7 AI flights cancelled

The hardships of international fliers from India, especially those travelling by Air India, seem to be far from over following the tragic crash of AI-171, a Boeing 787-8 Dreamliner, at Ahmedabad. While AI's Delhi-bound flight returned to its airport of origin Monday due to technical issues, seven more flights from India to different international destinations were cancelled Tuesday for various reasons. Though the chaos follow intensified operational scrutiny, what frustrates the passengers is the last-minute cancellations and inadequate customer support

BOMB THREAT TO INDIGO FLIGHT

Kochi: A bomb threat was Tuesday received with regard to an Indigo flight which arrived here from Muscat and departed for Delhi, prompting it to make an emergency landing at Nagpur airport for undergoing inspection, the Cochin International Airport Ltd (CIAL) said. It said that the threat was received on its official email ID about the Indigo flight which departed for Delhi with 157 passengers and six crew members at 9.31 am. Subsequently, a Bomb Threat Assessment Committee (BTAC) was convened and the threat was declared as 'specific', CIAL said.

checks. The other flights cancelled during the day included Bengaluru-London, London-Amritsar, Delhi-Vienna, Delhi-Dubai and Mumbai-San Francisco.

In a statement earlier in the day, Air India said flight AI143 from Delhi to Paris has been cancelled after "mandatory pre-flight checks identified an issue which is being presently addressed". It did not detail the issue that came to light during pre-flight checks.

"However, in view of the flight coming under the restrictions on night operations at Paris Charles de Gaulle (CDG) airport, the said flight has been cancelled," Air India said. Many passengers flying in and out of India expressed their frustration over last minute cancellations and lack of customer support, a source revealed.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Mumbai/Kolkata, June 17: Troubles continued at Air India, which is facing the biggest crisis since Tata group bought the airline three-and-a-half years back, with as many as seven international flights being cancelled Tuesday for varied reasons, bringing the total number of cancellations to 83 since the devastating Ahmedabad crash. Besides, a glitch forced fliers on San Francisco-Mumbai flight to deplane during a stopover at Kolkata.

While Air India cancelled six international flights due to aviation regulator DGCA subjecting its Dreamliner fleet to enhanced checks, the Ahmedabad-London Gatwick one was cancelled due to unavailability of aircraft, the airline said.

No major safety concerns with B787 fleet: DGCA

Suspected spurious liquor claims 2 in City

Bhubaneswar, June 17: The state government Tuesday sealed a liquor shop here following allegations that two persons died after consuming alcohol bought from the outlet, an official said.

After receiving allegations from some locals of the Laxmisagar area here, a team of excise officials collected some samples from the liquor shop located near the station bazaar and sealed it.

"We have information that some people have been hospitalised after consuming liquor from the shop. We have collected some liquor samples from the shop for testing and sealed it," the Deputy Superintendent of Excise, Bhubaneswar, Raj Sekhar Swain, said.

According to locals, a group of youths bought liquor from the shop and conducted a feast. After that four to five persons became seriously ill and were admitted to a hospital and two of them died, they alleged.

However, the alleged death of two persons due to illicit liquor or food poisoning or some other reason can be ascertained after post-mortem examination and an investigation, another excise official said.

Earlier, irate over the deaths of the two young men, locals staged a protest in front of the liquor shop and demanded its closure and action against the owner and employees for allegedly selling spurious liquor.

The protesters also demanded adequate compensation for the families of the deceased and free treatment for the others who are currently fighting for their lives.

Donald Trump seeks Iran's unconditional surrender

Washington, June 17: President Donald Trump said Tuesday the US knows where Iran's Ayatollah Ali Khamenei is hiding but doesn't want him killed "for now." Trump urged, in a social media posting, Iran's "UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER" as the five-day conflict continues to escalate.

"We know exactly where the so-called 'Supreme Leader' is hiding," Trump added. "He is an easy target, but is safe there - We are not going to take him out (kill), at least not for now. But we don't want missiles shot at civilians, or American soldiers. Our patience is wearing thin."

Trump's comments towards Tehran come after urging Tehran's 9.5 million residents to flee for their lives as he cut short his visit to an international summit to return to Washington for urgent talks with his national security team.

Trump, as he made his way back to Washington, expressed frustration with Iranian leader-

SHADMANI KILLED IN ISRAELI STRIKE

Tehran: The Israeli military said Tuesday it killed Iran's top military commander, Ali Shadmami, in an overnight strike, calling him the closest figure to Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. In a statement, the military said following "a sudden opportunity overnight, the (Israeli air force) struck a staffed command centre in the heart of Tehran and eliminated Ali Shadmami, the wartime Chief of Staff, the most senior military commander, and the closest figure to Iranian Supreme Leader Ali Khamenei." The Israeli military said Shadmami had commanded both the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps and the Iranian armed forces.

I told them, 'Do the deal,'" Trump told reporters on Air Force One. "So I don't know. I'm not too much in the mood to negotiate." P10

European satellites create first artificial solar eclipse

Cape Canaveral, June 17: A pair of European satellites has created the first artificial solar eclipses by flying in precise and fancy formation, providing hours of on-demand totality for scientists.

The European Space Agency released the eclipse pictures at the Paris Air Show Monday. Launched late last year, the orbiting duo has churned out simulated solar eclipses since March while zooming tens of thousands of miles (kilometers) above Earth.

Flying 492 feet (150 meters) apart, one satellite blocks the sun like the moon does during a natural total solar eclipse as the other aims its telescope at the corona, the sun's outer atmosphere that forms a crown or halo of light.

It's an intricate, prolonged dance requiring extreme precision by the cube-shaped spacecraft, less than 5 feet (1.5 meters)

Dubbed Proba-3, the $210 million mission has generated 10 successful solar eclipses so far during the ongoing checkout phase. The longest eclipse lasted five hours, said the Royal Observatory of Belgium's Andrei Zhukov, the lead scientist for the orbiting corona-observing telescope. He and his team are aiming for a wondrous six hours of totality per eclipse once scientific observations begin in July.

Scientists already are thrilled by the preliminary results that show the corona without the need for any special image processing, said Zhukov.

"We almost couldn't believe our eyes," Zhukov said in an email. "This was the first try, and it worked. It was so incredible," he added.

Zhukov anticipates an average of two solar eclipses per week being produced for a total of nearly 200 during the two-year mission, yielding more than 1,000 hours of totality. That will be a scientific bonanza since full solar eclipses produce just a few minutes of totality when the moon lines up perfectly between Earth and the sun - on average just once every 18 months.

The sun continues to mystify scientists, especially its corona, which is hotter than the solar surface. Coronal mass ejections result in billions of tons of plasma and magnetic fields being hurled out into space. Geomagnetic storms can result, disrupting power and communication while lighting up the night sky with auroras in unexpected locales.

Chitrangada on cosmetic procedures

Mumbai: Chitrangada Singh has taken a firm stand against the online trolling celebrities face for opting for cosmetic enhancements. The Housefull 5 actress voiced her views during an interview on a YouTube channel, defending those in the entertainment industry—especially women—who choose to enhance their appearance to feel more confident.

