced, especially consuming fruit with high water content like watermelon, muskmelon, cucumber, orange, and strawberry.

This is because fruit with a lot of water in it can change the pH balance by reducing the acidity of your stomach. Experts warn that doing so can result in serious illnesses such as diarrhoea or cholera.

You are not eating the skin- When it comes to vitamins and antioxidants, the peel is frequently the best part. Apple peels, for example, are high in fibre, vitamin C, and A. Eating the skin may even be the key to lowering your risk of obesity and cancer, according to research.

Plans afoot to prevent waterlogging in Aska

2 PROPOSALS SENT TO WATER RESOURCES DEPARTMENT

POST NEWS NETWORK

Chhatrapur, Dec 6: The district administration is mulling on how to get rid of perennial waterlogging problems in Aska town. Since 1990, the town has been witnessing waterlogging during monsoons and the cyclones. District Collector Dibyajyoti Parida has recently sent two proposals to the additional secretary and the chief engineer of Water Resources department, requesting them to approve both.

Aska town is flanked by Rushikulya river and Badanadi. In 1990, a massive flood devastated the town. The entire town virtually went under water for a substantial period of time. During cyclones 'Phailin' in 2013 and 'Titli' in 2018, the town was badly affected due to waterlogging. Normal life in the town was hit for days together.

Keeping in mind this problem, a technical team was formed in 2019 following a directive from the then district collector to look into the problems that caused waterlogging. The team studied the situation and submitted report on the issue in August 2019. The team advised the superintendent engineer of the Bhanjanagar irrigation division, the executive officer of Aska NAC, tehsildar and the executive engineer of the Berhampur drainage division to take steps at their own level to stop waterlogging.

The Berhampur drainage division then put forth two proposals. It proposed setting up of pump houses, sumps and panel rooms near Baoua creek, Badanadi, Tipisira creek and Sukhanai Haj. It said that the pumps could be used to drain out water during floods and cyclones. A similar proposal has been sent by the Bhubaneswar drainage circle to the additional chief engineer of the Cuttack division, November 9.

The other proposal is renovation of the Tipisira creek. The Berhampur drainage division has drawn up a blueprint of the project. Once the renovation is completed water from Tipisira creek will drain out into the Badanadi, it was stated.

5T school modernised sans blackboards

POST NEWS NETWORK

Dharmasala, Dec 6: The Odisha government has been spending huge amounts under the 5T initiative for upgrading the infrastructure in schools. However, now it seems that modernisation of schools under the scheme has fallen flat

A video has emerged which shows a teacher at Hingula Government High School in Antia village under this block in Jajpur district writing questions on the classroom door. It should be stated here that the school was upgraded under the 5T initiative in November, 2021. People are now questioning the absence of a blackboard in the school even after it has been modernised.

Sources said many of the classes in the school do not have blackboards. They informed that schools have been asked to conduct the half-yearly examinations of students from Classes I to VIII under Samagra Siksha Abhiyan. Accordingly, the school authorities had published a notice to conduct the examinations of students from Class-I to Class-VIII from Tuesday.

Students of Hingula HS had come prepared accordingly to appear for the examination Tuesday. However, they were provided with answer sheets and not question papers that did not reach on time. Instead teachers wrote questions on the doors of classrooms for students to answer. This sparked resentment among the students and their guardians.

When the news spread, parents and members of the school management committee reached the spot. The guardians blamed the headmistress as the question papers did not arrive on time. The headmistress said that the question papers could not be brought to the school due to unavoidable circumstances.

Later, a meeting was held comprising the guardians, teachers and school committee members. A decision was taken to write the questions on the blackboard. It was then discovered that some of the classrooms did not have blackboards for which the questions were written on the backside of doors.

FOCUS GUJARAT POLLS

SCRAMBLE FOR THE HELM

The BJP has been witnessing a gradual decline in its seats' tally since 2002 till 2017 while the Congress has been gaining gradually with by indulging in election blitzkrieg and insertion of advertisements in state newspapers and conducting various rallies and roadshows in the state. The AAP had managed to secure only 28, 418 votes across the 30 seats it contested in 2017; nonetheless, it showed an impressive performance in Gujarat's local body polls where it secured a vote share of 13.28 per cent that showed that it can be a viable alternative to Congress in primary Opposition space, and in the long run, an alternative to BJP. Having given an inclination of 'soft Hindutva', AAP supremo Kejriwal also tried to change the political discourse of electioneering by triggering debate on Gujarat Model versus Delhi Model. AAP's primary offerings have been development-related emphasising better schools, better infrastructure and a grip over rising prices, allowance for women and jobless youth. Some observers feel that there are some takers for AAP's offerings in urban areas, especially in Surat where it performed well in 2021 local body polls.

Way forward

Pre-election surveys, opinion polls and even exit polls after the voting for the second phase, give landslide victory to the BJP and predict less than 50 seats for the Congress and single digit seats for AAP but in a triangular contest where both Congress and AAP are forces to reckon with in many constituencies, these projections by exit polls raise certain doubts in the minds of dispassionate observers and political analysts. The BJP has been witnessing a gradual decline in its seats' tally since 2002 till 2017 while the Congress has been gaining gradually. Presently, in triangular contests, the entry of AAP entails every likelihood of denting the BJP in urban areas and to some extent, denting the Congress in some rural areas. Admittedly, some critics point out that given all the odds facing the BJP may render the party to secure lesser number of seats relative to 2017; nevertheless, the BJP entails the probability of winning a lost battle given the power and resources at its disposal. Let's wait and watch for December 8.

The writer is Executive Editor, India Ahead news channel.

With the second phase of polling for the Gujarat Assembly over December 5, all eyes are now on December 8 when the final results will be declared. Of the two-phase Assembly elections, the voting for the first phase was held December 1 for 89 seats and polling for second phase encompassing 93 seats was held December 5. The average voting for the first phase was around 65% and voting percentage for second phase was about 60%, and average voting on the whole was less relative to 2017. Of the total 182 seats of the Assembly, 98 are rural while 84 are urban. Past electoral performance of the BJP shows that it had bigger sway in urban areas, and in 2017, the BJP had won 63 urban seats but could manage only 36 rural seats.

PAST ELECTORAL PERFORMANCE OF THE BJP SHOWS THAT IT HAD BIGGER SWAY IN URBAN AREAS

BJP's Prospects
Winning Assembly election, albeit for the seventh term, is a prestige issue for the BJP because it is the home turf of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Minister Amit Shah and losing grip over power in Gujarat entails potential pan-India implications for the BJP in electoral and prestige terms. In order to keep its hold on power in Gujarat, the BJP at the Centre as well as in the state has pulled all stops. Some observers have drawn attention to some major investment announcements made in the state in the run-up to the elections - a multi-billion dollar semiconductor plant by Vedanta-Foxconn and an aircraft manufacturing project by the Tata group and Airbus. During its first tenure in office at the Centre (2014-2019), the BJP had been engaged in aggressively marketing the development model of Gujarat, showcasing Gujarat's 1,600-km long coastline, well-developed ports, connected highways, industry-friendly policies, and export-led growth across sectors.

The BJP has been ruling Gujarat for 27 years now, including 13 years of Modi as CM, and cooperative dairies making up for approximately 90 constituencies, have played a crucial role during the Assembly polls until the recent past. Nevertheless, with the Patidar agitation done and dusted and the dairy producers witnessing a spike in their incomes in recent times, the BJP is expecting a change in their electoral fortunes this time. However, a consistent fall in the number of seats won by the BJP in each election - from a record 127 seats in 2002 to 99 seats in 2017 - the BJP's claim of winning over 140 seats this time seems to be a tall claim.

Nonetheless, BJP is confronted with multiple dilemmas as well that entail the potential of adversely impacting its electoral fortunes this time. Admittedly, BJP boasts of the so-called double-engine government in BJP-ruled states, and in Gujarat there prevails double anti-incumbency wave against BJP's 27-year-old rule and over eight year rule at the Centre. While pointing to the prevalence of inner dissensions within the Gujarat unit of BJP in the wake of change of three CMs in less than five years, some analysts also draw attention to the prevailing frustration among many state party leaders over the distribution of tickets to candidates and a chunk of them have contested the polls as independent candidates. Some experts have opined that the Gujarat units of RSS and VHP are seemingly unhappy with the BJP leadership for multiple reasons, especially over the allocation of party tickets, and they have reportedly not extended their support for some candidates.

Congress' chances

The Congress in Gujarat has been out of power for over three decades; nevertheless, it has gradually been increasing its electoral tally after every Assembly poll and in 2017 it had managed to garner 77 seats and stopped the BJP at 99. During the election campaign preceding the Assembly election, Congress maintained a low profile in urban areas and accorded priority to rural areas where it reportedly got overwhelming response. Congress campaign was devoid of high-profile and costly election meetings. Even national Congress leadership refrained from joining the campaign with the exception of former Congress president Rahul Gandhi addressing only two rallies for a day.

As one expert has pointed out, Congress tacitly avoided frequent visits of Rahul to Gujarat to conduct campaign for the party to disallow the electoral discourse to be diverted from Modi versus Kejriwal to Modi versus Rahul. On the other hand, the party focused on basic issues affecting common man. According to experts, Congress' promise of restoring old pension scheme has been received well by government employees.

