Bhumi's intimate moment goes viral

Mumbai: Bhumi Pednekar made a glamorous appearance at Sidharth Malhotra and Kiara Advani's wedding reception in a ravishing gold drape paired with a risqué blouse and a pearl choker.

However, a video of Bhumi kissing a mystery man shielded by his bodyguards while exiting the reception, took the internet by storm. The netizens are turning into sleuths to learn more about the man. A source close to the development believes it is Yash Kataria, a builder.

The Badhai Do actress had so far managed to keep her relationship with Yash under the wraps. But apparently, love and excitement were so much in the air that the duo could not hold themselves back.

Buzz is, Bhumi and Yash were constantly together at the party. Clearly, Bhumi's close associates from the industry were either in the know or leant about it in the party.

The kiss that happened was when Yash escorted Bhumi to her car. As Bhumi sat down, Yash leaned inside the car and their lips met.

On the work front, Bhumi Pednekar has six films releasing this year, including Ajay Bahl's The Ladykiller co-starring Arjun Kapoor; Anubhav Sinha's Bheed co-starring Rajkumar Rao, Meri Patni Ka Remake and Bhakshak.

Aahana Kumra on side effects of being tall

Mumbai: Being one of the tallest actresses in the Hindi film industry, Aahana Kumra says it has been both a boon and a bane. Talking about the pros, Aahana says, "I enjoy wearing pantsuits. I am a tall girl, and I should take full advantage of the fact that I can wear pantsuits that other short people cannot wear."

She also adds, "I like smart dressing. I am a person who has nice broad shoulders, so I love anything that has to do with pantsuits, long pants, or bootcuts."

While as a tall person she enjoys being a fashionista, Aahana complains about the cons she faces as an actor in her profession. She shares, "The biggest disadvantage is that you don't find tall co-actors, and the DOP (Director of Photography) will call for a stool for the actor to stand on it and match the height."

Talking about the extremities, she said, "Worse is that I have lost a lot of roles because of my height where people have told me, 'because you are tall, we couldn't cast you as the actor is shorter than you'. And I wondered how that is my fault! If the actor is short replace him than replacing me!"

I'm Sharon's biggest fan: SRK

Mumbai: On the occasion of Valentine's Day 'King of Romance' Shah Rukh Khan engaged with his fans on social media and shared that he is a big fan of Hollywood star Sharon Stone. A fan Tuesday shared a video of Sharon coming up to SRK and doing namaste to him. As the user asked him about the moment, SRK replied: "Sharon may not know but I am her biggest fan. She is the most gorgeous and intelligent woman!"

About working with Rajkumar Hirani for Dunki, SRK replied: "Raju Sir is a dream comes true to work with. Learnt so much from him and his film making. I am truly fortunate and he is too much fun." The Dilwale star called Amitabh Bachchan 'The only legend'. He also shared that he is waiting to watch Hrithik Roshan's upcoming film Fighter.

A fan asked about the first Valentine's Day gift to his wife Gauri? The actor replied, "If I remember correctly it's been 34 years now. A pair of pink plastic earrings I think."

A man in Anu's life too

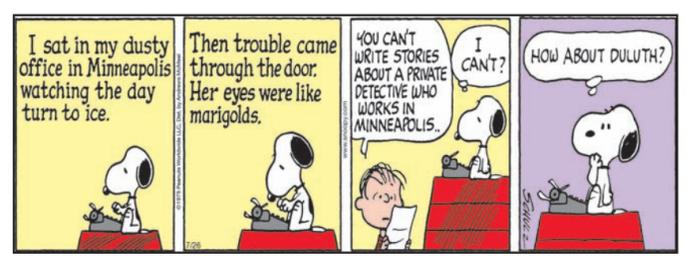

Mumbai: Many people were quite shocked when Anu Aggarwal during her heydays said that she had been in a live-in relationship. Post that, it was never heard of Anu dating anybody. Well, on Valentine's Day, she made a confession on current dating status. She told a news portal Tuesday morning, "Currently, I have a man in my life."

And who is the guy? To this, guarding the identity of the person, Anu said, "Well, we were in a live-in before Aashiqui." Seems, he's the same guy from yesteryears.

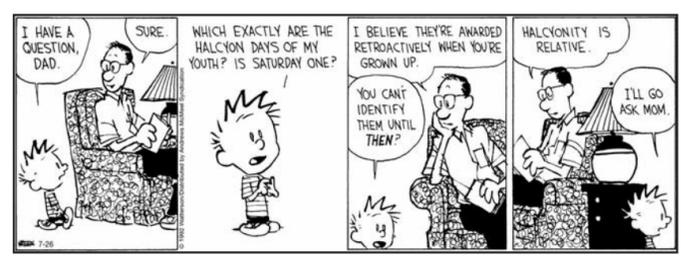

The veteran actress said that they have been on-and-off but now it is far more stronger. "We have a fantastic bond," she added happily. The guy, she told the portal, is neither from the film industry nor stays in India. "But we often meet. India is not the only place to meet," she chuckled.

Dana Majhi rerun: NHRC seeks report from govt

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Bhubaneswar, Feb 14: The National Human Rights Commission (NHRC) has sought an action-taken report (ATR) from the Odisha Chief Secretary on a Koraput-based migrant labourer walking miles with his wife's body on his shoulder.

The NHRC also asked the Chief Secretary to submit the ATR within four weeks of receiving the notice. The commission issued the notice on a petition of activist-cum-advocate Radhakanta Tripathy.

Tripathy in his petition has highlighted the plight of migrant workers.

It is alleged that February 8, 2023, a poor migrant worker Samula Pangri from Koraput district walked for several kilometres with his wife's body on his shoulder after she died in an auto-rickshaw while returning from a hospital in neighbouring Andhra Pradesh, the commission report said.

SC miffed over affidavits delay

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Feb 14: The Supreme Court Tuesday expressed displeasure over some states not filing counter affidavits on time on a petition seeking directions for enacting well-defined laws/rules to ensure adherence to the fundamental duties as enshrined in the Constitution, and said getting the pleadings completed is a "herculean task".

A bench headed by Justice SK Kaul observed that affidavits are being filed just a day before the scheduled hearing in the matter.

"Getting the pleadings completed is a herculean task," the bench, also comprising Justices Manoj Misra and Aravind Kumar, said while asking why cannot the affidavits be filed on time in advance.

The bench was informed that as per the office report of the apex court in the matter, some states have not filed their counter affidavits.

The top court referred to the office report and noted it showed there are some states that have not filed the counter affidavit or filed it belatedly.

While posting the matter for further

The court was hearing a plea seeking issuance of directives to ensure adherence to the mandates in Part IV-A of the Constitution hearing March 28, the bench said secretary of the ministry of concerned of states that are yet to file the counter affidavit, will have to remain present before it through virtual mode.

While hearing the matter in November last year, the SC had given one last opportunity to the states to file their affidavits within four weeks.

"The failure to file an affidavit within the specified time (whether filed or not) will result in costs of Rs 25,000 each," the bench had said in its order.

Earlier in July last year, the apex court had granted two more months to the Centre to file its response to the plea.

The top court was hearing a plea filed by an advocate seeking issuance of directives to ensure adherence to the mandates as postulated under Part IV-A of the Constitution.

The plea has said the fundamental duties are intended to serve as a constant reminder to every citizen that while the Constitution conferred on them certain fundamental rights specifically, it also requires citizens to observe certain basic norms of democratic conduct and behaviour because rights and duties are correlative.

The plea said it aims to address the issue of national importance and to promote commitment amongst citizens towards each other and towards the nation as these contribute to the development and progress of the nation.

BJD, BJP protests choke City; traffic thrown out of gear

WHILE THE BJP BLAMED THE NAVEEN GOVERNMENT FOR STATE'S DETERIORATING LAW AND ORDER SITUATION, THE RULING BJD TOOK UP THE ANTI-FARMER AND ANTI-POOR POLICY OF THE CENTRE

PNN & AGENCIES

Bhubaneswar, Feb 14: Demonstrations over various issues by the ruling BJD and the main opposition BJP choked the streets of Odisha capital Bhubaneswar for two hours Tuesday, causing inconvenience to hundreds of people. The ruling BJD, during the day, launched a three-day agitation against the BJP-led Centre over its decisions to discontinue free rice disbursement under Pradhan Mantri Garib Kalyan Anna Yojana (PMGKAY), and reduce rice procurement by 14 MT.

The saffron party took out a rally, highlighting Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik's "failure to maintain law and order in the state and seeking his ouster from the home department", in the wake of a cabinet minister's murder in Jharsuguda district, allegedly by a policeman.

BJD leaders, including ministers and MLAs, staged an agitation near Raj Bhavan, raising slogans against the Centre, while the saffron brigade, comprising MPs, legislators and senior leaders, held a two-hour 'hartal' at five different places in Bhubaneswar - AG Chhak, Jaydev Vihar, Khandagiri, Samantrapur and Palasuni.

Traffic was thrown out of gear between 11am to 1pm as the BJP activists squatted on the thoroughfares, blocking traffic movement, a senior police officer said.

Hundreds of interstate trucks stood in queues on the highways as the protesters burned tyres at Khandagiri and Palasuni, the officer said. Coming down heavily on the BJP, the ruling BJD claimed that the Centre's move to stop doling out 5 kg free rice shows that it has no regard for the poor in Odisha.

The regional party also protested against the Union government's decision to reduce fund allocation in the annual budget for food grain procurement, besides trimming down rice procurement in Odisha - from 18 lakh MT to 4 lakh MT.

"The BJD protest is for poor man's rights. It is the Centre's responsibility to ensure food security. The pandemic has ended, but its impacts are still prevalent. The Centre should continue allotting free rice for the poor for another two years under PMGKAY," said MLA Debi Prasad Mishra.

In another part of the state capital, Bhubaneswar BJP president Babu Singh alleged that the there was no rule of law in the state, and "rape and murder have become the order of the day".

"We demand Patnaik's resignation from the home department in view of the recent cases of crime, including the minister's murder," said opposition chief whip Mohan Charan Majhi.

Echoing him, BJP MP Basant Panda said, "Minister Naba Kisore Das was allegedly killed by an assistant sub-inspector (ASI). Under such circumstances, people do not feel safe in this state."