"I think if somebody is in a visual medium and is using something to enhance themselves, it's absolutely fine," Chitrangada said. "We are evolving, so I feel that unnecessarily assassinating somebody's whole character over it—I don't approve of that at all." She emphasized that while constructive criticism is welcome, trolling often crosses the line. "Sometimes people say very demeaning things. It's very hurtful, and I'm shocked at times," she added.

Chitrangada's comments come at a time when public scrutiny of celebrities' looks has become increasingly harsh, often overshadowing their talent and work. Her honest take is being appreciated for calling out the double standards and encouraging a more accepting, supportive view of personal choices in the public eye.

Chitrangada recently appeared in Housefull 5, released June 6, 2025. AGENCIES

She further added that she'd like to steal Ananya Panday's skin, Keerthy Suresh's humility, Varun Dhawan's energy, Shah Rukh Khan's legacy, and Kriti Sanon's height.

Her response instantly set social media abuzz, especially on Reddit, where users drew comparisons between her and Aishwarya Rai, who had previously hinted at Karan Johar's special treatment of Alia. Some praised Wamiqa for her boldness. GOVT COMMITTED TO EMPOWERING FARMERS: CM

Majhi condemns Gopalpur shame

AGENCIES

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, June 17: The BJP government is committed to empowering farmers of Odisha, Chief Minister Mohan Charan Majhi said, Tuesday.

Addressing the Kisan Shakti Samavesh, which was being held in Bolangir to mark one year of the BJP government in the state, Majhi said, "Our government is committed to empowering farmers of the state. Efforts are underway to increase their income by different means."

"One of our major election promises was to ensure fair value for the hard work of lakhs of our farmer brothers and sisters — a promise we have fulfilled," he said. As soon as the new government took the oath of office June 12, 2024, it decided to provide ₹800 towards per quintal of paddy as input subsidy to the farmers, Majhi said.

He noted that over 60 per cent of the state's population depends on agriculture and allied sectors for their livelihood.

Highlighting the government's achievements, the Chief Minister said that as of May, 78,681 units of agricultural machinery have been distributed, with subsidies amounting to ₹459.68 crore provided directly to farmers through DBT (direct benefit transfer).

Majhi urged citizens to support the growth of agriculture and help establish it as the backbone of the country's economy.

"We are working with full commitment to expand irrigation facilities across farmlands.

Our target is to bring irrigation to 15 lakh hectares of currently un-irrigated land within five years," he added.

The Chief Minister described the Viksit Krishi Sankalp Abhiyan, launched May 29 from Sakhigopal in Puri, as a significant milestone in agricultural development, aligning with Prime Minister Narendra Modi's vision for the sector.

Detailing the ongoing agricultural initiatives, Majhi said the Shree Anna Abhiyan is improving the livelihoods of small and marginal farmers through the revival of traditional crops and promotion of nutrition-based farming practices.

Under the CM Kisan Yojana, financial assistance of ₹4,000 is being provided to farmers, including those in urban areas.

On the occasion of Akshaya Tritiya, over 50 lakh small and marginal farmers, including 2,381 Particularly Vulnerable

The Chief Minister added that the CM Kisan Yojana is being integrated with the PM Kisan Yojana to provide enhanced financial support to farmers.

Bhubaneswar: Director General of Police (DGP) Yogesh Bahadur Khurania Tuesday called for strong will and professionalism among police officers in the effective implementation of India's new criminal laws. Speaking at a high-level workshop for senior police officers at Police Bhawan here, the DGP emphasised that these reforms require not just knowledge of the law but a committed and skillful approach to justice. The DGP described the new criminal laws as a 'historic shift from punishment-centric to justice-centric policing', highlighting that they represent a milestone in India's justice system. "These reforms will strengthen public trust in law enforcement by focusing on justice for victims rather than merely punishing offenders," he said. He stressed the critical role of the police as the primary enforcers of these laws. The DGP also advised senior officers to be deeply committed to upholding citizens' rights and dignity, reminding them that law enforcement must be balanced with respect for constitutional values and human rights.

Diarrhoea outbreak: Raids at eateries in Jajpur, twin cities

Capital Hospital's director Rupabhanu Mishra said a separate ward has been set up to treat diarrhoea patients

PNN & AGENCIES

Diarrhoea was first detected in Jajpur June 9. Over 200 patients are still under treatment in different healthcare facilities in the district, they said.

A team, led by Darpan's tehasildar Manas Tripathy, conducted raids at eateries, sweet shops and hotels in Barchana town in Jajpur.

ODISHA MARKS 50 YRS OF PROJECT CROCODILE

Min urges mass movement for crocodile conservation

Forest Minister Ganesh Ram Singkhuntia highlights Odisha's 50-year legacy as a global role model in crocodile conservation

PNN & AGENCIES

Bhubaneswar, June 17: Forest, Environment and Climate Change Minister, Ganeshram Singkhuntia, Tuesday appealed to people to make the conservation of crocodiles a mass movement.

The state celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Crocodile Conservation Project in Odisha here.

In a video message, which was played at the event organised on the occasion of International Crocodile Day, the minister said that Odisha is an important habitat for crocodiles as all the three crocodile species -- saltwater crocodile (Baula), Mugger and Gharials -- are found in the state.

"For the past 50 years, our state has been setting an example for the whole world in the conservation of crocodiles," he said.

He further said that crocodile conservation is not just about saving a single creature, it is a symbol of preserving the rivers, water bodies and the entire ecosystem.

Being an integral part of the food chain, crocodiles play a vital role in maintaining natural biodiversity by removing dead organisms from rivers, lakes and other water bodies, creating a healthy environment, Singkhuntia said.

Stating that the state is committed to the protection of water, forests and wildlife, he stated, "We must take a pledge to take forward the great work started by our ancestors towards nature and environment protection and turn it into a mass movement."

The challenge of today is to make the crocodile conservation project in the state as successful as possible by maintaining the ecological balance of the wetlands, he added.

Forest, Environment and Climate Change Additional Chief Secretary Satyabrata Sahu, said, "Today, we are not just celebrating an ordinary event, but we are celebrating 50 years of a unique and glorious journey of Odisha in the field of nature (crocodile) conservation."

About fifty years ago, the three species of crocodiles living in the rivers, lakes and reservoirs of Odisha were on the verge of extinction. Their number was limited to a handful, he said, while narrating the history behind the crocodile conservation project.

In that critical situation, in 1975, the ambitious project was launched in Odisha with the joint support of the Government of India and the United Nations, Sahu said, adding, Odisha's role in the success of this project has become an example for the whole world today.

From 96 Baula crocodiles in Bhitarkanika mangrove then, their number has increased to 1,880. Similarly, due to natural reproduction of the Gharial crocodile at Satkosia Gorge in Tikarpada of the Mahanadi, its number has increased to 16.

Due to successful breeding efforts, the state now has more than 200 Mugger crocodiles, he added. Principal Chief Conservator of Forests and Chief of Forest Force, Suresh Panth, highlighted the growing challenge of human-crocodile conflict due to shrinking habitats and loss of spawning grounds.

Principal Chief Conservator of Forest (Wildlife) & Chief Wildlife Warden Prem Kumar Jha outlined the project's key achievements, highlighting habitat restoration, community participation, and financial aid for individuals affected by crocodile-human conflicts.