AAP's gambit

AAP thus far had been not a big player in the Gujarat Assembly election in 2017 but in 2022 it emerged as a force to be reckoned

THE MOTHER

A seemingly off the cuff remark by Iran's Attorney General Mohammad Jafar Montazeri that the Iranian morality police was being "disbanded" is now being interpreted not as a sign of the regime succumbing to pressure exerted by protesters, but as kite flying. Protesters and international communities are not prepared to buy the argument that the orthodox regime has had a change of heart after protests erupted against the killing of a 22-year-old Kurdish woman, Mahsa Amini, by the morality police. Global attention has been drawn to the plight of Iranian women being forced to follow a strict dress code including wearing of hijab. Iran's soccer team brought focus to the issue recently by not singing their national anthem before the opening match of FIFA World Cup at Qatar in solidarity with their protesting countrymen.

Iran's state media was quick to rebut the Attorney General's comment about disbanning the morality police, while the protesters denounced it as a public relations stunt by the regime to break the movement against the authorities' denial of freedom to the people, especially women and the continuing economic crisis.

The Attorney General said during a religious conference late last week that the Iranian morality police had been "disbanded". International media and advocates of freedom for Iranian women hailed the announcement as a victory for Iranians protesting against the government for months. However, the very next day, state media sought to downplay Montazeri's comments, saying that the morality police do not fall under the authority of the judiciary. As such, his comments had no bearing on ground reality. Iran's state television - Al-Alam - decried initial attempts by foreign media to interpret Montazeri's comments as a climbdown on the part of the Islamic Republic from its stance on hijab and religious morality as a result of the protests. "No official of the Islamic Republic of Iran has said that the Guidance Patrol has been shut," Al-Alam said.

It is true the decision to disband the morality police technically lies with the Supreme Council of Cultural Revolution, set up in the early 1980s by Iran's first Supreme Leader Ruhollah Khomeini. It is now headed by the orthodox President Ebrahim Raisi.

Montazeri's comments fuelled speculation about the regime relenting in the face of the protests since the pro-reform media outlet Entekhab reported him saying that Iran's parliament and judiciary were reviewing the country's mandatory hijab law put in place in 1983.

The morality police earned notoriety for allegedly terrorizing citizens and implementing Iran's hijab law with an iron hand. Significantly, however, since protesters launched agitation the morality police reportedly disappeared from the streets of Tehran. This further emboldened Iranian women to disobey the dress codes imposed on them.

But, the morality police's absence from the streets is hardly going to assuage the feelings of the agitators who are clamouring for fundamental changes in the regime for getting more liberty and a stronger economy. What is ominous for the regime is that the protesters are now chanting on the streets the slogan - 'the Islamic Republic should go.'

If the Attorney General's remark had the tacit approval of the regime, it would mean the latter simply wants to dissociate itself from the infamy of the instrument of torture that the morality police has become. At the same time, it would continue to maintain its tight control over mandatory hijab. The law official in that case, it appears, is being used as a sounding board to test how far the protesters can go.

The only official statement made at this stage is by Iranian Foreign Minister Hossein Amir-Abdollahian who during a visit to Serbia neither confirmed nor denied that the Attorney General's remark was correct. He said, "In Iran, everything is moving forward well in the framework of democracy and freedom." This is of course a diplomatic verbiage.

Women in Iran are now not much bothered about whether there is a hijab or not, as a protester put it. They have been going without it for the past 70 days and they demand nothing short of "a revolution and regime change." They may sound too ambitious despite international backing. As US Secretary of State Antony Blinken said the abolition of Iran's morality police could be "a positive thing" and praised the "extraordinary courage of Iranian young people, especially women, who have been leading these protests." For sure, a grim struggle is ahead.

WORDSWORTH

Deodand

In 1336, a drunken sailor climbed the mast of his ship at anchor in the Thames by means of a rope, presumably part of the rigging. When he tried to descend the same way he fell and died. A coroner's jury decided that the rope was the cause of death and that it should be forfeited to the Crown. The rope was the inanimate casualty of an already ancient principle called deodand. A deodand was an item of property that, however coincidentally, had caused the death of a human being. Horses, cattle, carts, haystacks, beer vats, boats, stones and trees have at various times been judged to be deodands. Unlettered local juries often made the law up on the spot, for example deciding in the case of a person fatally scalded by boiling water from a pot that the pot was the deodand, not the water. Strictly speaking, a deodand is something that has been forfeited to God, from Latin deo dandum. In practice in medieval England it meant being given up to the Crown to be put to some pious use such as alms. As a stone or haystack was an inconvenient item to deal with in this way, in practice the coroner's jury decided the value of the item and its owner was required to pay that instead. (In the case of the rope, the jury appraised it as worth 10 shillings, a considerable sum at the time, roughly the price of a good horse.) The law of deodand survived into the nineteenth century. What ended it was the industrial revolution. Expensive pieces of machinery involved in accidental deaths were judged as deodands with consequent substantial fines. The rise of the railways meant that coroner's juries in the 1830s and 1840s awarded large deodands against companies whose trains were involved in fatal accidents. As a result, the government of the day passed a law in 1846 abolishing the concept.

Deprecate

It started with an e-mail message from subscriber Pete Jones: "Have you come across deprecated with the sense 'no longer valid or current'?" He pointed me to a website that defined it as "no longer part of the current specification". It took a bit of sleuthing to track this down. The glossary item is referring to HTML, the coding system behind the World Wide Web. The formal specification uses deprecated in sentences like "The following elements are deprecated", and carefully defines what it means by that: "A deprecated element or attribute is one that has been outdated by newer constructs". The writer is saying that some elements in earlier versions are not actually obsolete but are now disapproved of - deprecated - and should be avoided. Though this jargon sense is not in any mainstream dictionary, it is actually quite common in specifications of computer languages.

Teens may survive without smartphones

Melvin Durai

UNFORTUNATELY, MOST TEENS HAVE NOT SIGNED A CELLPHONE USAGE AGREEMENT

Have you ever tried to take a bone from a dog? Trust me, it's a very dangerous thing to do, even if the dog is a beloved member of your family. In fact, when it comes to taking an object away in a typical household, there is only one thing more dangerous: taking a cellphone away from a teenager.

You're likely to endure a combination of S-words: scratching, spitting and swearing.

In most households, the parents are paying for both the cellphones and the cellphone plan. But before they handed the cellphones to the teens (or even pre-teens), they did not get them to sign a cellphone usage agreement. A good cellphone usage agreement goes something like this:

"I, the undersigned teen, being of unsound body and mind, do hereby declare my undying love and affection to my parents for granting me the use of a cellphone. In order to enjoy the privilege of using the cellphone, I agree to the following:

1. The cellphone belongs to my parents, who retain the right to take it away from me without any notice, even if I'm in the middle of uploading a video to TikTok called "Funny Musical Sounds from My Lower Body Parts."

2. I will not use the cellphone when I have homework to do or an exam to study for, except in dire circumstances, such as when my parents have posted something on social media and need a 'like.'

3. I will not bring the cellphone to the dining table, unless I intend to take photos of my mom's amazing cooking to post on social media.

4. If my parents ask me to share all the messages I've sent and received, I will not laugh in their faces. I will turn to the side and laugh.

5. If my parents take me on vacation, I will not spend the entire trip staring at my cellphone. There is life outside my cellphone and I will attempt to discover it."

Unfortunately, most teens have not signed a cellphone usage agreement. This makes it extremely difficult for a parent to take possession of a cellphone. A desperate parent will occasionally turn to the internet for help, searching for "Cellphone Removal Service." If they're lucky, they will find a local business that they can call.

Parent: "Please help me. My son is addicted to his cellphone. I tried to take it away, but he's holding it too tightly!"

Business Manager: "Don't worry. I will send Rocky right over. Rocky has never met a cellphone he couldn't remove."

Parent: "I don't want him to hurt my son, just take his phone away."

Manager: "Don't worry. Rocky is very gentle. He will first try to tickle your son. Tickle him until he drops the phone. If that doesn't work, he will hug him until he drops the phone."

Parent: "And if that doesn't work?"

Manager: "Then Rocky will threaten him."

Parent: "Threaten him with violence?"

Manager: "No, threaten to take an embarrassing video and post it on social media. That always seems to work."

Considering such parental struggles, it's remarkable what one American boarding school has managed to do. After students returned from remote learning during the pandemic, administrators at Buxton boarding school in Williamstown, Massachusetts, noticed that the students had forgotten how to interact with each other. "They had spent so much time glued to their smartphones," Peter Beck, the head of Buxton, told the New York Post.

So what did the school do? It banned smartphones, allowing the students to use only simple phones without social media apps or internet browsers.

And guess what? The students somehow survived. "They're spending more time doing academic work, creatively expressing themselves through art, getting to know one another and getting to know themselves," Beck said.

Parents everywhere, take note: If your children won't give you their cellphones, you don't have to call any service.

Just threaten to send them to Buxton.