Bhubaneswar police commissioner Soumendra Priyadarsi, when contacted, said no untoward incident was reported during protests by the two political parties.

The BJP has decided to stage dharna in front of collectors' offices across the state February 15. On the next day (February 16), the party will stage a demonstration in front of Raj Bhawan and submit a memorandum to the President through the Governor.

Similarly, the BJD will also stage dharna at panchayat offices across the state February 15. On the next day (February 16), the ruling party will stage demonstrations at block offices and submit a memorandum to the Prime Minister through the district Collectors.

Execute projects pronto, Naveen tells Collectors

"Startups play a vital role in the economic development of the state and a lot in this regard has been done by the government. The O-Hub is in operation as one of the big incubation centres for the startups," Patnaik said.

On women empowerment, he said the state government is providing interest-free loans of up to ₹5 lakh to SHGs under Mission Shakti.

The CM said the state government will provide ₹50,000 crore as loans to SHGs under the scheme over the next five years and Collectors need to provide support for the realisation of this objective. Appreciating the Mission Shakti Industrial Park conceived and implemented by the Koraput administration, the Chief Minister said that the initiative will be adopted by the entire state.

Chief Secretary SC Mahapatra said the conference will deliberate on 17 subjects and transformative initiatives of the government and suggestions will be used to prepare a roadmap for the future.

Apart from the CM and three ministers, the Collectors of all the 30 districts, project directors, and other officials responsible for implementing different schemes participated in the event, he said, adding the second day of the conference will be held in Konark.

SC reserves judgement in Panigrahi corruption case

POST NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi, Feb 14: The Supreme Court Tuesday reserved its judgement in a special leave petition filed by Odisha Lokayukta against the order of Orissa High court in a corruption case against MLA Pradeep Panigrahi.

A two-judge bench of Justices Ajay Rastogi and Bela M Trivedi also asked the counsels to file written submissions in the matter before Monday.

Earlier, Lokayukta had submitted in the apex court that investigation in the case against Panigrahi has been completed. The Lokayukta had also told the apex court that "huge" incriminating material was established during the preliminary enquiry against MLA Pradeep Panigrahi in corruption case. Significantly, Odisha Lokayukta had filed a special leave petition in the Supreme Court challenging the order of the Orissa High Court which ruled that the Lokayukta cannot order preliminary enquiry against Pradeep Panigrahi from Vigilance department of the state as the department is the complainant in the matter.

The Supreme Court had April 23, 2021 stayed the Orissa HC order restraining the Vigilance department from conducting enquiry against Pradeep Panigrahi in a corruption case and had issued notice.

It is to be mentioned here that Lokayukta in December 2021 had directed the state Vigilance to probe into the corruption charges made against arrested Gopalpur MLA Pradeep Kumar Panigrahi. The Lokayukta had also asked the Vigilance Directorate to conduct a preliminary inquiry against Panigrahi and submit a report within two months. The anti-corruption ombudsman issued the direction after accepting the recommendation of Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik who had referred the case of corruption charges leveled against the lawmaker December 7, 2020.

Outfit observes Feb 14 as 'black day' in City

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, Feb 14: When the world was celebrating Valentine's Day February 14, several members of a youth outfit 'Insaniyat' congregated at Master Canteen Square here Tuesday to pay homage to the CRPF jawans killed during 2019 Pulwama attack and observed this day as black day.

Biswa Ranjan Biswal, a member of the group, said, "At least 40 soldiers had lost their lives on this day three years ago when a Jaish-e-Mohammad suicide bomber rammed a vehicle full of explosives into a convoy of the Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF). Soldiers fought with militants on the border and lost their lives so that we stay safe. So, it is essential that we remember their sacrifice. We observe this sad day as black day."

Both, smokers and vapers, suffer similar DNA damage

Scientists have found that vapers and smokers have similar levels of DNA damage, which is more than twice the amount found in non-users, according to a new study.

According to the study, DNA damage was higher among those who vaped or smoked more frequently. It was also higher in vapers who used vape pods and mods, as well as sweet-, fruit- or mint-flavoured vapes, it said.

A group of researchers from the Keck School of Medicine of University of Southern California (USC), US, analysed epithelial cells taken from the mouths of vapers, smokers, and people who had never vaped or smoked, the study said.

E-cigarettes, used regularly by more than 10 per cent of US teens and more than 3 per cent of adults, were once pitched as a healthy alternative to tobacco cigarettes.

But research increasingly links the use of e-cigarettes, or vaping, to many of the same life-threatening diseases that plague smokers, the study published in the journal Nicotine & Tobacco Research said.

"For the first time, we showed that the more vapers used e-cigarettes, and the longer they used them, the more DNA damage occurred in their oral cells," said Ahmad Besaratinia, professor at the Keck School of Medicine and the study's senior author.

"The same pattern held up in smokers," said Besaratinia.

The study showed similar levels of DNA damage between vapers and smokers: 2.6 times and 2.2 times that of non-users, respectively, it said.

In terms of devices, vapers who used pods had the highest levels of DNA damage, followed by those who used mods. In terms of flavours, sweet-flavoured vapes were linked to the highest levels of DNA damage, followed by mint/menthol- and fruit-flavoured vapes, the study said.

The most popular products, including flavoured vapes, used by about 85 per cent of teens who vape, also appear to be the most harmful, in terms of producing DNA damage, the study said.

DNA damage to oral epithelial cells, which line the mouth, is an early change that is associated with an increased risk for many types of chronic disease, including cancer and inflammatory diseases, the study said.

The study is the first to clearly distinguish between the DNA damage that occurs in exclusive vapers versus smokers and to provide details about the risks vapers face based on how often they vape and what devices and flavours they use, it said. Vapers are difficult to study because they typically have a history of cigarette smoking or are dual users, who both vape and smoke tobacco cigarettes, the study said.

"We designed our study to tease out the effects of vaping in e-cigarette users who were neither cigarette smokers nor dual users at any point in their lives," said Besaratinia.

"The devices and flavours that are most popular and highly consumed by youth vapers, as well as adults, are the ones that are associated with the most DNA damage," said Besaratinia.

According to the study, the researchers recruited 72 healthy adults and split them into three groups, matched for age, race and gender: current vapers (who had never smoked), current smokers (who had never vaped) and people with no history of smoking or vaping. They verified the history of each participant using detailed questionnaires, interviews and biochemical tests to ensure that any observed effects could be directly linked to either vaping or smoking, the study said.

Besaratinia and his team also collected data on how often, and for how long, participants had smoked or vaped, and in the case of vaping, what devices and flavours they used, the study said.

Then, they collected a sample of epithelial cells from each participant's mouth and tested for damage to specific genes known to indicate assault to the genome, the study said.

"Clearly these results have significant implications, both for public health and regulatory agencies," said Besaratinia.

HUGE AMOUNT OF GREEN COVER FACES DESTRUCTION DUE TO EXPANSION OF ROADS

POST NEWS NETWORK

Sonepur, Feb 14: Subarnapur district is all set to become hotter in the coming days as plans are afoot to cut 3,158 trees for expansion of the Arjunpur-Binka-Rampur-Dunguripali major district road (MDR). This road incidentally is the lifeline of the residents in the district.

The Odisha government has floated tenders of ₹145 crore in two phases for expansion of the Arjunpur-Dunguripali road which is approximately 54km in length. The double-laning of the road is underway and that is the main reason why more than 3,000 trees will be cut. With such a huge destruction of green cover, temperatures are bound to rise in the surrounding areas. The trees that are to be cut off have been identified and the Odisha Forest Development Corporation (OFDC) has started felling of those.

Only after the trees have been cut, expansion of the road will start. The fact however, is that these trees provided shade over a vast area and kept temperatures cool. Once the trees are cut, a large amount of area will be exposed to the sun and in the process temperatures will rise and humidity will increase. People will miss the shade, the trees used to offer. The development has sparked concern among the local residents and environmentalists. With the onset of summer they are apprehending lengthy periods of acute heat. They have demanded that instead of completely cutting down the trees, they should be relocated at other places so that green cover in the area is still available.

Residents have demanded relocation of trees as they feel destruction of those will diminish green cover leading to rise in temperatures

Sources said that approximately 906 trees from Arjunpur to Anga river bridge under Sonepur forest range and 2,252 trees on both sides of the road from Anga river bridge till Dunguripali under Binka forest range will be brought down.

Heat waves are very common in Subarnapur district and it is among the hottest places in Odisha. Last year, Sonepur town was declared the hottest in India. The district has only 428.75 square kilometres of forest cover, which is 18.34 per cent of the total area of Subarnapur. It is very small indeed considering the size of the district.

In the last few years, efforts have been made to increase the green cover in the district through protection of old jungles and creation of new ones. Programmes like the Green Mahanadi Mission have been launched. But none have met with the desired results. Green cover continues to be minimal in Subarnapur. Forest fires have also contributed to the destruction of greenery in the district.

Now with the decision to cut down more than 3,000 trees, residents of the districts are a worried lot. They feel that the rise in temperatures will be unbearable and affect people health-wise. So they have asked the Forest department to have a rethink on the decision to cut down such a large number of trees.

Parade ground closure hits sports in Rourkela

POST NEWS NETWORK

Rourkela, Feb 14: The abrupt closure of the Parade ground in Uditnagar locality here after Republic Day celebrations has deprived educational institutions in the city from conducting sports events. Also sportspersons and morning walkers have been affected, sources said Tuesday.

The closure of the ground has sparked resentment among sports lovers. Various beautification works were undertaken at the Parade ground before the FIH Men's Hockey World Cup. A number of sports events were also held at the ground to commemorate the World Cup. However, after the Republic

Day celebrations, the ground was closed for the public and has remained so ever since.

As a result training of national-level sportspersons has been affected. Also people who used to visit the ground for fitness regimen are not being able to do so, locals pointed out. Students of the Uditnagar Government High School who used to visit the ground regularly for various recreational activities, cannot do so now.

Headmistress Shakuntala Barik of the school said "Tuesday that the playground of the institution which has student strength of approximately 1,500, is very small. So the Parade ground is the main destination for various sports activities. However now, due to the closure all physical activities of the students have stopped.