Looking ahead, a national-level workshop on crocodile conservation will be held June 18, bringing together experts and forest officials from across the country.

Odisha Yatri App to roll out ambulance services

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhubaneswar, June 17: In a major boost to emergency medical response in Odisha, the state government has announced that its flagship mobility platform, the Odisha Yatri App, will soon include ambulance services, both government and private, under its umbrella.

Commerce and Transport Minister Bibhuti Bhushan Jena made the announcement Tuesday, highlighting the state's push to digitise and streamline emergency healthcare transportation. "Following the successful integration of autorickshaw and taxi services, Odisha Yatri App will now offer citizens the ability to book ambulances online. The Commerce and Transport department will initiate the process shortly," he said.

"This initiative marks a significant step in our commitment to an inclusive, citizen-centric transport and healthcare ecosystem," said Minister Jena, reaffirming the government's focus on equitable, accessible public services.

"The new service will be operated by Capital Region Urban Transport (CRUT), while the Transport department will manage the system's maintenance and regulatory oversight. The move is seen as a vital step toward improving last-mile healthcare delivery, especially in remote and underserved areas," he said.

The initiative stems from a broader government vision to create a seamless, tech-enabled platform that ensures timely access to medical transport. The app, launched last year and powered by the Open Network for Digital Commerce (ONDC), already offers various affordable transport services including AC and non-AC minicabs, sedans, inter-city rides, and rentals.

At a recent review meeting, Commerce and Transport department Principal Secretary Usha Padhee emphasised the importance of leveraging digital infrastructure for emergency healthcare. "Our aim is to bring all ambulances under a single, standardised platform to improve service reliability, ensure faster response times, and enhance citizen access," she noted.

To achieve this, the government plans to launch a campaign-mode registration drive for private ambulances, encouraging them to join the platform. These ambulances will be linked to the Vehicle Location

Tracking System (VLTS), enabling real-time GPS monitoring and efficient deployment during emergencies.

The platform will also feature a Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) for ambulance fare regulation, a move designed to protect citizens from arbitrary or exploitative pricing. Incentives and regulatory clarity will be provided to encourage private ambulance operators to register and comply with service norms.

Officials underscored that strict enforcement mechanisms will be put in place to prevent unauthorised operations and ensure service quality. With the integration of ambulance services, the Odisha Yatri App is set to become a comprehensive mobility and emergency care solution for the people of Odisha.

Decaying carcass of female elephant found in Kuldiha

POST NEWS NETWORK

Nilagiri, June 17: The decomposed carcass of a female elephant was recovered from Kuldiha Wildlife Sanctuary, re-igniting concerns over the rising number of elephant deaths in the region.
Frequent deaths of the pachyderms over the past few years, despite Kuldiha being officially recognised by the state government as an elephant sanctuary, have raised serious questions about the effectiveness of patrols and conservation efforts by the Forest department. Environmentalists warn that if the trend continues, the sanctuary could soon lose its elephant population altogether.
Local villagers reportedly noticed a foul odour Tuesday while grazing goats near the upper forested area of Putibandh on the foothills of the sanctuary. Upon investigating, they discovered the decomposed remains of an elephant.

Soon after the news spread, officials from the Kuldiha forest range office, including Range Officer Subrat Behera, reached the spot and informed the higher authorities, including the acting Divisional Forest Officer (DFO) of Balasore. Senior forest officials, a veterinary team, and local administration officials, including the Nilagiri additional tehsildar and police from Berhampur, also visited the location.
A preliminary investigation was conducted, and the carcass was sent for post-mortem examination. Though the exact cause of death is yet to be determined, the DFO stated that it will be revealed once the post-mortem report is available.
The incident has sparked public concern, especially as the Forest department claims to conduct regular patrolling within the sanctuary. Locals have questioned how the elephant death could go unnoticed despite ongoing surveillance.

Coastal Kendrapara abuzz with fishing activity as ban lifted

PNN & AGENCIES

Kendrapara, June 17: After a gap of six-and-a-half months, marine fishermen in Kendrapara district have resumed fishing activities following the lifting of the annual fishing ban within a 20-km radius of the Gahirmatha Marine Sanctuary.
The Odisha Marine Fisheries department had imposed the ban from November 1, 2024 to May 30, 2025, in accordance with the provisions of the Orissa Marine Fishing Regulation Act (OMFRA), 1982.
In addition, a second ban was in effect from April 15, 2024 to June 14, 2025, under the Wildlife Protection Act, 1972, the OMFRA, and the Orissa Marine Fishing Rules, 1983.
These measures aimed to protect the endangered Olive Ridley sea turtles, which nest in large numbers at Gahirmatha.
The ban was introduced with conservation in mind, as trawlers using fine-mesh nets risk capturing eggs and juvenile fish, thereby disrupting the breeding cycle and depleting fish population.
With the fishing season now open, trawler and mechanised boat owners performed traditional rituals, worshipping their vessels and the sea god 'Baruna' before setting out.

"More than 25 to 30 boats ventured into the sea on the first day," said Tushar Sardar, an office-bearer of the Maa Ramchandi Boat Owners' Association in Kharanashi.
The Marine Fisheries department has directed fishermen to carry valid registration certificates and licences for their boats or trawlers before going to the sea. They are also required to carry their biometric marine fishery identity cards, according to official sources.
Although the fishing ban in general waters has been lifted, fishermen have been strictly prohibited from entering the Gahirmatha Marine Sanctuary with trawlers. The Forest department enforces a year-round ban on fishing within the sanctuary limits.
"Any act of trespassing and fishing within the Gahirmatha Marine Sanctuary will invite strict action. Forest personnel will not only arrest the violators but also seize their boats," warned Kapilendra Pradhan, Ranger of the Gahirmatha Marine Sanctuary.

After the victim filed a complaint at the Jeypore Mahila Police Station, a case (69/25) was registered and an investigation was launched.

Blood-soaked, hanging body of teen girl found; rape, murder suspected

POST NEWS NETWORK

Keonjhar, June 17: Police recovered the blood-soaked body of an 18-year-old girl student hanging from a tree near her house in Tentalapasi village under Harichandanpur block and Pandapada police limits Tuesday morning. It is suspected that she was raped before being murdered.
Family members cried foul over the incident claiming it to be a murder. Whether it is suicide or murder will be ascertained after a proper investigation, police said. The incident sparked tension in the area as villagers demanded immediate arrest of the culprit.

Police sent the body for post-mortem and started an investigation with the help of a scientific team, IIC Laxmikanta Pradhan of Pandapada police station said. Police also seized some clothes and other items from the spot, he said. A case was registered over a complaint lodged by the family members and further investigations are on, the IIC added.
It is suspected that the clothes found from the spot belong to the accused person, who left it behind while absconding from the spot in the dark of night. Locals suspect that the assailant might have hung her from a tree after killing her to give it a shape of suicide. The police can trace the accused by checking the mobile phone of the girl, locals said. Sources said the girl was in a relationship with a youth from the locality. Family members suspected him to be behind the brutal murder.