Much needed intervention

Sir, The recent pronouncement by the Supreme Court regarding forced religious conversions in the guise of charity is a much needed intervention. Now, that SC has taken suo motu cognizance of the serious matter and reiterated clearly that the purpose of charity should not be conversion, the state should form strict laws and put checks and balances in place to checkmate this rampant practice. The right to freedom of religion under Article 25 of our Constitution doesn't include the fundamental right to convert other people to a particular religion and any such deceitful forced conversion tantamounts to violation of fundamental right. Helping someone and doing charity in some way or other is good but doing that in the guise of a malafide intention to exploit the poor reeks of treacherous, heinous and horrendous mentality and need to be subdued with iron fist by the government. Mostly the backward classes of society, the poor and downtrodden are victims as they are vulnerable and trapped due to their ignorance. Apart from strict laws these people should be counselled by the civil society and the local administration about its repercussions in the long run. I am sure after SC intervention we will be more proactive in dealing with the menace and work at prohibiting it. Debi Prasanna Mohapatra, BHUBANESWAR

Pandits under threat

Sir, This refers to "Fear among KPs palpable after fresh terror threat," Orissa POST, Dec 6. It is worrisome that Pakistan-headquartered Lashkar-e-Taiba has released a 'hit list' of 56 Kashmiri Pandit employees working in the Valley under the Prime Minister's Rehabilitation Package. The brazenness with which the list has been posted on the outfit's blog suggests absolutely no fear of the law, and the leak of the employees' details points to the involvement of insiders who are collaborating with the terrorists. The Valley has been rocked by targeted killings over the past year or so. Hindu staffers have been demanding their relocation, while promising that they would return to Kashmir when the situation improved. Terror groups are thriving on local support and it's the network of Valley-based spies that keeps the likes of Lashkar-e-Taiba well informed about the activities of Pandits. Such informers not only pose a threat to peace but can also imperil the livelihood of Kashmiris in the tourism sector, which is witnessing a boom this year. Treating the Pandits as their brethren and helping security agencies flush out terrorists and spies should be the way forward for the local community. N Sadhasiva Reddy, BANGALORE

Border dispute between Maha, K'taka escalates

THE PROTESTS BY KANNADA ACTIVISTS TOOK A VIOLENT TURN AFTER TRUCKS BEARING MAHARASHTRA REGISTRATION NUMBER PLATES WERE ATTACKED BY AN ANGRY MOB

AGENCIES

Bangalore/Mumbai, Dec 6: The border dispute between Karnataka and Maharashtra over claims for Belagavi in the southern state intensified Tuesday, with vehicles from either sides being targeted, leaders from both states weighing in and pro-Kannada and Marathi activists being detained by police amid a tense atmosphere in the border district.

Nationalist Congress Party chief Sharad Pawar termed the situation in the border areas of the two states as "worrisome", and said the time has come to take a stand after seeing what is happening there.

"Maharashtra has taken a stand of observing patience and it is still ready to do that. But even that has a limit. In 24 hours, if the attacks on vehicles are not stopped then this patience will take a different path and the responsibility will be completely on the Karnataka Chief Minister and the Karnataka government," Pawar told reporters in Mumbai.

Karnataka CM Basavaraj Bommai asserted his government's commitment to protect the borders and ensure Kannadigas' welfare and denied the issue had anything to do with the 2023 Assembly polls in the state, where the ruling BJP is fancying a successive term.

In Bangalore, Bommai denied the issue had anything to do with the 2023 Assembly polls in the state. "There is no relationship with upcoming assembly elections and Karnataka's stand on the border issue. For many years now, it is Maharashtra that has been raking up the issue," he said. Maharashtra has raised the dispute and there is reaction from Karnataka, he added.

Speaking to reporters, he maintained there is harmony between people of both states and it should not be disturbed. "The case is before the Supreme Court, our stand is both legal and constitutional, so we are confident that we will win the legal battle. So there is no question of us wanting to create an issue out of it for the sake of elections. We are committed to protect the state's borders and our people, and also the interests of Kannadigas living in Maharashtra, Telangana and Kerala," he added.

A Maharashtra ministerial delegation that was supposed to visit Belagavi and hold discussions with a pro-Marathi group postponed its schedule while Kannada organisations staged a protest in the district in a show of strength.

In Pune, activists of the Uddhav Thackeray-led Shiv Sena faction sprayed black and orange paints on at least three Karnataka state transport buses in Swargate area. They also wrote "Jai Maharashtra" on these buses.

In a show of strength, pro-Kannada organisations staged demonstration in Belagavi, against the proposed visit of the ministerial delegation from the neighbouring state. The Karnataka Rakshana Vedithe, which led the agitation also announced statewide protests from Wednesday.

The leaders of the Kannada organisations protested against Maharashtra Ministers Chandrakant Patil and Shambhuraj Desai's proposed visit which was postponed later.

The activists held placards, banners, posters, Kannada flag and raised slogans against Maharashtra for raking up the issue. The activists reportedly blackened the number plate of few trucks with Maharashtra registration. In view of the protests, police made elaborate security arrangements in the city to avoid any untoward incidents. To prevent the situation before turning into violent, police took the protestors under preventive custody.

Meanwhile, Maharashtra Deputy chief minister Devendra Fadnis took up with Bommai, reported stone-pelting incidents on vehicles entering Karnataka from his state.

A video surfaced on social media showing some people throwing stones at vehicles entering Karnataka from Maharashtra near a toll booth at Hirebaugwadi in

as it has a sizable Marathi-speaking population

It also laid claim to 814 Marathi-speaking villages which are currently part of Karnataka

Karnataka maintains the demarcation done on linguistic lines as per the States Reorganisation

Act and the 1967 Mahajan Commission Report as final

And, as an assertion that Belagavi is an integral part of the state, Karnataka has built the Suvarna Vidhana Soudha, modelled on the Vidhana Soudha, the seat of legislature in Bangalore, and a legislature session is held there annually

Belagavi, prompting Fadnis to dial Bommai and extract an assurance on protection of vehicles.

Sources close to Fadnis said he "made a phone call to Karnataka Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai and expressed his disappointment over the Hirebaugwadi incident."

Belagavi district administration Monday issued orders barring entry of the two Maharashtra Ministers and leaders to the city. Deputy Commissioner and district magistrate Nitesh Patil had issued prohibitory orders under section 144 of CrPC, barring their entry, besides that of a MP, who are members of the Maharashtra High Power Committee on the Border Dispute.

Vivek Agnihotri apologises to Delhi High Court

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: Filmmaker Vivek Agnihotri tendered a written apology in the Delhi High Court Tuesday in a criminal contempt case for his remarks against a judge, who he had accused of bias in granting relief to activist Gautam Navlakha, but the court directed him to appear before it on and "show remorse in person".

A bench of Justices Siddharth Mridul and Talwant Singh asked if Agnihotri, whose film The Kashmir Files is hogging the lime-light again over Israeli filmmaker Nadav Lapid's remarks against it, has any difficulty in appearing before the court in person. "We are asking him (Agnihotri) to remain present because he is the alleged contemnor. Does he have any difficulty to appear before this court? He has to be present and show remorse in person."

"Does he have any difficulty if he has to express remorse in person? The remorse cannot always be expressed by way of an affidavit," the bench told Agnihotri's lawyer. His lawyer submitted the filmmaker has tendered an unconditional apology in an affidavit in which he has also stated that he deleted his tweets against the judge himself. However, the court was informed by the amicus curiae that the submission was wrong and it was Twitter which deleted his tweets.

Protest against Vizhinjam sea port called off for now

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

The calling off of the agitation was announced by Vicar General Eugene Pereira, who has been seen at the forefront of the protests

Thiruvananthapuram, Dec 6: The over 130-day-long protest by fisherfolk against the under-construction Vizhinjam sea port was Tuesday called off for now after discussions between the leaders of the agitation and Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan.

"For now we are calling it off. Protests do not always come to an end only after achieving their objectives. Each protest has several phases. One such phase of the protest has ended in a consensus," Pereira told reporters after meeting the Chief Minister.

He, however, said the protest was not being called off because they were satisfied with the steps taken or promises made by the state government. "We have not arrived at this decision because we are satisfied," he said and added that if required, they will take up the agitation again. A source in the Chief Minister's Office told PTI that several rounds of discussions were held during the day before the protest was called off.

Initially, the protestors' representatives held discussions with a cabinet sub-committee after which the latter held a meeting with the CM, the source said.

Thereafter, the CM and the sub-committee met with representatives of the protestors, the source also said. Meanwhile, a source in Adani Group, which is carrying out the port construction, told PTI that the company will commence work only after receiving an official communication from the state government.

He also said that while the government, at every discussion, said that a representative of the protestors would be included in the committee studying the coastal erosion in the area, no steps have been taken till now in that regard. He further said that while the protest was being called off for now, the protestors were still sticking to their claims regarding the impact of the project on the lives and livelihood of the fisherfolk of the area. Therefore, they were going to carry out an independent study of their own regarding the project's impact on the area and the extent or severity of the same and would inform the general public about their findings.

On the issue of the state government providing them the money for rented accommodation, for those displaced from their homes due to coastal erosion or natural disasters, Pereira said the administration has increased the amount to ₹8,000 from the earlier ₹5,500.

However, they decided they only wanted ₹5,500 as the remaining amount of ₹2,500 was going to come from the CSR fund of Adani Group, he said.

HANUMAN CHALISA ROW

Hindu Mahasabha leader held, 40 across Mathura detained

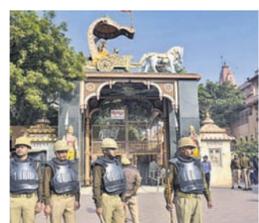

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Mathura, Dec 6: An Akhil Bharat Hindu Mahasabha leader was arrested Tuesday while allegedly going to recite Hanuman Chalisa at the Shahi Masjid Idgah in the Shri Krishna Janmabhoomi complex while 40 activists of Hindutva organisations were taken into custody as a preventive measure, officials said. They said seven-eight other leaders of the organisation were also detained in their houses under different police stations of the city.

"Not a single member of the organisation could reach near Idgah as per their programme. As a preventive measure about 40 persons were taken into custody. They would be released on personal bond after completing the formality," Senior Superintendent of Police Shallesh Pandey said.

Additional Superintendent of Police (City) Martandey Singh said police arrested the Mahasabha's Agra region in-charge Saurabh Sharma when he was making an attempt to go towards the Idgah mosque in the complex.