Physical education teacher (PET) Satyanarayan Rout of Municipal College said that every year the annual sports used to be held at the Parade ground. "This year the Rourkela Municipal Corporation has denied us permission. So we may have to abandon plans of conducting our annual sports," Rout informed.

Senior sports enthusiast Susant Behera said that promising sportspersons are not being able to train properly and their future is at stake.

When contacted, deputy municipal commissioner Sudhanshu Bhoi said that the Rourkela Smart City authority is yet to handover the ground to the civic body. Talks are on and very soon the Parade ground will be reopened for sportspersons and enthusiasts, he added.

Women guard Keonjhar jungle to prevent fires

Failure of the Forest department has prompted the women to take matters into their own hands

POST NEWS NETWORK

Patana, Feb 14: Women in Nihuan village under this block in Keonjhar district have taken the responsibility to guard a reserve forest in their locality from fires, officials said Monday. They have formed teams and are guarding the forest on a rotation basis since a fire broke out a few days back. Fires have been reported from various areas under the Patana range in Keonjhar district. The fires are not only destroying green cover, but also endangering the lives of wild animals, villagers said.

Sources said that it was expected that the Forest department would take steps to combat the fires. However, with no action coming from their end, the women have come out to save the jungle which is spread over 240km.

A part of the forest which is in the vicinity of the village had caught fire few days back following which hundreds of trees were reduced to ashes. Later, it came to light that some miscreants had ignited the fire under the influence of alcohol.

This revelation sparked anger and resentment among the villagers and they decided to take stringent measures to prevent repetitions of such incidents. Villagers have now put up posters that warn people from consuming liquor in and around the jungle. Anyone found violating the rule will have to pay a fine of ₹2,000, the villagers said. They added that since the posters were put up anti-social activities have decreased to a great extent.

However, Triveni Singh, a resident of Nihuan village, said that such activities usually occur in the jungles close to the roadside. She said patrolling of these areas on a regular basis can curb such activities.

"The forest gives us wood, roots, leaves, mohua flowers, medicines and all the natural resources we need. "We can only survive if the forests are protected," said Nirupama Singh, another resident of the same village. Village head Subhash Chandra Singh said that since the women started guarding the forest, anti-social activities have reduced drastically.

Keonjhar DFO HD Dhanraj praised the efforts of the villagers.

Demand to link Gobari, Brahmani rivers increases

POST NEWS NETWORK

Kendrapara, Feb 14: Agriculture is the main source of income of people in Kendrapara district. However, despite repeated pleas, the Odisha government is yet to launch an effort to link the Brahmani and Gobari rivers. Farmers in Kendrapara district are of the opinion that if the two rivers are linked, irrigation problems will be solved. They pointed out 5,000 hectares of farmland can be irrigated easily.

Sources said that farmers were cultivating three types of crops on the farmlands. However, they cannot do so now after a small waterbody linking these two rivers dried up.

Aggrieved over the pestering problem, the locals filed a case against the state Water Resources department at the National Legal Services Authority (NALSA), February 14, 2021. The NALSA directed the district legal services authority (DLSA) to hear the case and pass its order.

The DLSA heard the matter and gave orders to the Water Resources department directing it to resolve the problem. However, nothing has been done till now to alleviate the sufferings of the farmers. The waterbody connecting the two rivers was closed 60 years back for the construction of the Cuttack-Chandbali road. Since then the plight of the farmers have increased. Residents have drawn the attention of department officials towards the problem. They have even staged demonstrations in front of the district collectorate, but so far nothing has been done.

QUITTING WHILE ON TOP

Social norms are changing our ideas about a good life. We are paying more attention to work-life balance than we used to do, and rightly so. We are far more open than we used to be about mental health – footballers now acknowledge facing mental-health issues, something that previously would have been considered humiliating. More people are recognising that career success is not to be equated with living a good life know what this job takes," she added, "and I know that I no longer have enough in the tank to do it justice. It's that simple." Getting to the highest level of a worthwhile activity is an exciting challenge, and overcoming challenges can be enjoyable; but staying at the top as long as one can is a different matter. As Borg said, there are other things in life than tennis, and that is true of life in politics as well. The Harvard Study of Adult Development has tracked the lives of some of its research subjects for more than 80 years, seeking answers to what makes them happy and healthy. Some of its results have just been released in The Good Life, by Robert Waldinger and Marc Schulz. Although any one-word answer to such questions is bound to be an oversimplification, the authors nevertheless are prepared to say that the key to both health and happiness is good relationships. Almost everyone who retires says that they want to spend more time with their family. Sometimes, of course, that is just a cover for less honourable reasons for quitting; but in the case of Arden and Barty, it was probably an important factor. Arden was just the second Prime Minister – after Pakistan's Benazir Bhutto – to give birth while in office. She has occasionally shared moments with her child on social media, but she will now be able to spend more time with her daughter, and her partner, who has been a stay-at-home dad. For Barty, the desire to become a mother may have played a role, for she is now pregnant with her first child. Social norms are changing our ideas about a good life. We are paying more attention to work-life balance than we used to do, and rightly so. We are far more open than we used to be about mental health – footballers now acknowledge facing mental-health issues, something that previously would have been considered humiliating. More people are recognising that career success is not to be equated with living a good life. We should also ask what our career is doing for the world. Perhaps there are better things we could be doing. The website 80,000 hours has some suggestions.

Not everyone can choose to change the course of their life. Some face limited employment opportunities, with few options if they are to continue to feed and house themselves and their dependents. Political leaders may be reluctant to leave office because they believe they can do more good than those who will replace them.

When that belief is well-founded, rather than a form of self-deception fuelled by the addictive nature of power, as it often is, staying in office may be what they should do. The rest of us, however, have choices, and we should frequently be asking ourselves if we are living the best life we can – both for ourselves and others.

GETTING TO THE HIGHEST LEVEL OF A WORTHWHILE ACTIVITY IS AN EXCITING CHALLENGE, AND OVERCOMING CHALLENGES CAN BE ENJOYABLE; BUT STAYING AT THE TOP AS LONG AS ONE CAN IS A DIFFERENT MATTER

Last month, Jacinda Ardern, New Zealand's 42-year-old Prime Minister, resigned her office, despite the support of a solid parliamentary majority and no challenge to her leadership from within her party. New Zealanders have to go back only six years to find a precedent. In 2016, John Key surprised everyone when, at the age of 55, he made way for his deputy to take over.

A year ago, Ashleigh Barty became the first Australian to win the Australian Open in 44 years. She was 25 years old and the top-ranked women's tennis player in the world for more than 100 weeks. Two months later, she announced her retirement. Likewise, Björn Borg, the Swedish tennis champion, retired in 1983 at the age of 26, and Anthony Kim, a rising star of golf, was also 26 when he stopped playing competitively.

Why do they do it? Borg and Barty have given similar reasons. At first, Borg said, he had enjoyed playing and achieving the goals he set for himself. By the time he retired, however, the fun had gone out of playing tennis at that level. "Basically, over the years, I was practicing, playing my matches, eating, and sleeping," he said. "But there's other things besides those four things."

Barty announced her retirement in a video conversation with her friend and former doubles partner, Casey Dellacqua. Tennis, she said, "has given me all of my dreams, plus more, but I know that the time is right, now, for me to step away and chase other dreams, and to put the rackets down." Her happiness, she continued, had ceased to depend on her results on the tennis court, and she no longer had the physical drive or the emotional desire to continue to challenge herself at the very top level. "It's important that I get to enjoy the next phase of my life as Ash Barty the person, not as Ash Barty the athlete."

In announcing her resignation, Arden expressed similar feelings. It had been, she said, "the most fulfilling five and a half years" of her life. But "I

Putin & India

It may appear intriguing that Russian President Vladimir Putin put aside protocol and found time to meet India's National Security Adviser Ajit Doval in Moscow. More so at a time when Europe is planning to arm Ukraine further and impose fresh sanctions on Russia for the invasion of Ukraine which had commenced about a year ago. It is an exceptional case that the Russian President chose to meet a government official, instead of top ministers, that too when Doval was among several other regional security advisers who gathered in Moscow for a conference recently. The unscheduled meeting assumed importance also because Doval had been in Washington and London before visiting Russia. What transpired between the two is seemingly put under wraps with both sides keeping mum.

The question is whether Putin needed an assurance from India, which will be playing an important role this year - hosting the G-20 and SCO summits - that it will not extend support to Europe's plan to bolster Ukraine's war efforts further. Russia is reportedly getting ready to launch an intensified Spring offensive. Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy had travelled to London, Paris and Brussels scouting for arms assistance at a time when the war waged by Russia against his country is entering a new critical phase.

Defence officials in Kyiv are apprehensive about the launch of a new Russian offensive in eastern Ukraine on the first anniversary of the invasion on February 24. Reports suggest fresh troops are concentrating on the Russian side, facing Ukrainian forces. In such a situation it is of paramount importance for President Zelenskyy to get more military aid from Western countries. The urgency is such that Zelenskyy said in Brussels that he did not want to go home "empty-handed."

Of course, he did not get what he specifically asked for, namely fighter jets, though arms aid is not announced publicly during war time. But, he got closer to the European Union family and returned with the sense that the more Putin intensifies his assault on Ukraine, the more Europe's solidarity becomes uncompromising. Russia's invasion began as an existential threat to Ukraine but its continuance for a year now poses a threat to the whole of Western Europe as well. The danger that Europe surely smells is that if Russia is allowed to win the war it has launched, its appetite for more European territories could only grow insatiable. The consequences will be to expose its neighbours to similar attacks and destroy the existing European order.

That such an eventuality is no mere speculation is clear from the statement French President Emmanuel Macron made alongside Zelenskyy and the German Chancellor Olaf Scholz. He said, "Russia cannot, must not prevail." This is a new position that the French President took. Earlier, he had been humming the tune of "not humiliating Russia" or finding "security guarantees" for Russia.

The huge costs of the war and the chain effects are being felt across the globe. That could be prompting many countries to make the Russian President agree to return to the negotiating table for a peaceful solution to the conflict. India could hope to play the peacemaker's role as host of G-20 summit.

It is not known what note Putin sounded during his meeting with Doval. He may also have made it clear to the latter that he would not brook India playing footsie with the West as India needs Russia for countering China's hostilities towards it.