Man on run after murder bid on kin found dead

POST NEWS NETWORK

Bhograi, June 17: A day after a man, reportedly mentally unstable, assaulted his wife and two sons over a heated domestic dispute and rendered them critical at Aruhabruti-2 village under Kamarda police limits in Balasore district, his body was recovered from Subarnarekha river Tuesday.
Police identified the body as that of Prasant Jena in the presence of villagers. The body was handed over to the family members after a post-mortem.
The matter came to the fore after locals informed the fire personnel after they found the body floating in the river face down. Fire personnel recovered the body with a sand bag tied to its neck. Jena, 44, had hacked his wife Devikarani Jena, 32, and 5-year-old son Kartik with an axe. Seething in anger, he had also pushed his 2-year-old son Ganesh over a wooden pole. Sacred streams of Gandhamardan draw devotees seeking redemption

Bolangir, June 17: Nestled in the verdant foothills of the Gandhamardan range, a region renowned for its natural beauty and unique biodiversity, lie the spiritually significant twin pilgrimage sites of Harishankar and Nrusinghanath. While Nrusinghanath adorns the northern slope of the hills in Bargarh district, Harishankar rests on the serene southern edge in Bolangir district. Both are revered tirthas (pilgrimage spots), steeped in mythological heritage and ecological wonder. Amid the rocky terrain, lush forests, and echoing valleys of Gandhamardan flow more than 30 perennial waterfalls, the most famous of which is 'Papanasini' — a sacred cascade near the Harishankar temple believed to possess the divine power to absolve sins. The name itself means 'the destroyer of sins'.

Every day, scores of pilgrims gather there, hoping to wash away their known and unknown sins in the crystal-clear waters of Papanasini. Many from Odisha and neighbouring Chhattisgarh consider this waterfall no less sacred than the Ganga river. Rituals like asthi visarjan (immersion of ashes), balpaka (tonsure ceremony of children), and various shuddhi karmas (purification rites) are routinely performed on its banks.

Locals believe that Papanasini's flowing waters hold a life force, an ethereal energy capable of purifying the soul. It is also said to offer liberation from serious transgressions, including the sin of cow slaughter (gohatya), through special prayers and offerings. Similarly revered is the waterfall near Nrusinghanath, which is also considered to be a sin-cleansing stream by devotees.

Adding to the sanctity of Gandhamardan is its reputation as a natural pharmacy. According to botanists and Ayurvedic experts, the hill range hosts over 1,000 rare medicinal herbs and plant species whose essence is believed to enrich the streams. This lends therapeutic properties to the water, which many claim can cure skin diseases and other ailments.
For the countless devotees who through these hills, the continuous streams of Papanasini and Papaharini are more than just natural wonders — they are a spiritual lifeline, flowing with ancient faith and unwavering devotion.

THE MOTHER

Trouble For Iran

The escalating conflict between Israel and Iran has plunged the Middle East into deeper turmoil, with ramifications stretching far beyond the region. The latest round of hostilities, marked by Israel's targeted strikes on Iran's nuclear sites and Iran's retaliatory ballistic missile launches, has intensified fears of a broader war. The situation is further complicated by the ongoing crisis in Gaza, the shifting dynamics of air superiority over Tehran, and the geopolitical maneuvering of global powers, including the United States.

The Middle East has long been a tinderbox of geopolitical tensions, but the latest Israel-Iran conflict threatens to ignite a full-scale regional war. Israel's Operation Rising Lion, launched on June 13, 2025, struck key Iranian nuclear and military sites, including Natanz and Fordow, killing top Iranian military leaders and nuclear scientists. Iran responded with a barrage of ballistic missiles, some of which breached Israel's defenses, striking Tel Aviv and Haifa. The exchange of fire has led to significant civilian casualties on both sides, with Iran reporting over 224 deaths and Israel confirming 24 fatalities.

One of the most striking developments in this conflict has been Israel's rapid establishment of air superiority over Tehran. Within 48 hours of launching its offensive, Israel claimed to have dismantled a significant portion of Iran's air defenses, allowing Israeli fighter jets to operate freely over Iranian airspace. This shift has given Israel a strategic advantage, enabling it to conduct further strikes with minimal resistance. The loss of air superiority has severely weakened Iran's ability to defend its territory, and its long-term military capabilities.

Israel's decision to strike Iran's nuclear facilities marks a significant escalation. The attacks on Natanz, Fordow, and Isfahan were aimed at crippling Iran's ability to develop nuclear weapons. While Israel has long viewed Iran's nuclear ambitions as an 'existential threat', the direct targeting of these sites has drawn international condemnation. The International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) has warned of potential radiological risks, though no elevated radiation levels have been detected so far. Iran, meanwhile, has vowed to rebuild its nuclear infrastructure, signaling that the conflict is far from over.

US President Donald Trump's abrupt departure from the G7 summit in Canada has added another layer of complexity to the crisis. Trump, who has historically been a staunch supporter of Israel, left the summit early, citing the escalating conflict. His administration has signaled tacit approval of Israel's actions, with Trump himself warning Iran to evacuate Tehran. While European leaders have called for de-escalation, Trump's stance suggests that the US may take a more active role in supporting Israel's military campaign.

Speculation is mounting over whether US aircraft based in Qatar will participate in Israel's strikes against Iran. Reports indicate that American military assets, including aerial refueling tankers, have been repositioned closer to the Middle East. The presence of US forces in the region raises questions about Washington's true level of engagement. If American air power was used with Israeli operations, it would mark a significant escalation.

Beyond the immediate military exchanges, the Israel-Iran conflict has far-reaching consequences. The crisis in Gaza remains unresolved, with civilians on all sides caught in the crossfire. The conflict has also disrupted global trade routes, particularly in the Strait of Hormuz, a vital artery for oil shipments. Additionally, the war threatens to derail nuclear negotiations between Iran and Western powers, further isolating Tehran on the global stage where it could easily turn up as another Moslem rogue state.

The latest Israel-Iran conflict is a dangerous escalation that could reshape the Middle East's geopolitical landscape. Israel's air superiority, its strikes on nuclear sites, Iran's missile retaliation, and Trump's unwavering support for Israel all point to a prolonged and volatile confrontation. Whether the US will deepen its involvement remains uncertain, but the potential for a broader war looms large. As the world stands worried about the crisis, the fate of the region hangs in the balance.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

1812: On this day U.S. President James Madison signed a declaration of war against Great Britain, initiating the War of 1812, which arose chiefly from U.S. grievances over oppressive maritime practices during the Napoleonic Wars.

1815: Napoleon suffers a shattering defeat at the Battle of Waterloo. The battle was Napoleon's last. The French Emperor was exiled to Saint Helena where he died six years later. "To meet one's Waterloo" is still a figure of speech today indicating total defeat.

1873: American suffragist Susan B. Anthony was fined after being convicted for voting in the 1872 presidential election, though she refused to pay it; in 2020 President Donald Trump pardoned Anthony, but the move was criticized by those who argued that it validated the trial.

1940: A speech by Charles de Gaulle sparks the French Resistance to German occupation. The Appeal of June 18, transmitted by radio from de Gaulle's exile in the United Kingdom, was pivotal in mobilizing the French after Germany had declared more than half of the country an occupied zone. On August 25, French and Allied troops liberated Paris.