He said the Mahasabha's president Rajshri Chaudhary and treasurer Dinesh Sharma were not among those confined at their homes, and police had no information about the duo. Chaudhary claimed that she was in Mathura Tuesday and a picture of her standing at gate number 1 of the Janmabhoomi complex was shared by the Mahasabha.

However, Singh disputed the claim saying, "This is an old picture which is being used for making false claims". National Vice-President of the Mahasabha, Anil Tripathi, told PTI over phone that he has been kept under house arrest at his residence in Delhi.

The officer said in view of the situation in Mathura, prohibitory orders were imposed by the district administration and those who tried to disturb peace were being interrogated after being taken into custody. Seven of these people belong to the Hindu Mahasabha, who are currently kept at the city police station, he said. Singh said security had been beefed up in view of the right wing organisation's declaration of reciting Hanuman Chalisa at the Idgah Tuesday.

Close race: Independents get feelers from parties in Himachal

Exit polls indicated that the Congress and the ruling BJP might struggle to make it to the half-way mark when the results are declared December 8

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Shimla, Dec 6: With exit polls pointing at the possibility of a hung assembly in Himachal Pradesh, some independent candidates claim they have started getting feelers from the two main parties for their support.

A party needs the support of at least 35 candidates to form the government in Himachal Pradesh. But exit polls Monday indicated that the Congress and the ruling BJP might struggle to make it to this half-way mark when the results are declared December 8.

The surveys projected a range of 24-41 seats for the BJP and 20-40 seats for the Congress.

If the contest turns out to be this close, the role of independents could be crucial — and some of them claimed Monday that the two parties have been in touch with them.

When contacted BJP rebels K L Thakur and Manohar Dhiman, who fought the election as independents after being denied the party ticket, said they have been “approached” by both the parties.

But they would keep their cards close to the chest till the results are officially declared, they told PTI. Another independent, Ram Singh, said he is not a rebel but the people's candidate and would decide whom to support after December 8.

Altogether, there are 91 independents in the fray including about two dozen rebels who may cut into the votes that would have normally gone to the official party candidates, and spoil their prospects. The political parties, however, are focused on independents who have a bigger chance of winning. Both the BJP and the Congress are chalking out strategies to rope them in, in case they themselves fall short of majority.

The independents with better chances of winning include K L Thakur (Nalagarh), Manohar Dhiman (Indora), Ram Singh (Kullu), Raju (Arki), Hoshiyar Singh (Dehra), Indu Verma (Theog) and Sanjay Prasher (Jaswan-Pragpur).

For the record, both sides say they are set to score a clear victory. “We will get a clear mandate and form the government. Independents are welcome if they are willing to associate with the government, and remaining in touch with independent candidates is a normal process,” Chief Minister Jai

Ram Thakur told PTI.

Leader of the Opposition Mukesh Agnihotri also claimed that Congress was all set to win majority and said party leaders are in contact with the independents.

In some elections in the past, Independents have played a significant role in the state, which has a record of alternating between the two main parties every assembly election.

In 1982, the Congress won 31 out of 68 seats in 1982 and formed the government with the help of independents. The BJP and Janata Party won 29 and two seats, respectively, and independents bagged six seats in that election.

BJP leader Shanta Kumar went to Raj Bhavan to stake his claim to form the government after two Janata Party members assured their support. But both of them failed to turn up there. Instead, four independents extended support to the Congress.

The last holdouts of Kuno

Ever since the release of cheetahs brought from Namibia into the park September 17, the state forest department has been taking steps to relocate Bagcha, which falls under the park area, and Jahangarh, which lies in the buffer zone

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Sheopur, Dec 6: “We were born in the forest, and we would like to die here,” say the Sahariya tribal people of two villages in Sheopur district that are in the process of resettlement due to the much-talked-about cheetah project in Madhya Pradesh's Kuno National Park.

Ever since the release of cheetahs brought from Namibia into the park September 17, the state forest department has been taking steps to relocate both Bagcha, which falls under the park area, and Jahangarh, which lies in the buffer zone. Outside the buffer zone, a further 557 sq km has been newly demarcated as an eco-sensitive zone where people may continue to live but with restrictions on industries and land use.

As many as 216 families in Bagcha will be shifted to Rampura, located around 50 km away, where compensatory agricultural lands measuring not more than five acres each and places to build houses have been identified. However, things are bleak for the 70 families in Jahangarh as there is no provision to provide land for land while resettling people in the buffer zone. They will instead get a com-penation of ₹15 lakh, specifically for land purchase.

The forest department will facilitate their relocation by identifying suitable plots in other villages and will directly pay from the compensation amount to land sellers. In case a balance amount is available, it will be given in installments to the beneficiary family to enhance their livelihood options.

Confirming that the officials have visited Jahangarh multiple times to convince them, Shyamabai Janmed, a Sahariya woman, says the forest department first told them that they could shift to Raghunathpur. “But when we checked out the place, the residents there said they were not willing to part with their agricultural lands. So where will we go?”

Later, the authorities directed the villagers to Chanipura, but the fact remains that Chanipura gram sabha is yet to give its consent, which is mandatory to buy land there.

Incidentally, this is not the first time that tribal people have resisted the move to drive them out of their forest. October 12, 2018, the area under Kuno National Park was increased from 344.69 sq km to 748.76 sq km, with many villages added to the national park's operative area.

In the 1990s, when preparations were on to introduce lions to the area, 24 villages of Palpur range falling under the park area were shifted out. At that time, Bagcha and Jahangarh, which fall under Oochapura range and are home to the Sahariya, Bhil and Mongia tribes, were left out due to their stiff resistance.

This time around, the Bhils and Mongias are willing to move out provided they get compensation. However, the Sahariyas who constitute 65% of the total population of both villages have not changed their position. They say they should be resettled in another forest, if at all they need to, as they cannot live outside of it.

The tribal population also conserves the region's biodiversity as they rely on local crops, wild fruits, seeds, tubers and roots to meet their nutrition needs. “The tribals are equally important for the forest as much as the forest is necessary for the tribals,” says Harimohan of Mahatma Gandhi Seva Ashram, Sheopur.

“I can predict the weather by looking at the cloud cover and wind speed. However, our future seems difficult to predict. I do not know when the officials will come to throw us out,” laments Gulubai Ganpat of Jahangarh.

The tribal community sells shatavari, gudmar leaves, nagarmotha, honey, salai, khair, gum, kakoda (spiny gourd) and amla in Oochapura and Vijapur. Most families in Jahangarh have two to five bighas of land on which they grow paddy, sesame, millet and maize.

However, not all tribal communities are averse to shifting out. Mogias and Bhils have agreed to take the compensation to leave the forest. Incidentally, both communities are not on good terms with the Sahariyas, who consider them as outsiders.

“What can we do if the government has decided to remove us from our land? We feel it is better to take the money that we are offered and settle down elsewhere,” the members of the Mongia and Bhil communities say in unison.

Restrictions are on the rise after the arrival of cheetahs in Kuno National Park. Camera traps have been set up and the forest department is continuously making announcements to prevent villagers from entering the buffer zone. Residents have also started receiving notices for relocation.

BJP may use Hindutva card ahead of 2023 polls in MP

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Bhopal, Dec 6: ‘Hindutva’ has undoubtedly been a key tool of polarisation in the politics of the BJP, but it had very little impact in Madhya Pradesh, be it pre-demolition or post-demolition Babri Masjid. However, the relentless attempts at polarisation indicate that the moderate system of governance would be a thing of the past now, and the Hindutva card would come to the fore in the assembly elections in 2023.

When the Babri Masjid was demolished in Uttar Pradesh, the Bharatiya Janata Party was in power in Madhya Pradesh. After a short interval of President's rule, elections were held in 1993 and the Sundarlal Patwa-led BJP government was voted out of power. The Digvijaya Singh-led Congress ruled the state for the next 10 years, following the rules of moderate governance.

More importantly, present Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan, who is a member of the right-wing Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), did not allow communalism to flourish in Madhya Pradesh and ruled the state with a moderate governance system. His governance gave him the image of the ‘moderate face of RSS’, and his liberal governance system not only ensured the longest rule of the BJP in the state but also strengthened the party.

Senior journalist N. K. Singh, who has been a close observer of Madhya Pradesh's politics for around four decades, said the state had been the stronghold of the right wing for the last several decades, but the BJP became stronger under the leadership of Chief Minister Chouhan.

“See, besides the RSS, many other right wing groups were flourishing in MP for the last several years, and their efforts for long years strengthened the BJP in the state.

Till 2014, Dec 6 wasn't used as a polarising tool in MP

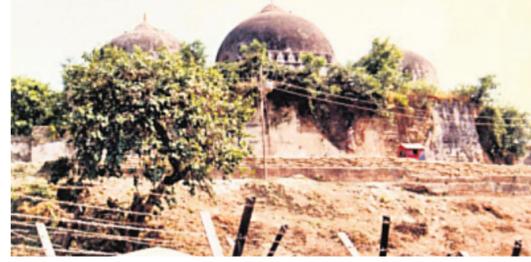

Since 2014, the situation has changed as power of state leadership has been minimised and the entire decision is being made from the Centre

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Bhopal, Dec 6: Notwithstanding the rapid growth of communalism in neighbouring Uttar Pradesh after the Ram Janmabhoomi-Babri Masjid dispute and despite being a stronghold of Right-Wing Bajrang Dal and Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), Madhya Pradesh managed to keep communalism out of frame till 2014, thanks to the strong political leadership irrespective of the party in power.