The Putin-Doval meeting can best be described as a surprise development in the midst of fresh war preparations in Ukraine. It may have opened a window of opportunity to broker peace, greatly needed by the world as it is in the grip of a cost of living crisis and needs peace to get the economies back on keel.

WORDSWORTH

Funambulist

A funambulist is a tight-rope walker or rope dancer. The word comes from the Latin funambulus with the same meaning (yes, the Romans had tight-rope walkers, too: it was a popular public spectacle). It's a compound of funis, "rope" (the source also of our funicular, a cable railway) and ambulare, "to walk". The Latin word evolved into the standard term for the concept in the Romance languages, for example in the Italian funambolo and French funambule. Here's an example of its use in English from the Daily News in 1896: "A Funambulist is a gentleman who ... on a rope ... turns somersaults, leaps thro' a ring, and plays on a fiddle while whirling like a Catharine wheel". The Oxford English Dictionary lists a number of compounds and derivatives, several of them marked as obsolete: funambule, funambulant and funambulator, all meaning "a tight-rope walker", the verb funambulate, the noun funambulation, "the action of walking on a rope", and adjectives funambulatory and funambulic. The word can also be used in a figurative sense to mean somebody who is mentally agile. And the original Latin word also turns up in Funambulus, the name of a genus of (presumably acrobatic) Indian palm squirrels.

Funk

Let's start with "smell", which is the oldest sense of funk, dating from the early seventeenth century. It's suggested it may come from the French dialect verb funkier, to blow smoke on a person or annoy them with smoke, a word that's probably based on Latin fumus, smoke. Instances usually refer to air thick with tobacco smoke. Though it was known in Britain, early examples came from America, and it stayed active there long after it had gone out of use over here. The sense of abject fear or cowardice is about a century less old, first being recorded in 1743. It may have appeared first as Oxford University slang. It is usually said that it is a distinct word to the earlier sense, deriving instead from an obsolete Flemish word fonck, fear. Whatever its source, that sense stands alone and isn't connected with any of the others, though blue funk is directly linked. However, the modern sense of a musical genre and the Black English term funky for something excellent both derive from the surviving American sense of funk for a bad smell. The word funky was around in the 1920s to refer to an obnoxious smell, especially to refer to a person who smelled bad, say of sweat. However, it is certainly older than that. Several subscribers pointed out that the blues song Funky Butt, which is associated with Buddy Bolden, is known from around the beginning of the twentieth century. Anne Hegerty wrote "At least a hundred years ago there was a dance hall in New Orleans whose official name was Kinney's Hall or McKenna's Hall (sources differ) but which was known to local jazz and ragtime musicians and dancers as Funky Butt Hall (ie Smelly Bottom Hall). Buddy Bolden used to play there, and his career ended in 1906". Whatever its origins, funky was later transferred in Black English to refer to somebody or something objectionable or worthless. By a process common in Black English, by the end of the 1930s funky was being applied to things that were satisfying, impressive, or generally approved of (think of wicked and bad, two other examples of this kind of deliberate inversion). The music sense – unpretentious, down to earth, rooted in the blues – turns up in the early 1950s as a further evolution of meaning that could consciously hark back to the Buddy Bolden song.

A plant-based diet may make you healthier

Melvin Durai

A LOT OF PEOPLE IN INDIA ARE POLLOTARIANS, WHICH EXPLAINS THE IMMENSE POPULARITY OF CHICKEN BIRYANI

There are many isms in the world, such as communism, socialism and imperialism. I went to a farm recently and asked the animals what their favourite ism is. The cows, pigs and chickens all agreed that the best ism in the world is vegetarianism.

But the female cat on the farm disagreed. Her favourite ism is skepticism. She was particularly skeptical about vegetarianism.

As for me, my favourite is optimism. And I'm fairly optimistic that I will one day adopt vegetarianism, either in this life or the next.

For now, I'm trying my best to be a semi-vegetarian (not to be confused with pseudo-vegetarian). A semi-vegetarian diet, according to Wikipedia, is one that is "centered on plant foods, with limited inclusion of meat." To follow this diet, I put all plant foods in the centre of my plate, in a large enough pile to hide any meat under it.

There are three types of semi-vegetarianism, and I follow the first type: flexitarianism. A flexitarian is willing to go without meat for one or more days a week. I can do without meat for an entire week, as long as I have milk and eggs, and don't drive past McDonald's. This makes me a semi-ovo-lacto-burger-vegetarian.

The second type of semi-vegetarianism is pollotarianism. A pollotarian does not eat any meat other than poultry (chicken, turkey and other fowl). A lot of people in India are pollotarians, which explains the immense popularity of chicken biryani.

The third type of semi-vegetarianism is pescetarianism. A pescetarian is mostly a vegetarian except for the consumption of seafood. My father-in-law is a pescetarian, as are many Indians who live in coastal areas. He enjoys fish once a week, but if I said, "You are a pescetarian!" to him, he'd probably have some bad words for me.

My wife grew up in a mostly vegetarian household, but became quite inclusive in her eating habits. She eats a variety of meat and seafood, but also recognises the benefits of eating plant-based foods and has greatly influenced my eating habits. Some of her vegetarian dishes are so tasty, I do not miss having any meat with them. It would be easy for me to go a week or two without meat, but as much as my wife loves vegetables, she also cooks meat more often than I expect, not that I complain.

If I became a vegetarian, I'd probably be a lacto-ovo-vegetarian, incorporating dairy products and eggs into my diet. I might also become a lacto-vegetarian, but not an ovo-vegetarian. Giving up dairy products would be almost impossible for me. There are some substitutes for cow's milk, such as soy milk, that I might consider drinking. But I don't know if I could eat a pizza made with a soy cheese alternative.

Being a strict vegetarian or vegan would be even harder for me. That would mean saying 'no' to all animal-based products, including eggs and milk. I'd be depriving myself of so many foods

I enjoy. But on the plus side, I'd probably live to be 100.

In general, a vegetarian diet is healthier than a non-vegetarian diet, and it's extremely beneficial to limit the amount of meat we consume. But it's also important to realise that plant-based diets can often be unhealthy. There's a big difference between a healthy plant-based diet and an unhealthy one.

Various studies have shown that your risk of chronic disease is lower if your plant-based diet includes plenty of whole grains, fruits, vegetables, nuts, legumes, vegetable oils and beverages such as tea and coffee. But your risk of chronic disease is higher if your plant-based diet includes large amounts of refined grains, potatoes, sweets/desserts and beverages such as fruit juices and sugar-sweetened drinks.

If you've adopted vegetarianism, but make poor choices, you may find yourself facing another ism from your loved ones: criticism.

Scrutinise budget

Sir, This refers to "Rajya Sabha goes into month-long recess," Orissa Post, Feb 14. A fractious first half of the Parliament's Budget Session came to an end Monday. Both Houses will reconvene next month which gives MPs time to carefully scrutinise the budget. Though the budget was well-received by many non-political stakeholders, it didn't get enough play in the Parliament. The last fortnight was overwhelmed by events surrounding the Adani group of companies. Hopefully, next month will witness some quality debates on the budget. While other stakeholders bring different perspectives to assessing a budget, the views of elected representatives are crucial as they serve as a channel to amplify the voices from the ground. A budget is more than a statement of accounts. In India, there's no other matching platform, either at the level of states or Centre, to articulate a government's priorities and vision. In Parliament, the budget package has also become an occasion to introduce critical legislation as a money bill. Therefore, the budget session provides both political parties and citizens an opportunity to understand a government's programme and the alternatives available. Given its potential, the budget session could have been put to better use. There's enough blame to go around as one budget discussion in the Lok Sabha had to be adjourned as the MPs present fell short of the quorum.

Improve infrastructure

Sir, It has been noticed that in the last couple of years the state government has converted autonomous colleges into universities under the broader umbrella of the Mo University Scheme. The recent ones are the Vikram Dev University in the southern part of Odisha and the Dharanidhar University in the eastern part of the state. While it is a welcome step to enhance the accessibility of higher education in the different pockets of the state, the apprehension regarding the quality in teaching, research and infrastructure looms large. Moreover, it is needless to say about the faulty crunch already existing in the state universities. So as to produce capable human resources which can suit our contemporary times; the state has a challenge ahead to make sure that expansion of universities is met with quality of teaching faculty and optimal infrastructure for the newly established universities.

Rai said he and other party leaders were at the airport to receive their leader but his plane was not allowed to land "at the last minute."

Rahul Gandhi then returned to the national capital. However, Varanasi airport director Aryama Sanyal denied the allegation that they had refused permission for Rahul Gandhi's plane to land. The air traffic controller was told that the plan to land at the airport has been cancelled, Sanyal said.

NDRF canines beat machines in detecting quake victims

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Feb 14: Six canines of the NDRF deployed in earthquake-hit Turkey have proved to be "very very effective" in rescuing survivors from under the debris even as teams from other countries have also utilised their services, officials said Tuesday.

The federal contingency force of India is also in the process of shifting its two teams from Gaziantep to Hatay on the Mediterranean coast of the country as the possibility of finding survivors in the former city is "almost negligible now". The third NDRF team is already in Hatay.

The force has rescued two young girls - six years and eight years old, apart from 63 bodies since they began their search and rescue (SAR) operation in that country on February 7 after the Union government sent three of its teams to assist international rescue operations in Turkey.

The massive 7.8 magnitude earthquake that struck Turkey and neighbouring Syria on February 6 has claimed more than 35,000 lives and rescuers fear the toll may climb further even as hope for lives is fading rapidly, notwithstanding miracles.

"Our canine rescuers have proved to be very effective during the Turkey operation. There are three ways to rescue someone from a collapsed structure - physical or through human means, technical search through equipment and canines. "We found that technical equipment, heavy machinery, life detectors and seismic sensors have not been that good in finding life during this situation where multiple buildings have been flattened due to the quake and there is chaos all around," NDRF commanding officer Gurminder Singh said from Nurdagi in Gaziantep province of Turkey.

Our dogs are quite easy to handle and they are not aggressive. They have proven their training during this operation and helped our rescue teams in looking for specific areas where lives can be found, he said. Another senior officer said the NDRF dogs and their handlers were also provided to the Turkey fire department rescue team who, they are told, retrieved "one or two live victims" with the help of NDRF dogs.