1948: The LP record is introduced. The vinyl Long Playing record developed by Columbia Records soon became the music industry's standard medium. It allowed for a total playing time of 20 minutes per side.

1979: Leonid Brezhnev and Jimmy Carter sign SALT II. The second "Strategic Arms Limitation Talks" (SALT) agreement was a ground-breaking arms reduction treaty between the Soviet Union and the United States.

FOCUS SYRIA

FEAR & HOPE

Like his predecessor, Sharaa governs by decree, with little to no transparency, causing many Syrians to fear they have merely exchanged one autocrat for another, replacing a secular dictatorship with an Islamist one exchanged one autocrat for another, replacing a secular dictatorship with an Islamist one. Moreover, Sharaa's ideological leanings and economic priorities remain unclear. His detractors deride him for his al-Qaeda past, while those who fought alongside him in Iraq have questioned his jihadist zeal.

Regardless of Sharaa's agenda, sectarian divisions continue to imperil meaningful government action, as the Druze in the south and the Alawis in Assad's longtime stronghold along Syria's coast refuse to accept the new government. "They are hypocrites," Druze spiritual leader Hikmat al-Hijri told me, describing Sharaa and his allies with a loaded religious term for those who resisted the Prophet Muhammad's message. When asked whether he supports a federal state, al-Hijri replied that he opposes centralism. In reality, what he and his co-religionists want is a weak central government incapable of asserting control over their remote province.

The Alawis face a different problem. As Syria's former ruling minority, they share little with the Sunni elite toppled by the United States in neighboring Iraq. Given that Sunnis are the predominant sect across the broader Arab and Islamic world, Iraq's Sunni minority believed it was entitled to rule over the country's Shia majority and clamored for the restoration of its rightful status.

Syrian Alawis cannot harbor similar aspirations. Still, this hasn't stopped some from attempting to launch an insurgency, much like Iraq's Sunnis did after the US invasion in 2003. The problem is not only that the Alawi minority is much smaller than the Sunni minority in Iraq, but also that it has historically been too fragmented to present a united front.

Recent clashes between the government and these minority groups have rattled Syria, eroding public confidence in the new regime. But despite sectarian conflict, Sharaa enjoys the support of most Arab Sunnis. Devout Muslims back him because the collapse of the atheist Ba'ath party has allowed religion to re-enter public life. Others credit him with lowering prices, though there is little evidence he can move markets like, say, US President Donald Trump.

Anti-Americanism and virulent anti-Israelism were central pillars of the Assad dynasty's Ba'athist creed. Assad and his father adopted this militant dogma to distract from their domestic failures and minority rule. Under the Assads, Syria would have been the first to denounce Israel's strikes against Iran and offer support – both vocal and material – to any party willing to tangle with the Israelis. Today, Syrians have become insular, more concerned with national healing than with regional events. Though Israel has increasingly encroached on Syrian territory since Assad's fall, many Syrians are content to have normal neighborly relations.

In a society plagued by scarcity, the one thing Syrians are not short of is hope – a free commodity that, unlike most goods, is neither expensive nor subject to international sanctions. "Without hope, we cannot live," a middle-aged man told me as he contemplated whether to spend his meagre savings on new sneakers for his children or repair his apartment's faulty wiring.

Syrians face an abundance of such tradeoffs. What they lack are sudden strokes of luck like Trump's unexpected decision to loosen US sanctions, which has led many Syrians to expect more such flukes. "It is Allah who planted the seed of Syria in Trump's heart," a man told me confidently while holding a satchel of decomposing tomatoes – bought at a discount – in his calloused hands.

According to US special envoy to Syria Tom Barrack, the administration's decision to lift certain sanctions was intended to "flood the zone with hope." But what Syrians are hoping for is that Americans will flood their country with capital and investment, sparing them the need to choose between existential needs and basic comforts, and allowing them, at the very least, to buy produce that is ripe rather than rotting.

Sorry, bed bugs, we can't return your love

Dear Bed Bugs, On behalf of humans everywhere, I'd like to take this opportunity to recognize your amazing love for us. I did not realize the depth of your love until I read about a research study at Virginia Tech University in the US that indicated that you have been attached to us for about 245,000 years – even longer than we humans have been attached to booze. Back then, we lived in caves and did not have beds and couches, so you were just "floor bugs" to us. You had previously lived on bats, another cave-dwelling creature, and decided that we would make better hosts. This was a brilliant choice. Bats would not have taken you to as many places as we did: ships, apartment buildings, cheap motels. You flew on Turkish Airlines, British Airways and a number of other airlines. You even flew first class, something you could have never imagined when you left a cave on the hairy back of a Neanderthal.

Melvin Durai

WE DON'T KNOW WHAT IT'S LIKE TO BE A BUG, BUT WE DO KNOW WHAT IT'S LIKE TO HAVE SOMEONE TRY TO FLICK US AWAY OR SAY TO US, 'STOP BUGGING ME!'

Your relationship with humans has been a great one for you (not so much for us). As Andrew Jacobs writes in the New York Times, "When it comes to successful relationships, there's nothing quite like the long, long marriage between bedbugs and humans, even if the affection goes in one direction." It's worth noting, however, that affection going in one direction is something we humans are quite familiar with. You haven't been to high school if you haven't experienced one-way love. We don't know what it's like to be a bug, but we do know what it's like to have someone try to flick us away or say to us, "Stop bugging me!"

Your relationship with humans is extraordinary not just because of duration, but also loyalty. As Jacobs notes, ever since you dumped bats for us, you've been "monogamous" with us. You do not sleep around with other species. Not once did you even consider leaving a scruffy human for a cute dog. You like to move around, not fool around.

You love us dearly, but the best part is, you do not love us to death. You transmit no diseases. All you do is give us a little bite. Sometimes you leave patterns on our skin, perhaps realizing that many of us can never have enough patterns on our skin. We even put them on our necks and faces. But for some reason, when you leave dots on our skin, we never try to connect the dots and see what appears. A picture of the Pope? A bar of soap? Our horoscope?

It's important for me to note that not all bed bugs dumped bats for us. Some of your relatives stayed on bats, eventually forming a different species from those of you who were smart enough to switch allegiance to the cave-dwellers with considerably more surface area. According to scientists, those guys – a little too batty – just haven't thrived like you guys. About 12,000 years ago, when many humans stopped migrating and settled down in cities, you guys enjoyed a resurgence. You had been dwindling in numbers, but now, living in buildings among humans, you decided to reproduce like Elon Musk.

That is an understatement, of course, because as Jacobs writes, "a single pregnant female stowed away in a suitcase or hitched to a pant leg can produce 30,000 offspring in six months, all genetically related." That's a lot of mouths to feed. No wonder you love motels. Every day, a new human.

According to Dr. Warren Booth, lead author of the Virginia Tech study, one of your superpowers is your ability to overcome what we humans try to do to you. We keep rejecting you, trying our best to make you go away permanently, but you keep coming back, saying, "Will you love me this time?"

No, I'm sorry bed bugs, but after 245,000 years, we still can't love you back.