According to people monitoring the state's politics for the past four decades, the Ram Janmabhoomi-Babri Masjid issue did not have a major impact on Madhya Pradesh's politics. It only saw the rise of the fire-brand of Hindutva - Uma Bharti, who assumed the chief ministership for one year in 2003. Although the issue was used as a tool of polarisation, especially by the saffron party, and benefited individuals like Bharti and Bhopal MP Pragna Singh Thakur, it was not a mass polarisation.

On why despite being a stronghold of Right-Wing and RSS, the issue could not make much of an impact here like in UP and Gujarat, political observers cited presence of strong leadership in both the BJP and the Congress. The state leadership in both the BJP and the Congress had always refrained from promoting politics of hatred in Madhya Pradesh, till a few years back.

Babri Masjid was demolished in December 1992 and after one year, Congress stormed back into power in Madhya Pradesh. “During 10 years as Chief Minister, Digvijaya Singh (1993-2003) did not allow politics of communalism in Madhya Pradesh, and those who tried to make it a political tool, were sidelined. Even BJP leaders like Kailash Joshi and Sundarlal Patwa (both were CM from Janata Party) had liberal politics. Digvijaya Singh followed that liberalism,” said a senior journalist Law Kumar Mishra. In 2003, almost a decade after Babri Masjid was demolished in Ayodhya (Uttar Pradesh), this issue gave rise to Uma Bharti as fire-brand of Hindutva, considered as the major impact of Ram Janmabhoomi-Babri Masjid issue. Bharti rose to national prominence when she became one of the major faces of the Ram Janmabhoomi moment along with L. K. Advani and others.

Bharti was made the main face for CM in assembly elections in 2003 and her reputation as a Hindutva fire-brand resulted in sweeping victory. “Bharti's tenure as CM ended within one year and Babulal Gaur replaced her. During his tenure, Gaur also followed the politics of liberalism. CM Shivraj Singh Chouhan also did not believe in ‘hate’ politics. During his long tenure as CM, he never promoted those using communalism for their political benefit.

40% of inmates lodged in HP jails arrested in NDPS cases

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Shimla, Dec 6: Drug abuse has become a major challenge in the hill state of Himachal Pradesh and over 40 per cent of the total inmates lodged in 14 prisons in the state have been booked in connection with drugs under NDPS Act.

The prisons in Himachal are overcrowded as 2,909 inmates are lodged against the capacity of 2,437 of which 68 per cent are under trial and 32 per cent are convicted. Out of the total 2,909 inmates 1,189 (40.8 per cent) were arrested in drug-related cases, officials said.

A total of 7,942 Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) cases were pending in the courts as on November 18, out of which 688 were pending for less than three months, 664 for three to six months, 935 for six months to one year, 953 for 12 months to 18 months, 1,110 for 18 months to two years and 3,601 were pending for more than two years. Over 40 per cent of the total inmates lodged in 14 prisons in the state have been booked in connection with drugs under NDPS Act, the officials said. As speedy trials would also help in decongesting the jails in the state, the Himachal Pradesh Police have implemented a ‘Robust Trial Management’ mechanism under which deposition by police officials and independent witnesses in the courts is being reviewed every week to ensure speedy trials in the NDPS cases. Himachal police are the first in the country to start robust trial management and the police officers have been directed to deposit on time to reduce the pendency of the NDPS cases. As many as 8,734 police personnel have been deposed from March 29, 2021, till November 18, 2022, Himachal DGP Sanjay Kundu told the PTI.

Our initiative has started yielding results and 346 cases have been decided in the first ten months of 2022 till October 31 as compared to 202 in 2020 and 126 persons have been convicted in NDPS cases in the current year in comparison to 64 in 2020, he said.

The weekly and cumulative record of the number of Police Officers and witnesses deposed in the courts under the NDPS Act, pending deposition, processes served to witnesses and the number of cases in which charge sheet has been submitted by the police for trial is being maintained, to expedite trials.

There are 2,307 drug trafficking operators (drug peddlers) in the state out of which 80 per cent (1,836) are from Himachal, 18 per cent

(422) are from other states and two per cent (49) are foreigners, according to the data procured from the police department.

About 60 per cent of the drug peddlers in Himachal have taken to Chitta (adulterated heroin) smuggling for pecuniary gains, adding a new dimension to the drug menace in the state and Chitta consumption has surpassed all other drugs. On average, over 1,500 NDPS cases are registered in the state every year with over 2,000 arrests.

As many as 1,732 persons were arrested in 1,195 NDPS cases in the first ten months of 2022 till October end and the police have seized 274 kgs charas, 31 kgs opium, 306 kgs poppy husk, 164 kgs Ganja, smack and cocaine, 7.9 kgs of heroin (chitta) and 30,152 capsules and tablets and destroyed 70,602 poppy plants and 47,737 cannabis plants, officials added.

SC: Govt needs to ensure foodgrains reach everyone

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: It is our culture to ensure nobody goes to sleep empty stomach, the Supreme Court said Tuesday and asked the central government to see to it that foodgrains under the National Food Security Act (NFSA) reaches the last man.

A bench of Justices M R Shah and Hima Kohli directed the Centre to submit a fresh chart with the number of migrant and unorganised sector workers registered on eShram portal.

"It is the duty of the central government to ensure foodgrains under NFSA are reaching the last man. We are not saying that Centre is not doing anything, the Union of India has ensured foodgrains to people during Covid. At the same time, we have to see it continues. It is our culture (to ensure) that nobody goes to sleep empty stomach," the bench said. It was hearing on its own a public interest matter related to the plight of migrant workers during the Covid pandemic and the resultant lockdowns.

Advocate Prashant Bhushan, appearing for three social activists Anjali Bharadwaj, Harsh Mander and Jagdeep Chhokar, said the country's population has increased after the 2011 census and so has the number of beneficiaries covered under the NFSA.

Bhushan said the government is claiming the per capita income of people has increased in recent years, but added India has slipped

In July, the top court had said migrant workers play a very vital role in building the nation and their rights cannot be ignored at all, and asked the Centre to devise a mechanism so they receive foodgrains even without possessing ration cards

It had observed that citizens are dying due to hunger despite development and that modalities should be set out to ensure the maximum number of migrant workers are given rations rapidly in global hunger index. Additional Solicitor General Aishwarya Bhati, appearing for the Centre, submitted there are 81.35 crore beneficiaries under NFSA, a very large number even in the Indian context.

The ASG said the 2011 census has not stopped the government from adding more people to the list of beneficiaries which is growing. Bhushan interjected to say 14 states have filed affidavit stating their quota of foodgrains has been exhausted.

The matter is posted for resumed hearing December 8. The top court had earlier asked the Centre to ensure the benefits of the NFSA are not limited by the 2011 census figures and more needy people should be covered under the Act, terming the "Right to Food" a fundamental right under Article 21 of the Constitution.

The per capita income in India has increased in real terms by 33.4 per cent since the enactment of the National Food Security Act (NFSA) in 2013, the Centre had earlier told the apex court, insisting a large number of households have transitioned to the higher income group.

The government notified the National Food Security Act, 2013 September 10, 2013 with the objective of providing for food and nutritional security by ensuring access to adequate quantity of quality food at affordable prices to people to live a life with dignity.

Following a heated argument, he took out a surgical knife and slit Tapaswi's throat even as a frightened friend ran out of the house to alert the neighbours.

Ganeswar dragged a bleeding Tapaswi into an adjoining room and locked it up before the locals came and broke open the doors. He cut his arm on seeing the locals before he was overpowered.

They handed him over to the police. Meanwhile, the bleeding girl was taken to a private hospital in Guntur, where she succumbed.

TACKLING CLIMATE CHANGE

Majority of rich nations working off plans to meet 1.5° Celsius warming limit: Report

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: The majority of developed countries are still a long way off their plans to limit global warming to the UN-agreed 1.5 degrees Celsius despite raising ambition in the past 18 months, according to an updated version of the peer-reviewed Paris Equity Check.

The Paris-Equity-Check.Org assesses Nationally Determined Contributions (NDC) or national plans of countries to help achieve the global goal of limiting temperature rise to 1.5 degrees Celsius as compared to the pre-industrial average. Countries hope that limiting global warming to 1.5 degrees Celsius will avoid the worst impacts of climate change.

The COP27 Sharm El-Sheikh Implementation Plan released in November underscored the need to meet the 1.5-degree Celsius limit and deliver loss and damage finance, a key prerequisite to accelerate collaboration for more ambitious emission cuts globally.

Ahmedabad, Dec 6: The Gujarat Police have detained Trinamool Congress's national spokesperson Saket Gokhale over a tweet endorsing an alleged fake news about Prime Minister Narendra Modi's visit to Morbi after a bridge collapse incident there, an official said Tuesday.

Indonesia passes criminal code banning sex outside marriage

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jakarta, Dec 6: Indonesia's Parliament unanimously passed a long-awaited revision of the country's penal code on Tuesday that criminalises sex outside of marriage for citizens as well as foreigners, prohibits promotion of contraception and bans defamation of the president and state institutions.

The amended code also expands an existing blasphemy law and maintains a five-year prison term for deviations from the central tenets of Indonesia's six recognised religions: Islam, Protestantism, Catholicism, Hinduism, Buddhism and Confucianism.

Citizens can face a 10-year prison term for associating with organisations that follow Marxist-Leninist ideology and a four-year sentence for spreading communism. The code maintains the previous criminalisation of abortion but adds exceptions for women with life-threatening medical conditions and for rape, provided that the fetus is less than 12 weeks old, in line with what is already provided in a 2004 Medical Practice Law.