The force has taken six Labradors Romeo, Julie, Rambo, Honey, Bob and Roxy for assisting the rescuers while they search for lives. Officials said while Romeo and Julie were instrumental in sensing and alerting the NDRF men in rescuing the six-year-old girl in Gaziantep last week, the other dogs have been "very vital" during the crucial hours just after the quake when rescuers were frantically looking for people who were alive under debris.

Commandant Singh said the five women personnel of the force, who are on their first international rescue operation, are working shoulder-to-shoulder with their male counterparts and have assisted affected women in few places.

Raj cops' unique way to curb cybercrimes

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Jaipur, Feb 14: From quoting iconic Bollywood songs and dialogues to sharing memes, the Rajasthan Police is using popular culture as a tool to raise awareness among youngsters about online luring and fake social media profiles during the Valentine's week.

The creative messages, with a twist of humour, are being shared by the state police force on its official Facebook account and Twitter handle to grab the attention of youngsters who might easily fall prey to scamsters.

The social media posts are also being used to desist the youth from following gangsters on social media.

A tweet shared on 'Chocolate Day' (February 9) was the iconic poster from the blockbuster film 3 Idiots. Captioned jahapanah tussi great ho, chocolate kubool karo, a famed dialogue from the film, it alerted people to stay away from "digital chocolate" and adopt cyber safety to ensure "all is well" - a catchphrase of one of the lead protagonists as well as a hit song from the 2009 movie.

A caption at the bottom of the image read, roz tum jo sanam aisa karoge, paise lut jayenge to aahen bharoge (If you keep on doing this, you will lose all your money) - a parody of a song from the 1996 Bollywood blockbuster Saajan Chale Sasural.

And for girls, police came up with a creative message to caution them about how fake profiles on social media can harm them. "Kal aur kal, kabhi bhi aa sakta hai fake proposal", the post read.

Though it is a long-term campaign of Rajasthan Police to make people aware about cyber crimes, we picked Valentine's week to reach out to youngsters, Dutt said.

STRIKE BY WATER TANKERS' BODY

Water supply to infra projects, hotels and clubs in Mumbai hit

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Mumbai, Feb 14: The ongoing indefinite strike by water tankers in Mumbai in protest against the implementation of Central guidelines for bulk water supply has affected water supply for major infrastructure projects, hotels, malls and clubs, an association member claimed Tuesday.

Ankur Sharma, the spokesperson for Mumbai Water Tankers Association (MwTA), told PTI that Mumbai (suburban) guardian minister Mangalprabhat Lodha has convened a meeting later in the day to resolve the stand-off which will be attended by officials of the Mumbai civic body and the Central Ground Water Authority (CGWA). Sharma said 2,500 tankers that supply potable and non-potable water across Mumbai have been on strike since February 8 and it's a do-or-die situation for them. He said tanker operators will not call off the protest without a written assurance.

"We don't have any demands. We were forced to shut down our businesses due to the implementation of CGWA measures, and (action by) Mumbai Police and the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation" Sharma said. He said the implementation of guidelines issued by the CGWA, responsible to regulate and control the development and management of groundwater resources in the country, is not feasible.

The directives are being implemented by collectors of Mumbai and Mumbai (suburban) districts and the state water supply and sanitation department. Police are authorised to file FIRs against tanker owners not following the guidelines.

"Tanker owners are being slapped with notices for the last few months by various departments of the BMC. Earlier this month, the BMC wrote to the Mumbai police commissioner asking to file FIRs against tanker operators violating the guidelines," Sharma said. He said tanker operators are ready to apply for the license and pay revenue as mandated by CGWA, but they can't fulfil other guidelines which state that private tanker owners must have a land parcel of 2,000 sqft for drawing underground water. The guidelines also say that tanker owners and suppliers will have to pay Rs 6,50,000 to the local administration as a security deposit and that not more than five tankers can draw water from a specific point. According to MwTA, nearly 2,500 tankers supply water in Mumbai and 550 families of tanker owners are dependent on this business, apart from the staff employed by them.

"We have been in this business for more than 60 years and supply potable and non-potable water to major infrastructure projects, railways, hotels, malls, clubs, eateries, and housing societies," Sharma said. He said tanker operators charge Rs 800 per 10,000 litres of water, but it is not possible to follow CGWA guidelines as their implementation is not feasible.

"If we start following the guidelines, projects in Mumbai will get affected. A case in point is BMC's mega coastal road project which needs 700 water tankers per day while the Railways need 300 tankers," Sharma added.

Guwahati, Feb 14: The country's first solid waste-to-hydrogen plant will be set up in Pune at a cost of over Rs 430 crore, an official said Tuesday.

The plant will be set up by sustainability solutions provider TheGreenBillions Ltd (TGBL), who has entered into a 30-year-long agreement with Pune Municipal Corporation (PMC). It will treat 350 tonnes of solid garbage every day by next year, TGBL chairman and founder Prateek Kanakia told PTI here. "Our plan is to produce 10 tonnes of hydrogen daily from 350 tonnes of solid waste. We are setting up the plant at Hadapsar Industrial Estate in Pune. This is the first attempt in India to extract hydrogen from waste," he added.

The company will invest Rs 350 crore in setting up the plant and an additional Rs 82 crore will be spent to construct the to TGBL as tipping fee to treat the waste, he added. "The first 10 tonne reactor will be installed by November 2023 and the target to complete the entire plant is November 2024," Kanakia said.

For the Pune plant PSU firm Broadcast Engineering Consultants India Ltd (BECIL) will provide the project management consulting and Variate Pune Waste to Energy Pvt Ltd, a wholly-owned subsidiary of TGBL, will implement the project.

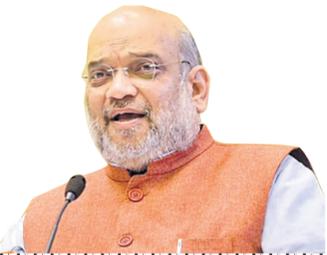

"The refuse derived fuel from the waste will be utilised to generate hydrogen using plasma gasification technology. We got technological support from the Bhabha Atomic Research Institute and the Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru," Kanakia said.

The project aims to demonstrate the technological and financial feasibility of waste to hydrogen generation, he added.

Union Minister for Road Transport and Highways, Nitin Gadkari recently said that hydrogen is the fuel of the future and can be got from municipal waste.

Kanakia said that TGBL is discussing with other state municipalities across the country to implement and set up similar plants in the future.

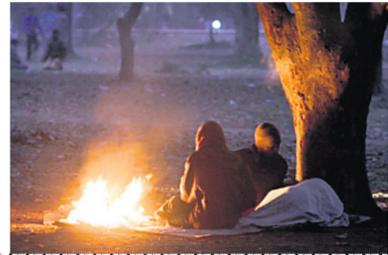

"We are looking at partnering with cash rich municipal corporations anywhere in India. In fact, we want to join hands with Guwahati Municipal Corporation under a public-private-partnership model," he added.

Govt running away from JPC probe: Congress

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

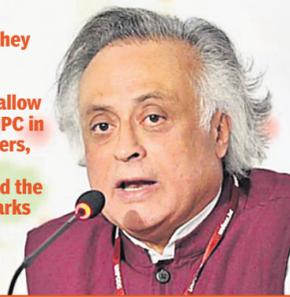

New Delhi, Feb 14: The Centre is "running away" from a JPC probe into the Adani-Hindenburg issue, the Congress alleged on Tuesday and said the government should allow the investigation if it has nothing to hide.

The Congress' attack on the government came after Union Home Minister Amit Shah's reported remarks that there is nothing for the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) to hide or be afraid of in the matter. Addressing a press conference at the AICC headquarters here, Congress general secretary Jairam Ramesh said he has written to Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Governor Shaktikanta Das and Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) chief Madhabi Puri Buch for an impartial probe into allegations against the Adani Group.

Reacting to Shah's reported remarks, Ramesh said, "If they do not have anything to hide, why are they running away from a Joint Parliamentary Committee (probe)."

If they do not have anything to hide, why are they running away from a Joint Parliamentary Committee (probe). They do not even allow us to raise the demand of JPC in Parliament. When our leaders, including party president Mallikarjun Kharge ji, raised the demand for JPC, their remarks were expunged were expunged," Ramesh said.

If there is nothing to hide, the government should allow a JPC, he stressed. On Monday, the Centre agreed to the Supreme Court's proposal to set up a panel of experts to look into strengthening regulatory mechanisms for the stock market in the wake of the recent crash of Adani Group shares triggered by Hindenburg Research's fraud allegations.

Saying it has no objection to constituting the panel, the Centre also stressed that market regulator SEBI and other statutory bodies are "fully equipped" to deal with the situation, not only regime wise, but otherwise as well. According to Ramesh, it is important to look at the petition filed in the court.

Investigation should be against Adani and its ties with the government, the Congress leader said.

He also clarified that the Congress is in favour of private investments, which need to be encouraged. "We have always said we are in favour of entrepreneurship and that is the way forward for economic development. We are against blind privatisation and selling of PSUs."

The Congress, Ramesh said, backs liberalisation but this should be on the basis of rules and institutions which should function independently so rules can be applied in an impartial and transparent manner. Our fight is against crony capitalism, he asserted.

He also claimed that all

Several events were organised across the country to mark the fourth anniversary of the attack with the CRPF holding a series of functions, including the one at the Pulwama Martyrs' Memorial in Kashmir's Lethpora.

Unemployed man must find job to give alimony: K'taka HC

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Bangalore, Feb 14: In a major judgment, Karnataka High Court has ruled that an unemployed husband should find a job to provide alimony to the wife.

While delivering his verdict on Monday, a single-judge bench of Justice M. Nagaprasanna said, "It is the duty of the husband to provide alimony to his wife and children. So, if jobless, he should find a job, earn and provide it."

The bench quashed the man's petition of appeal questioning the verdict in this regard by a

He also stated that, no matter how hard he toiled, his earnings would never exceed ₹15,000 per month and so he is not in a position to pay the alimony.

The local family court had ordered compensation of ₹6,000 to the wife and ₹4,000 for the child. The bench further pointed out that ₹10,000 is not a big amount. The man's argument that he is not in a position to provide the amount is just an excuse.