Strategic signal

Sir, This refers to "India, Cyprus condemn terrorism, agree to boost defense ties," Orissa POST, June 17. Prime Minister Narendra Modi's visit to Cyprus is being seen as a diplomatically sharp signal aimed at Turkey. Though India and Turkey share cordial trade ties, Ankara's open support for Pakistan during India's recent Operation Sindoor crossed a strategic red line. Turkey allegedly supplied arms and intelligence to Pakistan, indirectly aiding efforts to destabilise India's security operations. Modi's high-profile stop in Nicosia, ahead of the G7 Summit, carries weight. Cyprus, a nation long at odds with Turkey over the illegal occupation of its northern territory, welcomed Modi with its highest civilian honour. Beyond the optics, the visit resulted in expanded cooperation in defense, cybersecurity, maritime security, and regional energy partnerships—strategic domains Turkey closely monitors. The timing is not accidental. It reflects India's willingness to recalibrate its geopolitical posture in response to Turkey's provocations. By standing with Cyprus and strengthening India's Eastern Mediterranean foothold, Modi subtly warns Ankara: India will counter any alliance that endangers its national interest, even through diplomatic and strategic partnerships. The message is clear—friendship cannot coexist with sabotage.

Wake-up call

Sir, The shocking gangrape of a young girl at Gopalpur beach is yet another grim reminder of the unsafe environment women continue to face in India. Despite the enactment of stringent laws like the Disha Act, such crimes persist, revealing the systemic failure in enforcement and deterrence. What is more disturbing is the ease with which perpetrators secure bail and continue to roam freely, mocking the system and further traumatizing victims. Fast-track courts, swift convictions, and stricter bail norms must be enforced to instill fear among offenders. It is high time that women's safety is treated not just as a legal issue but as a moral and social emergency. Society and the state must act in unison to end this culture of impunity and ensure that no girl lives in fear.

Bengal mountaineer pleads to cross Iran border by road

Relentless sounds of explosions from Israeli war machines especially at night and sights of thick black smoke billowing from targets that have been hit in Teheran visible from his hotel window during the day, have only added to Dey's anguish and anxiety

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Kolkata, June 17: Forty-year-old Falguni Dey has barely slept during the last six nights. Stuck inside a hotel room in central Tehran, the assistant professor at Women's Christian College in south Kolkata and a mountaineer by passion, Dey is currently at his wit's end in figuring out how to return home.

Relentless sounds of explosions from Israeli war machines especially at night and sights of thick black smoke billowing from targets that have been hit in Teheran visible from his hotel window during the day, have only added to Dey's anguish and anxiety.

With no respite currently in sight and money running out quickly, the now-desperate adventure sports enthusiast is mulling a dangerous bid to escape Iran via the land route and cross over to an adjacent country like Turkey, Armenia Azerbaijan, Afghanistan or even Pakistan.

"I had no intention of staying in Teheran for so long and I barely have money left with me to sustain at this hotel where I am stuck. I can't fetch money from home since banks here are closed. I am the only Indian in my hotel and I have no evacuation promises from the Indian government so far."

"So, I have no choice but to take this decision of moving out by road and crossing over to a neighbouring country from where I can catch a flight back home. My local travel agent here has assured me of help in this," an exasperated Dey told PTI from Tehran.

He had reached Tehran June 5 with an aim to conquer Mount Damavand, Asia's highest volcanic peak standing at an elevation of 5,610 metres in the northeastern fringes of the Iranian capital. This was Dey's third attempt at a volcanic summit after having previously successfully scaled Mount Kilimanjaro and Mount Elbrus, the two highest dormant volcanoes in the eastern hemisphere.

Dey's hopes in Iran, however, remained unfulfilled after a nasty blizzard forced him to abandon the climb barely 400 meters below the summit.

"I returned to Tehran with a heavy heart. But the moment I set foot in the city, I realised something here was terribly wrong. The city was being bombed and I was caught in the middle of an all-out war. I was scheduled to take my return flight the next day, but then the Iranian airspace had been shut down and all flights in and out of Tehran were cancelled," Dey said.

Asked whether he managed to contact the Indian embassy in Iran to inform the officials about his plight, the adventure tourist said he was in constant touch with the embassy, which hasn't been able to provide evacuation hopes so far and have, instead, laid down a set of protocols to follow.

"I hear that there are some 10,000 Indians stuck in Iran, including nearly 4,000 students from Kashmir. But, I do not know any of them. Here I am all by myself and the embassy has asked me not to venture out far from my hotel. People here are going about their daily lives despite the bombings," Dey said.

But, the anxiety of his relatives back home in Kolkata's Jadavpur where he lives seems to have pushed Dey to take a call to escape Iran by any means possible. "The nearest international border is about a thousand kilometers away, and I understand that a lot of protocol and paperwork would be involved in crossing the land border. But, I have to take that chance since I am running out of means to stay put here, given there is no help from any quarters. I do not know which country I will be crossing over to, because that will depend on India's diplomatic relations with these neighbouring nations," he stated.

Meanwhile, all Indians in Tehran were Tuesday advised to move out of the city to safe locations and be in touch with the embassy, as the conflict between Iran and Israel intensified.

"All Indian Nationals who are in Tehran and not in touch with the Embassy are requested to contact the Embassy of India in Tehran immediately and provide their Location and Contact numbers. Kindly contact: +989010144557; +989128109115; +989128109109," the Embassy of India in Tehran said in a post on X.

Hi-tech tools launched to curb Delhi pollution

The chief minister during the event said that the government had decided to hire machines like mechanical road sweepers, water sprinklers and anti-smog guns to reduce dust and air pollution in Delhi

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: Delhi Chief Minister Rekha Gupta and Environment Minister Manjinder Singh Sirsa Monday took part in a demonstration of new machines aimed at tackling pollution in the city.

The chief minister during the event said that the government had decided to hire machines like mechanical road sweepers, water sprinklers and anti-smog guns to reduce dust and air pollution in Delhi.

"We plan to send these machines to every assembly constituency so that the roads can be cleaned properly," she added.

Gupta said these cleaning machines are advanced and come in different types, including electric ones.

"We are trying to use electric machines so that they don't cause more pollution," she added. The Mechanical Road Sweeping (MRS) machines being introduced can sweep roads, spray water and pick up garbage. Earlier May 20, the chief minister had announced that the Cabinet had approved a detailed plan to control dust and improve sanitation on roads managed by the Public Works Department (PWD).

According to the plan, the PWD will use 250 water sprinklers and anti-smog guns along with 18 dump trucks and 18 water tankers.

A number of machines, including water sprinklers with anti-smog guns, electric and CNG sweeping machines, litter pickers and water jetting machines, were demonstrated at the Delhi Secretariat here, said a statement.

The chief minister said the goal is to ensure that roads across Delhi are cleaned and sprayed with water throughout the year.

The demonstration shows that the government is moving towards more modern and technology-based cleaning, she added. One of the machines shown during the event was a water sprinkler with an anti-smog gun. It can hold 17,000 litres of water and run for four hours. It sprays a fine mist that helps reduce harmful dust in the air and can even clean off dust from tall trees, the statement said.

An electric road sweeping machine with a 3.5-metre sweeping range can clean up to 45 km in one shift. It has a water tank that can be expanded up to 2,000 litres and is useful for removing dust, small stones and litter from roads, it added.

The CNG-powered sweeping machine is similar and works at a speed of 8 to 10 kilometres per hour, the statement said.