People hold up signs during a protest as Indonesia is set to pass a new criminal code that will ban sex outside marriage outside the Indonesian Parliament buildings in Jakarta, Indonesia

Rights groups criticised some of the revisions as overly broad or vague and warned that adding them to the code could penalise normal activities and threaten freedom of expression and privacy rights. However, some advocates hailed the passage as a victory for the country's LGBTQ community.

During fierce deliberation, lawmakers eventually agreed to remove an article proposed by Islamic groups that would have made gay sex illegal. The revised code also preserves the death penalty within the criminal justice system despite calls from the National Commission on Human Rights and other groups to abolish capital punishment, as dozens of other countries have done.

But under the new code, the death penalty has a probationary period. If within a period of 10 years the convict behaves well, then the death penalty will be changed to life imprisonment or 20 years' imprisonment. Under Indonesian regulations, legislation passed by Parliament becomes law after being signed by the president. But even without the president's signature, it automatically takes effect after 30 days unless the president issues a regulation to cancel it.

Beijing relaxes Covid test norms

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Beijing, Dec 6: For the first time in about two years, China's capital city Beijing relaxed its norms for coronavirus test requirements Tuesday after unprecedented public protests against President Xi Jinping's stringent zero-Covid policy rocked the country.

As per the new announcement, negative nucleic acid test results are no longer required to enter shopping malls, supermarkets, commercial buildings and residential compounds.

However, Beijing residents will still require a negative Covid-19 test taken within 48 hours to enter restaurants, schools, bars, internet cafes, indoor gaming stadiums, nursing homes, welfare facilities, hospitals and medical institutions.

The announcement was made ahead of the memorial meeting held here by the ruling Communist Party of China (CPC) for former President of the country Jiang Zemin who passed away on November 30.

Beijing continues to report a high number of Covid-19 cases. On Monday, the city reported 2,260 Covid infections.

The Chinese mainland on Monday reported 4,988 locally transmitted confirmed Covid-19 cases and 22,859 local asymptomatic infections, China's National Health Commission said on Tuesday. Many Chinese cities, including Beijing and Shanghai, witnessed public protests against the government's zero-Covid policy leading to periodic lockdowns of the cities and the apartment complexes, confining people indoors for days on end.

DRONE STRIKES HIT RUSSIA AGAIN

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kyiv, Dec 6: In a new display of defiance from Kyiv, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy traveled to an eastern city near the front line Tuesday, while Russia reported that strategic sites inside the country were hit by drone attacks for a second day.

A fire broke out at an airport in Russia's southern Kursk region that borders Ukraine after a drone hit the facility, the region's governor said Tuesday.

In a second incident, an industrial plant 80 kilometers (50 miles) from the Ukrainian border was also targeted by drones, Russian independent media reported, apparently missing a fuel depot at the site.

A fire broke out at an airport in Russia's southern Kursk region that borders Ukraine after a drone hit the facility, the region's governor said Tuesday

Federal authorities did not immediately blame Ukraine. But Tuesday's reported strikes were carried out a day after Moscow blamed Kyiv for unprecedented, similar attacks on two air bases deep inside Russia.

The attacks on the Engels base in the Saratov region on the Volga

River and the Dyagilevo base in the Ryazan region in western Russia were some of the most brazen inside Russia during the war.

In the aftermath, Russian troops carried out another wave of missile strikes on Ukrainian territory struck homes and buildings and killed civilians.

Marking Ukraine's armed forces day, Zelenskyy traveled to the eastern Donetsk region Tuesday and vowed to push Russian forces out of all of Ukraine's territory. "Everyone sees your strength and your skill. ... I'm grateful to your parents. They raised real heroes," Zelenskyy said in a video address to Ukrainian forces from the city of the Sloviansk, a key Ukrainian stronghold in the east.

Ukrainian officials have not formally confirmed carrying out the drone attacks, maintaining their apparent policy of deliberate ambiguity as they have done in the past when it comes to high-profile attacks on Russian targets.

But presidential adviser Mikhail Podolyak taunted Moscow in comments on Twitter.

Shooter of Lady Gaga's dog walker gets 21 yrs in prison

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles, Dec 6: The man who shot and wounded Lady Gaga's dog walker and stole her French bulldogs last year took a plea deal and was sentenced to 21 years in prison, officials said.

The Lady Gaga connection was a coincidence, authorities have said. The motive was the value of the French bulldogs, a breed that can run into thousands of dollars, and detectives do not believe the thieves knew the dogs belonged to the musician.

James Howard Jackson, one of three men and two accomplices who participated in the violent robbery and its aftermath, pleaded no contest to one count of attempted murder, according to the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office. It was not immediately clear which attorney represented Howard on Monday.

Jackson and two others drove around Hollywood, the city of West

Hollywood and the San Fernando Valley on Feb. 24, 2021 "looking for French bulldogs," prosecutors said previously. They found Lady Gaga's dog walker, Ryan Fischer, with the pop star's three pets.

Jackson shot Fischer during the robbery near the famed Sunset Boulevard, during which two of the dogs were taken. A nearby doorbell camera recorded the dog walker screaming "Oh, my God! I've been shot!" and "Help me!" and "I'm bleeding out from my chest!"

Fischer later called the violence a "very close call with death" in social media posts. The dogs, named Koji and Gustav, were returned several days later by Jennifer McBride, who was also charged in the crime.

The pop star had offered a USD 500,000 reward — "no questions asked" — to be reunited with the dogs at the time. Jackson also admitted the allegation of inflicting great bodily injury and to a prior strike, the DA's office said Monday. The prosecutor's office did not immediately say what the prior strike was.

NK fires artillery again over South's drills

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Seoul, Dec 6: North Korea Tuesday fired a barrage of artillery rounds into waters near rival South Korea for the second consecutive day in a tit-for-tat for ongoing U.S.-South Korea live-fire drills in an inland border region.

South Korea's Joint Chiefs of Staff said it detected North Korea firing around 90 artillery rounds from the eastern coastal town of Kosong around 10 am and another 10 rounds from the nearby town of Kumkang around 6 pm.

It said the shells landed in the northern side of a maritime buffer zone the Koreans established in 2018 to reduce border tensions. The South said it communicated verbal warnings to North Korea and urged it to abide by the military agreement.

The South Korean assessments were slightly different from details announced by North Korea's military, which said it fired 82 shells from multiple rocket launchers.

Workplace violence, harassment widespread: Global survey

Psychological violence and harassment was the most common form, reported by both men and women, with 179 per cent of workers experiencing it at some point during their employment, the report said

ASSOCIATED PRESS

United Nations, Dec 6: The first attempt to survey the extent of violence and harassment at work around the globe has found that workplace abuse is widespread, and particularly pronounced among young people, migrants, and wage earners, especially women.

More than 22 per cent of the nearly 75,000 workers in 121 countries surveyed last year reported having experienced at least one type of violence or harassment, according to the report released

Monday by the UN International Labor Organisation, the Lloyd's Register Foundation and Gallup.

"Violence and harassment in the world of work is a pervasive and harmful phenomenon, with profound and costly effects ranging from severe physical and mental health consequences to lost earnings and destroyed career paths to economic losses for workplaces and societies," the three organisations said in the 56-page report.

According to the findings, one-third of the people who experienced violence or harassment at work said they had experienced more than one form -- and 6.3 per cent said they had faced all three forms: physical, psychological, and sexual violence and harassment during their working life.

Psychological violence and harassment was the most common form, reported by both men and women, with 17.9 per cent of workers experiencing it at some point during their employment, the report said.

Some 8.5 per cent of those surveyed said they experienced physical violence and harassment at work, with men more likely than women, the report said, and some 6.3 per cent experienced sexual violence and harassment, 8.2 per cent of them women and 5 per cent of them men.

More than 60 per cent of the victims of violence and harassment at work "said it has happened to them multiple times, and for the majority of them, the last incident took place within the last five years," according to the report.

The research also found that people who experienced discrimination at some point in their life based on gender, disability status, nationality, ethnicity, skin colour or religion were more likely to experience violence or harassment at work than those who didn't face such discrimination.

The three organisations said

"statistics on violence and harassment in the world of work are sporadic and scarce" so the ILO joined forces with Lloyd's and Gallup to carry out "the first global exploratory exercise to measure people's own experiences." The survey used data from the 2021 Lloyd's Register Foundation World Risk Poll, which was part of the Gallup World Poll.

The results pave the way for further research, the organisations said. "Ultimately, stronger evidence will help forge more effective legislation, policies and practices that promote prevention measures, tackle specific risk factors and root causes, and ensure that victims are not left alone in handling these unacceptable occurrences," the ILO, Lloyd's and Gallup said.

Mumbai: The rupee declined by 65 paise to close at over one-month low of 82.50 against the US dollar Tuesday due to heavy selling pressure in domestic equities and rising crude prices in the overseas markets. In addition, investors remained concerned over continued foreign capital outflows ahead of the RBI's policy announcement Wednesday, forex dealers said. At the interbank foreign exchange market, the local unit opened weak at 81.94, then slipped further to end at 82.50, registering a fall of 65 paise.

India's palm oil imports rise 29%

Mumbai: India's palm oil imports jumped 29% in November from a month ago, as a steep discount to rival soybean and sunoil made buying of the tropical oil lucrative for local refiners, five dealers said. Higher imports by India, the world's biggest palm oil buyer, would help top producer Indonesia cut its inventories and support benchmark Malaysian palm oil prices, which have nearly halved from this year's record highs. India's palm oil imports reached 1.14 million tonne last month, the average estimate from five dealers with trading firms showed. In November 2021, India had imported 539,639 tonne of palm oil.