3 fatally shot, five hurt at Michigan State University

East Lansing (US), Feb 14: A gunman opened fire Monday night at Michigan State University, killing three people and wounding five more, and police urged frightened students and others to shelter in place as they searched for the suspect. Hundreds of officers were scouring the East Lansing campus, about 90 miles (145 kilometers) northwest of Detroit, for the suspect, who police described as a short Black man with red shoes, a jean jacket and ball cap. "There are three confirmed fatalities. This is in addition to the five victims who have been transported to the hospital," campus police said on Twitter. The shootings began shortly before 8:30 p.m. At Berkey Hall, an academic building, and also occurred nearby at the student union, a popular gathering spot, said Chris Rozman, interim deputy chief of the campus police department. Students were ordered to shelter in place for hours. Rozman urged parents to stay away. "I can only imagine the emotion that's involved right now. ... We are doing everything we can to ensure the safety of our campus and all of our students," he said. The five victims were taken to Sparrow Hospital, said hospital spokesperson John Foren, who had no information on their conditions. mBy 10:15 p.m., police said Berkey, as well as nearby residence halls, were secured. Separately, police on Twitter reported a shooting at IM East, a recreational center for students. But Rozman didn't mention it during a news briefing and said there had been false reports of additional shootings. Aedan Kelley, a junior who lives a half-mile (less than a kilometer) east of campus, said he locked his doors and covered his windows "just in case." Sirens were constant, he said, and a helicopter hovered overhead. "It's all very frightening," Kelley said. "And then I have all these people texting me wondering if I'm OK, which is overwhelming." Pakistan in bailout bid sharply raises natural gas taxes

Islamabad, Feb 14: Cash-strapped Pakistan sharply increased taxes on natural gas Tuesday to comply with a long-stalled financial bailout, and both industrial and everyday consumers were expected to feel the pain. The government's bid to receive a $6 billion bailout from the International Monetary Fund led it to hike taxes on natural gas for domestic and industrial consumers from 16 per cent to 112 per cent, shocking many Pakistanis who already are struggling. A similar increase in the price of electricity is expected to be announced this week. "The prices of cooking oil and all food items have doubled in the past less than one year, but there has not been any increase in our income," said Zameen Gul, 32, a father of three who works for a construction company in Peshawar. "I don't know how we are going to survive." Pakistan is struggling with instability stemming from an economic crisis, last summer's devastating floods and a recent surge in violence. A critical $1.2 billion portion of the 2019 bailout has been stalled since December, with the IMF urging Pakistan to raise more cash. The tax hike on natural gas Tuesday is likely to further increase the cost of production and an increase in already spiraling inflation, experts said. "Pakistan's economy is currently like a rudderless ship, which is heading for a crash," said Ashfaq Ahmad, a Pakistani economist who has advised the government in the past.

"We turned away from fear toward God and the values that still make our country the freest and greatest in the world. We must turn in that direction again," she said. Casting herself as a younger, fresher alternative to Trump, Haley had been hinting at a White House bid for weeks. Her formal declaration means she will be the first contender to join the contest against her former 76-year-old boss Trump, who announced his third bid for the White House late last year. Haley has pitched herself as a stalwart defender of American interests abroad. During her stint as an ambassador to the United Nations, the United States pulled out of the Iran nuclear deal, which was signed under Democratic President Barack Obama and was highly unpopular among Republicans. One Haley associate said she chose to launch her campaign this early to try to grab voters' attention and shake up the race. Many key Republican donors and elected officials in South Carolina have been looking for alternatives to Trump amid concerns about his electability, according to conversations in recent weeks with more than a dozen party officials and strategists. Several prominent Republicans, including Haley and Scott, opted to skip a Trump campaign appearance last month in Columbia that was intended to showcase his support in the state. Among Haley's major challenges will be nailing down a consistent message.

Haley's 3-minute 30 seconds video starts with her voiceover, describing the racial divide of the city she was born in. Born Nimrata Nikki Randhawa to immigrant Punjabi Sikh parents, Haley is the third Indian-American to run for US presidency in three consecutive election cycles. Bobby Jindal ran in 2016 and Vice President Kamala Harris in 2020. Haley is the second woman of colour to ever seek the Republican Party's nomination for the White House. The first was Angel Joy Chavis Rucker, a school counsellor from Florida, who entered the 2000 presidential race, becoming the first African-American to do so.

Ukraine seeks warplanes

Zelenskyy pushed hard for combat planes last week when he visited London, Paris and Brussels on just his second foreign trip since Russia invaded February 24, 2022. That plea came days after Western allies pledged to provide Kyiv with tanks

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brussels, Feb 14: Ukraine Tuesday renewed its appeal to Western countries for fighter jets to help frustrate Moscow's invasion, but the United States and its NATO allies and partners are more concerned about Kyiv's needs for large amounts of ammunition as the war with Russia is set to enter its second year. Ahead of the meeting of the Ukraine contact group at NATO headquarters, Ukraine made its requirements clear. Defence Minister Oleksiy Reznikov, when asked what military aid his country is seeking now, showed reporters an image of a fighter jet. Questioned about where he hoped they might come from, Reznikov said only: "From the sky." What NATO allies have on their mind, though, is how to keep up a steady supply of ammunition to Ukraine without depleting their own stockpiles. According to some estimates, Ukraine is firing up to 6,000-7,000 artillery shells each day, around a third of the daily amount that Russia is using. Moscow's forces have been pressing in the east of Ukraine while bolstering their defensive lines in the south. The war has been largely static during the winter months, though both sides are expected to launch offensives when the weather improves. The Russians appear short on resources for any major offensive at the moment, the UK Ministry of Defence said Tuesday. "Overall, the current operational picture suggests that Russian forces are being given orders to advance in most sectors, but that they have not massed sufficient offensive combat power on any one axis to achieve a decisive effect," it tweeted. German Defence Minister Boris Pistorius said that finding ammunition and air defences is "much more important at the moment than the discussion about fighter jets". Pistorius told reporters that getting pilots up to speed on new aircraft and "training just to fly them takes several months, never mind teaching the abilities needed to deploy the weapons systems". He said Ukraine's partners "should focus on what is now at center stage, particularly in view of a Russian offensive that is apparently taking place". He said Germany has signed a deal to produce ammunition for self-propelled, anti-aircraft guns it provided to Ukraine, after Kyiv ran into problems finding munitions elsewhere.

Camilla chooses crown without Kohinoor for coronation

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

London, Feb 14: Britain's Queen Consort, Camilla, has chosen a crown without the controversial colonial era Kohinoor diamond for her coronation ceremony with husband King Charles III at Westminster Abbey in May, Buckingham Palace said Tuesday. While the current version of Queen Mary's crown has a front cross set with a detachable rock crystal replica of the Kohinoor diamond, it isn't known yet if that would be retained after the changes are made for the coronation. "The choice of Queen Mary's Crown by Her Majesty is the first time in recent history that an existing crown will be used for the Coronation of a Consort instead of a new commission being made, in the interests of sustainability and efficiency," Buckingham Palace said. There had been speculation over the crown to be chosen by Camilla, with reports suggesting that the one worn by Charles' grandmother, the Queen Mother, which bears the Kohinoor, was a likely choice. However, it is believed that diplomatic sensitivity may have been considered in the final choice, even though the Queen Mary Crown also has a history of once being adorned with the controversial diamond. Kohinoor, which means mountain of light in Persian, came into Queen Victoria's possession from the treasury of Maharaja Ranjit Singh a few years before she was to be crowned Empress of India, and has played a starring role in British coronations of the past. "Some minor changes and additions will be undertaken by the Crown Jeweller, in keeping with the longstanding tradition that the insertion of jewels is unique to the occasion, and reflects the Consort's individual style. These changes will in particular pay tribute to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, as the crown will be reset with the Cullinan III, IV and V diamonds," the palace said. The Cullinan diamonds were part of Queen Elizabeth II's personal jewellery collection for many years and were often worn as brooches by the late monarch, who passed away aged 96 in September last year. The diamonds have been set into Queen Mary's Crown on previous occasions as well, when Cullinan

III and IV were set temporarily in the crown for the 1911 Coronation, and the Cullinan V was inserted when the crown was worn as a regal circlet at King George VI's coronation in 1937, the palace said. In addition, four of the Queen Mary Crown's eight detachable arches will be removed to create a "different impression" to when it was worn by Queen Mary at the 1911 coronation. Meanwhile, the palace also confirmed that St. Edward's Crown, which will be used for the Coronation of King Charles, has now returned to public display at the Tower of London, following the completion of its modification work for the grand Westminster Abbey ceremony.

ONGC Q3 net jumps 26%

New Delhi: State-owned Oil and Natural Gas Corporation (ONGC) reported a 26 per cent jump in its third quarter net profit on the back of a rise in oil and natural gas prices. Net profit of ₹11,044.73 crore, or ₹8.78 per share, in October-December compared with ₹8,763.72 crore, or ₹6.97 per share, in the same period a year back, according to a company's stock exchange filing. The profit was, however, lower than the ₹12,825.99 crore earnings in the immediately preceding quarter of July-September. The rise in profitability was helped by higher realisation on crude oil and gas the firm produces and sells. This offset the continuing decline in oil and gas production.

AI to buy record 470 Airbus, Boeing jets

THE TOTAL VALUE OF THE DEAL, ONE OF THE LARGEST BY AN AIRLINE, IS ESTIMATED TO BE WORTH USD 80 BILLION

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi/Washington/London, Feb 14: In one of the largest aircraft orders by an airline, Tata Group-owned Air India Tuesday announced it will buy 470 narrow-body and wide-body planes from Airbus and Boeing, with the total deal value estimated to be worth USD 80 billion (over ₹6.40 lakh crore).

Air India will buy 250 aircraft, including 40 wide-body A350 planes, from European aviation major Airbus, and 220 planes from US aircraft maker Boeing under separate deals.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi described Air India-Airbus transaction as a 'landmark deal' that also reflects the deepening ties between India and France. The prime minister along with US President Joe Biden also welcomed the landmark agreement between Air India and Boeing as a shining example of mutually beneficial cooperation.