A battery-operated litter picker was also on display.

It can be used while riding or walking and it comes with a bin and features like automatic brakes, fire safety, GPS and battery tracking. It can collect everything from small waste to glass bottles, the statement said.

The water jetting machine has a 500-litre tank and can work for six to eight hours after one charge, covering up to 125 km. It also has GPS for monitoring, it added.

The chief minister said Delhi will get 460 sprinkler machines with anti-smog guns, 70 sweeping machines, 70 litter pickers, water tankers and garbage trucks.

Delhi University launches UG admission portal for 2025-26

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: Delhi University Tuesday launched its Common Seat Allocation System (CSAS) portal for undergraduate admissions for the academic year 2025-26, marking the formal start of its multi-tiered admission process.

DU Vice Chancellor Yogesh Singh inaugurated the UG admission portal during a press conference, where he also released the university's Bulletin of Information.

The portal for five-year integrated law, B.Tech, PhD, and postgraduate programmes was launched simultaneously. He described the occasion as the official "admission bugle" for the year. Singh announced two new postgraduate programmes - MA in Hindi Journalism and MA in Tourism Management - beginning this year. An MA in Journalism under the Department of English is also planned.

For the first time, a seat has been reserved for a single girl child in each PG programme. The vice chancellor also confirmed that the academic session will begin from August 1, 2025.

DU Dean of Admissions Prof Haneeet Gandhi said UG admissions will take place in two phases.

The first phase, which opened Tuesday, allows students to enter personal details, Class 12 marks, and CUET application numbers.

Mamata promises new structure, financial aid

Banerjee said a detailed investigation and assessment of the damage caused by the pre-dawn blaze at the nearly 150-year-old market would be carried out

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Kolkata, June 17: West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee Monday visited the fire-ravaged market on Orphanange Road at Khidderpore here and announced a comprehensive rehabilitation plan, including the construction of a new market, financial assistance for affected traders, and temporary rehabilitation arrangements for business continuity.

Banerjee said a detailed investigation and assessment of the damage caused by the pre-dawn blaze at the nearly 150-year-old market would be carried out.

"I have spoken to the mayor and a new market will be constructed at the affected site with a modern, scientific and safe design, including a proper fire management system. You will not have to spend anything. The government will build this market so that you don't face problems in the future," she assured the affected traders.

The chief minister, who left the state Assembly for a visit to the fire-ravaged site a few hours after the flames were doused, also announced financial aid to shop owners based on the extent of damage.

"Traders whose shops were completely destroyed will receive ₹1 lakh, covering the cost of reconstruction and materials. Those who suffered partial damage will receive ₹50,000 in assistance. These amounts will be disbursed only after relocation," she said.

To help affected traders continue business, Banerjee said the market will be temporarily relocated to a nearby site till a new structure is built.

"We are finalising the relocation site in consultation with the councillor and the mayor. A spot has already been identified. Your market will be temporarily shifted there so that your business, livelihood, and family life can continue without major interruption," she said.

Banerjee said a survey will be conducted to identify the beneficiaries, and that no new person will be allocated shops in the proposed market.

In Delhi, only 3% of year sees clean air, thermal comfort

The study shows that convergence of heat and pollution is becoming widespread across Indian metros

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: Only three per cent of the hours in a year in Delhi offer both clean air and thermally comfortable conditions necessary for safe natural ventilation, according to a new study.

The study, conducted by CEPT University and climate-tech firm Respirometer Living Sciences, found that Delhi records around 2,210 thermally comfortable hours with outdoor temperature in the range of 18 degrees Celsius to 31 degrees Celsius.

But 1,951 of those hours also coincide with poor air quality (air quality index above 150). That leaves just 259 hours in the year, about three per cent, when residents can enjoy both clean air and pleasant temperatures.

The study, presented at the Healthy Building 2025 Conference of the International Society of Indoor Air Quality June 8, said the overlap of heat and air pollution severely limits opportunities for safe natural ventilation.

Compared to Delhi, Bangalore fared much better with over 8,100 hours of acceptable air quality and minimal overlap between thermal comfort and pollution. Ahmedabad, despite being warmer, also offered more usable outdoor conditions.

However, Chennai, like Delhi, saw 88 per cent of its comfortable hours affected by poor air quality. The researchers said the study shows that convergence of heat and pollution is becoming widespread across Indian metros. Conventional building operations, either based on fully sealed air-conditioned spaces or unfiltered natural ventilation, no longer meet the needs of urban India, they said.

To address the challenge, the study recommends mainstreaming Personalised Environmental Control Systems (PECS) in Indian buildings.

These systems offer filtered ventilation, occupant-level control and localised thermal comfort and are especially useful in mixed-mode buildings that shift between natural and mechanical ventilation based on time of day, season or pollution levels.

"PECS (ventilation) contributes to both short-term and long-term health and energy performance outcomes," said Rajan Rawal of CEPT University, a leading building science expert.

"With ongoing improvements in AQI across Indian cities, there is growing potential for occupants to utilise natural ventilation when outdoor conditions permit. Nevertheless, PECS continues to offer substantial energy savings under prevailing conditions," he said.

The modelling by researchers found that PECS can save up to 72 per cent energy used for ventilation in Chennai, 70 per cent in Ahmedabad and 68 per cent in Delhi, compared to conventional air-conditioned setups.

"PECS work especially well in conjunction with low-energy solutions like ceiling fans and task-based ventilation," Rawal added.

Road accidents claim 577 lives in first 5 months of 2025

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: Even as fatal road crashes in the national capital dropped in number during the first five months of 2025 compared to the same period last year, the death toll on the city's roads remains alarmingly high, claiming nearly four lives every day, official data reveals.

According to figures shared by Delhi Police, 2,235 road accidents were reported between January and May this year, resulting in 577 fatalities and 2,187 injuries.

While this marks a slight dip in overall accidents from 2,322 cases and 652 deaths reported during the same period in 2024, the national capital still faces a major challenge in curbing road violence.

Moreover, the total number of people injured in road accidents has seen a gradual increase from 2,106 injured in the first five months of 2024 to 2,187 this year.

March stood out as the deadliest month this year, recording 137 fatal accidents and 139 deaths. Surprisingly, even as April saw fewer fatal crashes, with 91 such accidents, it reported the highest number of injuries - 476 this year - indicating a rise in high-impact collisions.

A total of 458 accidents, including 100 fatal ones resulting in 107 deaths and 458 injuries, were recorded in May 2025. The figures in May last year stood slightly higher with 447 total accidents, including 125 fatal resulting in 127 deaths.

CASTE CENSUS

Cong questions govt's intention

Congress general secretary Sachin Pilot said the objective cannot just be to collect data on an individual's caste but to understand the living conditions of these families and create policies to substantially improve their livelihoods

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: The Congress Tuesday accused the Centre of delaying the caste census, saying its intention appears to be to "buy time, grab headlines and manage the narrative", and asked the government to be transparent about the exercise.

He said there are doubts about the government's intentions on the caste census and pointed out that the required funding for the census is Rs 10,000 crore whereas the government has allocated only Rs 574 crore.