Thermal power generation rises

New Delhi: India's thermal power generation registered a growth of 16.28 per cent at 87,687 MU (million units) in November this year as compared to 75,412 MU generated in the corresponding month of previous fiscal. The overall generation of power in the country also increased by 14.63 per cent from 1,02,968 MU to 1,18,029 MU in the reporting month year-on-year. Power utilities' despatch went up by 3.55 per cent to 62.34 million tonne (MT) during November this year as compared to 60.20 MT in the year-ago month.

Unicorn count drops to 85 from over 100 in India

The decline in unicorns come as the funding winter hit the startup ecosystem which has only gone worse with thousands of employees being asked to go

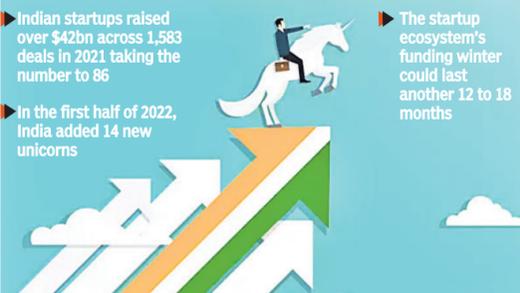

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

New Delhi, Dec 6: The number of unicorns (with the $1 billion valuation and above) in India has dropped to 85 from more than 100 just a couple of months ago, as most startups have shed a significant share of their valuations while investors stay back amid the prevailing global economic turmoil. According to data compiled by Finbold, the US has the highest number of unicorns at 704 while China comes a distant second with 243 unicorns (as of November this year).

Despite the general market conditions, several regions are leading in the number of unicorns or private companies valued at least $1 billion.

"The United Kingdom ranks fourth with 56, while Germany ranks fifth with 36 unicorns. Indeed, the US has at least double the number of unicorns compared to both China and India combined," according to the report. In May this year, India welcomed its 100th unicorn, which was Bengaluru-based neobank platform Open that raised fresh funds as part of its Series D round, taking its valuation to $1 billion.

Only two startups in India, Shiprocket and OneCard, attained unicorn status (valuation $1 billion and above) in the July-September period, mirroring a global trend in decline in the number of new unicorns, a PwC India report showed.

According to the Finbold report, Elon Musk's space company SpaceX ranks top in the US with a valuation of $127 billion, while payment firm Stripe ranks second at $95 billion. Instacart ranks third, valued at $39 billion, followed by Databrick's $38 billion valuation. Meanwhile, gaming company Epic Games ranks fifth at $31.5 billion.

"The US dominance over China can be linked to the Asian country's stringent laws on the private sector. With a robust private sector led by the tech industry, the government moved to curtail the powers of such entities. In this case, there is a widespread fear of companies accelerating their growth, with venture capitalists remaining sceptical," the report mentioned. Notably, with the $1 billion valuation, most companies still depend on external funding while attempting to work out a profitable model. Critics have, for instance, stated that attaining unicorn status without profitability might be considered a fad.

"It is worth noting that unicorns are now prime candidates for Initial Public Offering (IPO). However, the possibility of launching an IPO will likely depend on the state of the economy. Notably, the stock market remains depressed, with most companies losing a big chunk of their valuations," the report said.

'REMARKABLY RESILIENT'

INDIA, LIKE ITS GLOBAL PEERS, HAS BEEN PLAGUED BY HIGHER COMMODITY PRICES AND INTEREST RATES BY CENTRAL BANKS WORLDWIDE. HOWEVER, THE WORLD BANK WAS CONFIDENT THE GLOBAL SLOWDOWN WOULD HAVE A MUCH LOWER IMPACT ON INDIA COMPARED TO OTHER EMERGING ECONOMIES

REUTERS

New Delhi, Dec 6: India is better placed than many other emerging economies to weather the impact of global headwinds, the World Bank said Tuesday, revising up its growth forecast for the country to 6.9% for fiscal 2022 from an earlier estimate of 6.5%.

The estimate was within the government's own recent guidance. Asia's third-largest economy, which expanded 6.3% in the July-September quarter, is estimated to grow 6.8-7% in the current 2022/23 fiscal year ending March, it said last week.

The report titled 'Navigating the Storm', said while the deteriorating external environment will weigh on India's growth prospects, the economy is relatively well positioned to weather global spillovers compared to most other emerging markets.

Like many developing economies, India is confronting inflation following a surge in global food and fuel prices after Russia's invasion of Ukraine earlier this year. That has prompted the central bank to raise policy interest rates while warning about the impact of an international economic slowdown.

"India's economy has been remarkably resilient to the deteriorating external environment," said Auguste Tano Kouame, World Bank's country director, while releasing the India Development Update Report. "However, continued vigilance is required as adverse global developments persist," he said, warning that a deteriorating global environment would impact India's growth prospects.

The central government is on track to meet its fiscal deficit target of 6.4 per cent of the GDP for 2022-23 on the back of strong growth in revenue collections, the report noted.

The World Bank trimmed its growth forecast for India to 6.6% from 7% earlier for fiscal 2023/24, which will begin in April.

"We have no concerns about India's debt sustainability at this stage," World Bank economist Dhruv Sharma said, adding that public debt had declined.

For other emerging economies, the impact of eroded growth in the United States, euro zone countries and China was at least 1.5 times greater compared to India, the report said, noting that a one-percentage-point fall in US growth could lower Indian growth by 0.4 percentage point.

India's annual retail inflation eased to a three-month low of 6.77% in October, but some economists believe it could take up to two years before the rate eases to 4% — the middle level of the Reserve Bank of India's target.

'H2 growth to more than halve to 4-4.5%'

The many rising headwinds, both domestic as well as external, will more than halve the GDP growth to 4-4.5 per cent in the second half of FY2023, shaving off the better numbers in the first half, says a report. In the first half of the current fiscal, the economy has grown at 9.7 per cent -- 6.3 per cent in the September quarter and 13.5 per cent in the previous three months, and forecasts for the full year vary from a low of 6.6 per cent to 7 per cent. According to India Ratings, the economic recovery in H1FY23 was resilient and encouraging, but challenges such as high inflation and weak demand (both domestic as well as external) are expected to pull down the economic growth to 4-4.5 per cent in H2FY23 from 9.7 per cent in the first half of the fiscal.

Fitch retains India's growth outlook

Fitch Ratings has retained the economic growth forecast for India at 7 per cent for the current fiscal in its global economic outlook. The rating agency Tuesday observed that India is likely to emerge as among the fastest growing emerging markets in the current fiscal. At the same time though, the agency has slashed the growth projections for the next two fiscals, observing that while the Indian economy is insulated from global shocks, it is not immune to global developments. In its December edition of the Global Economic Outlook, Fitch projected India's GDP to grow at 7 per cent in the current fiscal but added that it could slow down to 6.2 per cent in 2023-24 and 6.9 per cent in 2024-25.

Govt to okay foreign funds to own over 51% in IDBI Bank

REUTERS

Mumbai, Dec 6: The Indian government will allow a consortium of foreign funds and investment firms to own more than 51% in IDBI Bank Ltd, according to a government clarification today.

The current guidelines of the Reserve Bank of India restrict foreign ownership in new private banks. The central bank's residency criteria for promoters applies only for newly set up banks and would not apply to an existing entity like IDBI Bank, the Department of Investment and Public Asset Management said in a response to interested bidders' queries.

"The residency criteria would not apply to a consortium consisting of funds investment vehicle incorporated outside India," it said.

The Indian government and the RBI would also consider relaxing the five-year lock-in period for shares if a non-banking financial company is merged into IDBI Bank, it said.

The clarifications come ahead of a Dec 16 deadline to submit expressions of interest for a majority stake in IDBI Bank, one of the few lenders that the government is trying to offload its stake in.

The government and Life Insurance Corporation of India together hold 94.71% in IDBI Bank and are looking to sell 60.72%.

3 Indian billionaires on Forbes Asia Heroes of Philanthropy list

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Singapore, Dec 6: Indian billionaires Gautam Adani, Shiv Nadar, and Ashok Soota, as well as Malaysian-Indian businessman Brahmaj Vasudevan and his lawyer wife Shanthi Kandiah, were named in the 16th edition of Forbes Asia's Heroes of Philanthropy list released Tuesday.

The unranked list highlights leading altruists in the Asia-Pacific region who demonstrated a strong personal commitment to philanthropic causes, Forbes said in a press release.

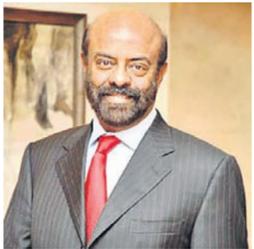

Adani was listed for having pledged ₹60,000 crore ($7.7 billion) when he turned 60 in June this year. The pledge makes him one of India's most generous philanthropists, the press release said.

The money will address health-care, education, and skill development and will be channelled through the family's Adani Foundation, which was founded in 1996. Each year, the foundation helps nearly 3.7 million people across India.

Self-made billionaire and philanthropist Shiv Nadar counts among the top donors in India, having channelled close to $1 billion of his wealth over a few decades to various social causes through the eponymous Shiv Nadar Foundation. This year he donated ₹11,600 crore ($142 million) to the foundation he established in 1994, intending to create an equitable, merit-based society by empowering individuals through education.

Nadar, who cofounded HCL Technologies has helped set up educational institutions such as schools and universities via the foundation, which also promotes art and culture. He stepped down from executive roles at the IT services company in 2021.