This is also the first time in more than 17 years that Air India, which was acquired from the government by Tata Group in January 2022, has ordered planes. The first A350 plane will be delivered to the airline by the end of this year.

"The order comprises 40 Airbus A350s, 20 Boeing 787s and 10 Boeing 777-9s wide-body aircraft, as well as 210 Airbus A320/321 Neos and 190 Boeing 737 MAX single-aisle aircraft. The A350 aircraft will be powered by Rolls-Royce engines, and the B777/787s by engines from GE Aerospace. All single-aisle aircraft will be powered by engines from CFM International," Air India said in a statement.

The airline has signed Letters of Intent with Airbus and Boeing.

In a message to Air India staff, CEO Campbell Wilson said that in addition to the 470 aircraft on firm order, the airline has secured a number of options and purchase rights.

"The firm part of the order alone is not just the largest order ever made by an Indian airline, it is one of the largest single aircraft orders by any airline, anywhere, ever, and testifies to India's unique combination of extraordinary scale and growth opportunity," he said.

The announcement of the aircraft purchase deal with Airbus was made at an online event that was attended by Modi, French President Emmanuel Macron, Union ministers Jyotiraditya Scindia and Piyush Goyal, Tata

Sons Chairman N Chandrababhan, Tata Group patriarch Ratan Tata, Air India CEO Campbell Wilson and Airbus CEO Guillaume Faury.

Macron said Air India's deal with Airbus for the acquisition of 250 aircraft was one of the milestones of the in-depth strategic and friendly partnership between India and France.

While announcing the Boeing-Air India deal Tuesday, Biden asserted that together with Prime Minister Narendra Modi, he was looking forward to deepen the ties between India and the US.

"I am proud to announce today the purchase of over 200 American-made aircraft through a historic agreement between Air India and Boeing," Biden said.

"Together with Prime Minister Modi, I look forward to deepening our partnership even further as we continue to confront shared global challenges - creating a more secure and prosperous future for all of our citizens," Biden said.

Over the course of production and delivery, the agreement will have USD 70 billion in total economic impact across the United States and support an estimated 1.47 million direct and indirect jobs.

In India currently, around 470 commercial aircraft of Airbus are in service and the European major's order book for Indian airlines is around 850 planes. Indian carriers operate around 159 Boeing planes.

WPI inflation at 2-yr low of 4.73 pc in Jan

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Feb 14: The wholesale price-based inflation declined to 2-year low of 4.73 per cent in January on easing prices of manufactured items, fuel and power, even though food articles turned expensive.

This is the eighth straight month of decline in the rate of wholesale price-index (WPI) based inflation.

It was 4.95 per cent in December 2022 and 13.68 per cent in January last year.

"Decline in the rate of inflation in January, 2023 is primarily contributed by mineral oils, chemicals & chemical products, textiles, crude petroleum & natural gas, textiles, and food products," the Commerce and Industry Ministry said Tuesday. The decline in the rate of price rise was mainly due to a favourable base effect, economists said, adding that going forward, softening commodity prices would help ease WPI inflation further. Although inflation in manufactured items softened, in the case of food articles it rose to 2.38 per cent in January, from (-) 1.25 per cent in December, 2022.

Inflation in pulses was 2.41 per cent, while in vegetables it was (-) 26.48 per cent.

Inflation in oil seeds was (-) 4.22 per cent in January, 2023.

Fuel and power basket inflation eased to 15.15 per cent, from 18.09 per cent in December. In manufactured products it was 2.99 per cent, against 3.37 per cent in December, 2022.

Sensex surges 600 pts to scale 61k-mark

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Mumbai, Feb 14: The BSE benchmark Sensex surged 600 points Tuesday, propelled by market heavy-weight RIL, ITC, banking and IT shares amid positive global cues.

Sliding crude oil prices in the international markets and buying by foreign investors also bolstered sentiment, traders said.

The 30-share BSE Sensex ended 600.42 points or 0.99 per cent higher at 61,032.26. During the session, the index witnessed a high of 61,102.74 and a low of 60,550.25.

The broader NSE Nifty surged 158.95 points or 0.89 per cent to finish at 17,929.85. ITC topped the Sensex gainers' chart with a jump of 3.31 per cent, followed by Reliance Industries, Bajaj Finance, ICICI Bank, Infosys, Axis Bank and Wipro.

On the other hand, NTPC, UltraTech Cement, L&T, Sun Pharma, Asian Paints and Maruti were among the major laggards, shedding as much as 1.10 per cent.

Elsewhere in Asia, markets in Shanghai, Tokyo and Seoul posted gains, while Hong Kong settled lower.

The US markets had ended significantly higher in the overnight session. The rupee fell by 12 paise to close at 82.82 (provisional) against the US dollar Tuesday, as market participants remained on the sidelines ahead of the US inflation data. International oil benchmark Brent crude was trading 0.67 per cent lower at USD 86.03 per barrel.

Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) remained net buyers in the capital market Monday as they purchased shares worth ₹1,322.39 crore, according to exchange data.

JANUARY INFLATION SHOCKER

Another 25 bps rate hike in April likely

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Mumbai, Feb 14: As retail inflation jumped to a three-month high of 6.52 per cent in January, analysts at two foreign brokerages said there is a clear case for the Reserve Bank of India to announce another 25-basis point hike in key interest rate in April.

Domestic analysts have also increased their inflation forecast but without offering a view on the RBI's next bi-monthly policy review scheduled in April.

In January, retail inflation breached the Reserve Bank's upper tolerance level of 6 per cent after two months of deceleration and touched a three-month high of 6.52 per cent, mainly due to higher prices in the food basket, including cereals and protein-rich items.

Barring November and December 2022, retail inflation has remained above the 6 per cent level throughout 2022. The previous high was 6.77 per cent in October 2022.

Deutsche Bank economists in a report Tuesday said the January inflation shocker justifies another 25 basis point (bps) hike in its next monetary policy scheduled in April.

The analysts do not see rate hikes beyond April, but said clearly the risks have risen for rates to be higher for longer. They also do not see the RBI changing the current monetary policy stance of withdrawal of accommodation anytime soon.

They said the sharp spike in January inflation was led mainly by the cereals component, which was up 16.1 per cent on-year, making it the highest increase recorded in the current CPI (Consumer Price Index) series and thus reversing the entire improvement seen in the inflation trajectory since November 2022.

Cereals have a weight of almost 10 per cent in the CPI basket.

The January CPI print essentially neutralises all the improvement seen in the CPI trajectory since the positive surprise in November when CPI inflation unexpectedly eased to 5.9 per cent, they said and projected that CPI inflation will average about 6.3 per cent in the March quarter, with February CPI likely around similar levels to January and March likely to fall slightly below 6 per cent.

For FY24, they expect CPI inflation to average about 5.5 per cent, up from the earlier forecast of 5 per cent.

Similarly, Tanvee Gupta Jain, UBS India economist, the surprise spike in the January inflation print largely came in from higher than expected food inflation and this was something the last monetary policy noted.

Demat accounts grow 31% to 11 crore in January

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, Feb 14: The number of demat accounts rose to 11 crore in January, a surge of 31 per cent on a yearly basis, amid attractive returns from the equity markets, ease of account opening process and increased financial savings.

Also, the incremental additions of such accounts were higher in January than in the preceding four months. However, it was still below the financial year 2021-22 (FY22) average run-rate of 29 lakh.

The incremental additions of such accounts stood at 22 lakh last month, compared to 21 lakh in December, 18 lakh each in October and November and 20 lakh in September, according to an analysis by Motilal Oswal Financial Services.

As per the data, the number of demat accounts rose to 11 crore in January 2023, registering a growth of 31 per cent.

Market experts believe that the addition in dematerialised (demat) accounts over the last one year was mainly due to attractive returns given by the equity markets and the ease of account opening process offered by brokers to their clients.

Also, increased financial literacy and the growing popularity of trading amongst youth have been some other major factors contributing to the rise, they added.

While the number of demat accounts continues to rise, the count of National Stock Exchange (NSE) active clients has been falling for seven consecutive months.

The number of active accounts at the NSE dropped 2.9 per cent month-on-month to 3.4 crore in January, making it the seventh consecutive monthly decline. On a year-on-year basis, the number of such active users rose 2.7 per cent.

The intensity of the fall was higher at 10.4 lakh accounts in January as compared to 7 lakh for the past three months.

At present, the top five discount brokers - Zerodha, Angel One, Groww, ICICI Securities and IIFL Securities - account for 59.2 per cent of the overall NSE active clients during the period under review, down from 59.3 per cent in December.

Meanwhile, the capital market sentiment of India Inc was negative in January with the NSE's benchmark index Nifty declining 2.9 per cent month-on-month. However, the volatility increased toward the end of the month, in anticipation of the Union Budget announcement February 1.

Cryptoverse: A resurrection of NFTs

REUTERS

New York, Feb 14: It's alive! The NFT market is twitching out of its torpor, defying reports of its demise.

Total NFT sales on the ethereum blockchain - which hosts most trading - jumped to $780.2 million in January from $546.9 million the month before, according to market tracker CryptoSlam.

Digital art collectibles were among the big hits. "Bored Ape Yacht Club #5840" - a cartoon monkey shooting green lasers from its eyes - went for $822,730, for example, while "CryptoPunks #7674" - a pixelated character smoking a pipe - fetched $433,555.

The average NFT sale price was a more modest $372.38, according to CryptoSlam.

The $780 million of sales seen last month is a fraction of the roughly $5 billion seen last January and $2.7 billion in May, before the market took a non-fungible nosedive along with much of the crypto world.

Nonetheless the market's been inching back since November after hitting a low of $324 million the month before, according to CryptoSlam data, with some traders betting on a future for NFTs in gaming and branding.

"We will see another 2021-style run when we are able to really bring on board the next big wave of participants into the space," said Teng Yan, lead researcher at Delphi Digital, estimating that there are between 30,000 to 50,000 people who are actively trading NFTs right now.

MYSTERY AND AIRDROPS

Despite the nascent bounce, the future of non-fungible tokens remains shrouded in mystery. Few crypto experts expect a repeat of the 2021 boom anytime soon. Some doubt the long-term appeal of paymetaverse and blockchain game firm Alien Worlds, said NFTs had the potential to help companies and celebrities engage with customers and fans.