Tech tycoon Ashok Soota has pledged ₹600 crore ($75 million) to the medical research trust he founded in April 2021 for the study of ageing and neurological illnesses. He started SKAN—Scientific Knowledge for Ageing and Neurological ailments—with a ₹200 crore outlay, which he has since tripled. "There are only two kinds of people doing [medical] research in India," Forbes Asia quoted Soota as saying. "One is the people doing drug discovery, and the other is the people doing research in national and state-level institutions, which are starved for funds."

Malaysian-Indian Brahmaj Vasudevan, founder and CEO of Kuala Lumpur-based private equity firm Creator, and his lawyer wife, Shanthi Kandiah, support local communities in Malaysia and India through the Creator Foundation, a non-profit they co-founded in 2018.

In May this year, they pledged to donate $5 million Malaysian Ringgit ($11 million) to help build a teaching hospital at the Universiti Tunku Abdul Rahman (UTAR) Kampar campus in Perak state.

Neymar leads Brazil into last 8

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Doha, Dec 6: It was the same old Neymar out there, looking fit and scoring a goal to move closer to Pelé's all-time record and lead Brazil into the World Cup quarterfinals.

Neymar returned from injury and converted a first-half penalty in Brazil's 4-1 win over South Korea in the round of 16 Monday. He reached 76 goals with the national team, one shy of the mark set by Pelé, who said he would watch the match from his hospital bed in Sao Paulo.

The 82-year-old Pelé is recovering from a respiratory infection that was aggravated by COVID-19, leaving fans in Brazil and in Qatar worried about his condition. Neymar carried a banner with the football great's image and "Pelé" written on it after the match, and the entire team then posed behind it near midfield.

South Korea were trying to advance past the round of 16 for the first time since their historic run to the semifinals as a co-host in 2002.

Neymar damaged ligaments in his right ankle in the team's opening match against Serbia and at the time there were doubts if he would play again at the World Cup. He was clearly back, and there were no signs of the injury as he led Brazil to a comfortable victory and a spot in the World Cup quarterfinals for the eighth straight time. Brazil will next play Croatia Friday.

Neymar scored his first goal of this year's World Cup after kissing the ball and calmly sending a low shot from the spot after waiting the goalkeeper to choose a side in the 13th minute. He danced as his teammates huddled around him, then did dance moves along with Vinicius Junior and other teammates before raising his arms to the sky and smiling broadly.

Neymar was forced out of the 2014 World Cup in Brazil after getting hurt in the quarterfinals. Monday, he joined Pelé and Ronaldo with goals for Brazil in three different World Cups. Fans chanted his name as he walked off the field after the match. He had been substituted in the 81st.

BCCI transfers Powar to NCA

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: With only two months left for the Women's T20 World Cup, the BCCI Tuesday shunted head coach Ramesh Powar to the National Cricket Academy as a part of its "restructuring module".

While no head coach was named, former India batter Hrishikesh Kanitkar, who has been a part of Indian men's pathway teams (A and U-19), has been appointed as the new batting coach ahead of the home series against Australia, starting December 9 in Mumbai.

"Ramesh Powar, former Head Coach of the senior women's team will join VVS Laxman, Head Cricket, National Cricket Academy and will switch to men's cricket as part of the restructuring module of the BCCI," the BCCI stated in a release.

"The BCCI Monday (Tuesday) announced the appointment of Hrishikesh Kanitkar as the Batting Coach of the Senior Women's cricket team. Mr. Kanitkar will join the team from the upcoming five-match T20I series against Australia starting 9th December in Mumbai," it further stated.

Powar was appointed for his second stint in May 2021 and the Indian team didn't have too many noteworthy performances under his tutelage save the silver at the Commonwealth Games in Birmingham. India couldn't make it to the semifinal of the 50 over World Cup in New Zealand earlier this year.

Commenting on his appointment, Kanitkar said: "I see tremendous prospects in this team and we have a good mix of youth and experience. I believe this team is ready for the challenge ahead. We have a few marquee events coming up and it is going to be exciting for the team and myself as batting coach."

Powar will be the spin bowling coach at the NCA. "With Powar coming on-board (as a spin bowling coach), we are sure he will bring his expertise and experience to the NCA. Having worked in domestic, age-group cricket and the international circuit, I am sure he will play an active role in the betterment of the game. I look forward to working with him in his new role at the NCA," NCA head Laxman said.

Powar termed his experience coaching women's team as "enriching". "Over the years I have worked closely with some of the stalwarts of the game and upcoming talents of the country. With my new role at the NCA, I will be looking to take forward my experience over the years to help build talent for the future. I look forward to working in tandem with Laxman for the further development of the game and bench strength."

With the BCCI naming the new Cricket Advisory Committee earlier this month, it remains to be seen if the head coach will be appointed anytime soon.

Female umpires to break new ground

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: Clear communication with the players and not getting intimidated by aggressive appeals will be the key when the trio of female umpires — Vrinda Rathi, Janani Narayanan and Gayathri Venugopalan — break new ground and officiate in the Ranji Trophy, a BCCI official said Tuesday.

It will be a first for Indian cricket when female umpires will be asked to officiate in the men's cricket matches even as Gayathri has served as a reserve (fourth) umpire in Ranji Trophy in the past.

With Ranji Trophy, beginning December 13, coinciding with Indian women's cricket team home series against Australia, the three female officials will only get to do select matches in the men's first-class competition.

Chennai-based Narayanan and Mumbai-based Rathi are seasoned umpires and were included in International Cricket Council's panel of development umpires back in 2018. Delhi-based Gayathri, who could not make it as a player, is among the three registered umpires in the BCCI panel besides Janani and Vrinda.

A BCCI official said dealing with the male players will be a big challenge for the female trio. Stakes are high in Ranji Trophy and tempers can flare in the middle.

"As umpires you can't be too soft in the middle. Otherwise the players would try to intimidate them. You have to be tough and implementation of the rules has to be perfect. The communication with the players is key. But all these three are doing well and should do well," a BCCI official, who did not wish to be named, told PTI.

The 32-year-old Rathi has risen from the maidens of Mumbai while 36-year-old Narayan left her cushy job as a software engineer to pursue umpiring. Venugopalan, 43, started umpiring in 2019 after clearing the BCCI exam.

The BCCI still has a lot of catching up to do with female umpires already officiating in men's cricket in Australia and England. Out of 150 registered umpires with the BCCI, only three are women.

"We can't plan their games in Ranji Trophy but we will give them opportunities as per their availability. Australian team is coming to India and will be followed by New Zealand A side and then you also have domestic women's cricket. We need their services there as well," the official said.

"All three are very promising umpires and as per BCCI's vision, we want to promote more female umpires in men's cricket. We will ensure that more women give exams in future but we have not set a limit."

PAK BLIND CRICKET TEAM DENIED INDIA VISA FOR WC

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: The Pakistan blind cricket team has been denied visa to travel to India for the ongoing Blind Cricket World Cup. In a statement issued Tuesday, the Pakistan Blind Cricket Council (PBCC) claimed that the team could not get clearance from the Ministry of External Affairs in India.

"This unfortunate incident has left the Pakistan blind cricket team in the lurch," the PBCC said in a statement. "It was highly likely that Pakistan and India would have locked horns in the final of ongoing World Cup and considering the current form of Green Shirts, Pakistan had high chances to win the World Cup," the statement added.

The tournament is scheduled in India from December 5-17. The PBCC said "it strongly condemns this discriminating act of India as sports should be above regional politics".

"Our counterpart Blind Cricket Association in India pleaded with their government for Pakistan's clearance but nothing was heard," the PBCC said. "This discriminating act will have serious consequences on global blind cricket as we at World Blind Cricket will

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Dec 6: Young Indian shuttler Manisha Ramadass has claimed the BWF Female Para-Badminton Player of the Year award for her stellar run this season.

The Badminton World Federation (BWF) Monday named Manisha as the winner after the 17-year-old won the gold in the World Championships in the SU5 section. Overall, she claimed 11 gold and five bronze medals in 2022.

Other contenders in this section were India's Nithya Sre

Sumathy and Manasi Joshi, Sarina Satomi, Giuliana Poveda Flores, and Pilar Jauregui. Paralympic champion Pramod Bhagat and Thomas Cup winner HS Prannoy, however, missed out on the prestigious award.

Bhagat, who claimed his fourth World Championships singles gold this year, was among those short-listed for the BWF Male Para-Badminton Player of the Year but the award went to WH2 world champion and reigning Paralympic champion Daiki Kajiwaru, winner of 10 gold and four bronze medals overall.

The Japanese earned the nod ahead of Cheah Liek Hou, Lucas Mazur, Chu Man Kai, and Choi Jungman besides Bhagat.

In the award for able-bodied shuttlers, Olympic champion Viktor Axelsen and Zheng Si Wei/Huang Ya Qiong's extraordinary dominance this season was honoured as they won the BWF Player of the Year Awards in their respective categories.

Axelsen won BWF Male Player of the Year for sweeping nearly everything in his path during the eligibility period from November 1, 2021, to October 31, 2022.

Axelsen won nine titles, including his second World Championships crown, which was achieved on the back of three consecutive World Tour titles, the BWF said in a report on its official website.

The BWF Female Player of the Year was won by Japan's Akane Yamaguchi, who achieved the rare honour of winning back-to-back World Championships titles within a nine-month period.

She also won two other titles — the All-England Open and the Japan Open. The other contenders were An Se Young and Tai Tzu Ying.