"The most promising aspect of this technology will be when more and more of the Disneys and Dua Lipas of the world increasingly turn to NFTs," McKenna added.

Some market players said the January rise in NFT sales volumes was also fueled by the entrance of a new online marketplace, Blur, which has drawn investor interest since it launched late last year and announced a series of free coin "airdrops" and other rewards.

NFT trading volumes on Blur's platform has totaled 101.2 million over the last seven days, slightly ahead of the $100.4 million seen on dominant marketplace OpenSea, according to data from DappRadar.

Over the past 30 days, though, OpenSea remains top with volumes of $443.98 million, versus $366 million for Blur.

BITCOIN JOINS NFT PARTY

In another non-fungible development, the novel use of the bitcoin blockchain for minting an NFT collection has caused a stir among crypto enthusiasts.

Bitcoin Punks is a series of monkey-themed NFTs and a derivative of the wildly popular CryptoPunks collection. Some media reports have indicated Bitcoin Punk NFT being sold for as much as 9.5 bitcoin, worth in the region of $205,000.

"We are going through a little bit of a hype phase for this because it's just new, it's novel, and people are rushing to try and be the first few people to mint NFTs on bitcoin," said Teng Yan at Delphi Digital, noting there was no marketplace for bitcoin NFTs, with all transactions done over the counter.

"The hype will die down over the next couple of weeks."

Jemimah, Richa move up in ICC T20I rankings

DUBAI: India's Jemimah Rodrigues and Richa Ghosh have moved to the 11th and 36th spots respectively among batters in the latest ICC Women's T20I Player Rankings released Tuesday. The duo progressed after guiding India to victory against Pakistan in the Women's T20 World Cup opener. While Rodrigues has moved from 13th to 11th after her unbeaten 52, Ghosh is up from 42nd to 36th following her 31 not out. Vice-captain Smriti Mandhana, who missed the opener due to a finger injury, remains the top-ranked India in third place. Mandhana's opening partner Shafali Verma too remained static at the 10th place. Alyssa Healy moved up two places to seventh while Sri Lanka's Chamari Athapaththu gained one spot to reach ninth position. In the bowling rankings, spinners Sophie Ecclestone of England and Nonkululeko Mlaba of South Africa have consolidated their positions as the top two. Meanwhile, Ashleigh Gardner remains the top all-rounder in the format while Hayley Matthews and New Zealand's Amelia Kerr have inched up a place each to third and fourth positions. England leg-spinner Sarah Glenn has moved up to third position.

for a better opponent than a familiar West Indies side, whom India beat twice in the recent tri-series. If India want to win the title, the batting department too has to pull up its socks. It if wasn't for young Richa Ghosh's three boundaries on the trot in the 18th over, India would have been unable to cross the line. The big-hitting Shafali Verma, fresh from leading India to the inaugural U-19 World Cup title, didn't look her imperious best against Pakistan. She struggled to get the big shots. Opening the innings in the absence of Mandhana, Yastika Bhatia struggled for rhythm while skipper Harmanpreet Kaur too perished without making an impact. India will breathe a sigh of relief that Jemimah Rodrigues, a proven match-winner, hit form after a underwhelming run as she anchored the innings but the middle-order batter will have to manage her strike rate better and go for the big shots.

The addition of Mandhana, a vital cog in this Indian team's scheme of things, will no doubt bolster the batting.

West Indies, on the other hand, will be eager to register their first win in the tournament having been thrashed by England in their opener. The Hayley Matthews-led side is enduring a wretched run, having lost 14 matches on the trot.

They will once again turn to skipper Matthews who has oodles of experience. The skipper is no stranger to delivering on the big stage. However, the skipper needs the others to step up, especially the experienced Stefanie Taylor, who has returned from a back injury.

It will be a crucial fixture for West Indies as a loss would knock the former champions out of the semi-final contention.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Nagpur, Feb 14: Wicketkeeper batter Alex Carey Tuesday said that Australia will continue playing Test matches the way they have been doing in the past 12-18 months, brushing aside former captain Allan Border's criticism that the visitors need to play hard and tough.

Australia lost the first Test by a colossal margin of an innings and 123 runs to trail the four-match series 0-1, which led to sharp criticism from Border who said the visitors were acting too nice and need to "play with a harder edge".

Border singled out Steve Smith for giving a "thumb's up" gesture to Ravindra Jadeja after he was beaten by a delivery by the India all-rounder. Border called the act "ridiculous." "We highly respect Allan Border. I guess among the group, guys do it differently. We come up against these players a lot," Carey said.

"You're probably alluding to the Steve Smith comment more than any but, you know, he's mates with a lot of them. And that's the way he (Smith) plays. He does it in all situations. He plays around with his hands and does all that stuff. And I think that's probably what gets him pretty focused."

Despite the heavy loss, Carey said the Australian camp is positive and they are backing themselves to bounce back in Delhi. "It is the first Test of four and we're still very positive amongst ourselves that we'll be able to bounce back in Delhi and get this series back on level (terms) and continue to believe in what we've done over the past 12 to 18 months," said Carey.

"I think we're a really strong Test team. We've got all bases covered. Unfortunately it didn't go to plan this first Test, but we're definitely reinforcing the messages we've had leading into the tour."

The 31-year said the atmosphere in the middle during the first Test was anything but friendly. "I don't think so, I think it's Test cricket, it's over in India and we know how tough it can be over here," he said.

"Proactive" has been a keyword for Australia in this tour of India but Carey felt he got a little too proactive in the Nagpur Test. "You can fall into over-playing conditions and certain names. What you see before you go out to bat as well can change your method a bit," said Carey, who was out reverse-sweeping in both innings of the first Test.

"For myself today (at training) I went back to batting more than anything else and reacting to what's being bowled down at me and trusting that method. Maybe (I was) a little bit too keen to play a different style, but in my first Test over here that's not a bad learning to have."

Carey said the performance of the Indian spin duo of Jadeja and Axar Patel showed patience can be as effective as proactiveness.

"Hopefully I can find that balance — along with all our players as well. We obviously want to be proactive, but calm and patient (as well), and we had a pretty good look at that first-hand with a few of their players. At times it might be (required to bat) in fast-forward mode but Jadeja and Axar showed as well, you can be pretty patient."

GREEN-TOP PITCH FOR RANJI SUMMIT CLASH

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Kolkata, Feb 14: A green-top pitch will be on offer for Bengal-Saurashtra Ranji Trophy summit clash beginning here Thursday. Pace bowling has been Bengal's main strength with the troika of Akash Deep (37), Ishan Porel (24) and Mukesh Kumar (18) accounting for the most number of wickets this season.

Two days ahead of the match, the Eden Gardens centre strip sported a green cover and Cricket Association of Bengal pitch curator Sujan Mukherjee said there would be no "further trimming".

"Our pace bowling is much better than Saurashtra and we will have a similar grass cover on the pitch, there is no further scope for trimming," Mukherjee told reporters.

Asked whether toss would be a factor, he said: "As always, the first and the last hour at Eden Gardens are crucial when wicket aids seam movement. It would be no different this time. Toss won't be a big advantage.

Luck has been with the Bengal side this season, and I hope they win the title this time."

Two-time champions Bengal are yet to win the Ranji Trophy since 1989-90. Since then, they have made the final four times, the last being in 2019-20 when they lost to Saurashtra.

Bengal's last Ranji triumph also had come at the Eden Gardens and they would look to end the prolonged drought, with a 'sweet revenge' against Saurashtra.

Captain of the 1989-90 triumph Sambaran Banerjee would ring the 'Eden Bell' to signal the start of the match on Thursday, president Snehasish Ganguly said. Snehasish was also a member of that side along with his younger brother Sourav Ganguly who is currently in the UK.

To make the occasion special, the CAB would throw open certain gates of Eden Gardens. "The lower tiers of B C blocks and KL blocks on either side of the clubhouse would be thrown open to the general public who want to come and cheer for their home side. We want people to come and support us in numbers."

GAKPO GETS HIS FIRST GOAL FOR LIVERPOOL, WHILE KLOPP CELEBRATES HIS 250TH WIN AS THE MANAGER OF THE PREMIER LEAGUE GIANTS

Reds beat Everton in Merseyside derby

Liverpool, Feb 14: With three fist pumps in front of the home fans, Jurgen Klopp celebrated his 250th win as Liverpool manager after beating Everton 2-0.

Victory in the Merseyside derby is always something to savor in these parts. But such have been Liverpool's troubles in recent weeks that a win of any description would have been gratefully received by the Anfield crowd.

Sitting ninth in the standings, this was a first victory in the Premier League in 2023 for Liverpool and only the second in eight games in all competitions.

While a Champions League-qualifying place in the top four is still nine points off, there were signs that the win in the 242nd Merseyside derby can provide a lift-off for manager Klopp's faltering team.

January signing Cody Gakpo scored for the first time for his new club and there was good news on the injury front as fit-again Diogo Jota and Roberto Firmino came off the bench in the second half. Virgil van Dijk, who has also been out with injury, was an unused substitute.

This season has been quite the come down for a Liverpool team that challenged for an unprecedented quadruple last year.

There have, however, been mitigating circumstances, with Klopp having to cope with injuries to key players, while also learning to live without forward Sadio Mane, who left for Bayern Munich last summer.

Still, the team's erratic form has been hard for fans to take, with the Champions League their only realistic hope of a trophy this season.

In the league, fourth place remains a distant target, with a humbling 0-3 loss to Wolverhampton in Liverpool's previous match being a measure of its struggles. Hardly surprising then that Klopp celebrated so enthusiastically in front of the Kop.

There was nothing for new Everton manager Sean Dyche to cheer as he was consigned to defeat in his first Merseyside derby and couldn't build on the morale-boosting win against league-leading Arsenal in his opening game in charge.

It might have been different for Everton if James Tarkowski's first-half header had found the back of the net, rather than rebounding off the post.

Within moments it was the visitors who were behind as Liverpool immediately countered and Mo Salah opened the scoring in the 36th minute. Gakpo sealed the win when he tapped in from close range in the 49th.

Everton are in the relegation zone, one point behind 17th-placed Leeds. Liverpool will travel to fourth-placed Newcastle next.