The Congress stuck to its allegations even as the BJP hit back at the opposition party, accusing it of carrying out "false and misleading" propaganda on Census 2027 because its hope of gaining power by creating division in society is falling apart with the government's decision to include caste enumeration in the nationwide exercise.

The government plans to start the exercise in 2027, "The demand for a caste census was led by the Congress party, particularly by the Leader of Opposition in Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, who has been raising this issue for several years."

The idea of the Congress is to have an expansive detailed survey of the conditions in which people live -- access to education, jobs, government schemes and economic situation, to do better policy formulation, Pilot said.

HAVING A LOW BIRTH WEIGHT -- UNDER 2.5 KG -- CAN OFTEN SIGNAL A MOTHER'S UNDERLYING HEALTH ISSUES AND POOR NUTRITION, AND HAS BEEN LINKED WITH PROBLEMS IN THE CHILD'S COGNITIVE DEVELOPMENT AND A VULNERABILITY TO CHRONIC CONDITIONS IN LATER LIFE

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: Cases of a low weight at birth from four states -- Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Maharashtra, and West Bengal -- account for nearly half of India's cases, despite an overall progress in lowering rates over the last 30 years, an analysis of the National Family Health Survey shows.

and a vulnerability to chronic conditions in later life. Analysis of data gathered from all five waves of the national survey, researchers from Duke and Harvard universities in the US and institutes in South Korea found that overall, the prevalence of low birth weight in India fell by eight percentage points -- from 26 in 1993 to 18 in 2021.

HONEYMOON MURDER

Crime scene recreated; SIT probes financial angle

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Shillong, June 17: The Special Investigation Team (SIT) of the Meghalaya Police probing into the murder of Indore businessman Raja Raghuvanshi, has gone to the Madhya Pradesh city to ascertain if there is any financial motive behind the killing, an officer said Tuesday.

The police also brought all the accused in the murder, including Raghuvanshi's wife Sonam, to Sohra, around 65 km from here, and recreated the crime scene amid heavy security.

The businessman and his wife were on their honeymoon when he was killed allegedly by three hitmen -- Vishal, Anand and Akash - sent by her boyfriend Raj Kushwaha who is also one of the arrested people. "Our team is in Indore and questioning a few people. They are trying to find out if somebody has to gain from Raja's death," district Superintendent of Police Vivek Syiem told PTI.

ascertain the background and find out if there is any other angle other than the love triangle which the accused have already admitted," the SP said. Director General of Police I Nongrang who is monitoring the development of this case closely earlier said that the SIT is looking at other possible angles for the murder of Raghuvanshi.

According to Syiem, the SIT visited several places in Sohra during the day from one parking lot where the accused had parked their rented two-wheelers to Weisawdong where the murder was committed. Chilling details of the murder emerged after recreation of the crime scene in which one policeman acted as Raghuvanshi.

The hitmen also informed the SIT that they used two machetes, one of which was recovered. The police personnel are combing the forest below the gorge with a metal detector to find out the second machete. The hitmen and Sonam wanted to commit the murder at Nongriat, where the couple had checked in at a homestay, but could not do it since they failed to find a suitable spot to dispose of the body.

IRAN-ISRAEL CONFLICT

Indian students moved out of Tehran, says MEA

AGENCIES

Tehran, June 17: Amid escalating tensions between Israel and Iran, Indian students in Tehran have been moved out of the city, with 110 of them crossing the border into Armenia as part of arrangements made by the embassy.

The Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) said in a statement that the Indian Embassy remains in touch with the community with a view to extend all feasible assistance. At a press briefing here later in the evening, Israeli Ambassador Reuven Azar was asked if any request for the evacuation of Indian nationals in Israel has been received by his country.

"We are full coordinating with the MEA, and when it comes to request for Indians to evacuate, we are starting to organise now through our ministry of transport... commute for diplomats, foreign citizens who want to leave, there are few options, terrestrial and maritime, and we are coordinating," he said. So far, 24 people have been killed in Israel and hundreds injured, Azar said when asked about the casualties in his country in this military flare-up. Earlier in the day, the MEA said in its statement, "Indian students in Tehran have been moved out of the city for reasons of safety, through arrangements made by the Embassy."

Separately, some Indians have been facilitated to leave Iran through the border with Armenia, the MEA said, adding that further advisories may be issued given the fluid situation.

According to the Jammu and Kashmir Students Association, 110 Indian students from Urmia Medical University, 90 of them from the Kashmir Valley, have safely crossed the border into Armenia. In a post on X, the Indian Embassy in Iran said, "All Indian Nationals and PIOs who can move out of Tehran using their own resources, are advised to move to a safe location outside the city."

In another statement, the MEA said a 24x7 control room has been established in the ministry in view of the ongoing developments in Iran and Israel. The contact details of the control room are: 1800118797 (toll-free) +91-11-23012113 +91-11-23014104 +91-11-23017905 +91-9968291988 (WhatsApp) situationroom@mea.gov.in.

The Embassy of India in Tehran has set up a 24X7 emergency helpline, the MEA said. "For calls only: +98 9128109115, +98 9128109109; For WhatsApp: +98 901044557, +98 9015993320, +91 8086871709; Bandar Abbas: +98 9177699036; Zahedan: +98 9396356649; cons.tehran@mea.gov.in (email)," it said.

The Indian Embassy in Israel also posted an advisory-cum-notice on its X handle and shared some important links. "In continuation of previous advisories, as the National Emergency in Israel continues to be in place, all Indian nationals are advised to stay vigilant and strictly adhere to safety advisories /protocols by the Israeli Home Front Command (https://www.oref.org.il/eng)," the advisory said. All Indian nationals intending to exit Israel may like to avail of the land border crossing options, it says. The Israeli military Saturday apologised for posting the map, which showed the range of Iranian missiles, depicting Jammu and Kashmir as part of Pakistan after objections from Indian social media users, clarifying that the image "fails to precisely depict borders".

Cong questions Modi's silence on US outreach to Pak

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: The Congress Tuesday questioned the silence of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar on American outreach to Pakistan while referring to Pakistani Army chief Asim Munir's visit to the US.

In a post on X, Congress general secretary, communications, Jairam Ramesh said, "So now it can no longer be denied by the drumbeaters of the PM and the BJP's troll army. The man whose incendiary, inflammatory, and provocative remarks were directly linked to the Pahalgam terror attacks is now officially in Washington DC."

"The question we had asked earlier needs to be repeated: what is America up to by hosting Asim Munir in this manner? Why are the Prime Minister and the External Affairs Minister silent on this outrageous American outreach to Pakistan?" he said.

The Congress leader also took a swipe at Prime Minister Narendra Modi after US President Donald Trump left the G7 Summit in Canada a day earlier, saying it is a "setback for self-styled Vishwaguru's huglomacy". "President Trump has left the G7 Summit a day before the G7 outreach with eight other countries that includes India begins. A setback for self-styled Vishwaguru's Huglomacy," Ramesh said in another post.

The Congress has been taking swipes at Modi for giving hugs to foreign heads of states during his meetings with them at international or bilateral engagements, using the term "huglomacy" for it. In a post on X, Congress leader Supriya Shrinat said, "Trump has returned to America from G7 meeting. Trump did not stay for outreach meeting to which Modi is invited. Trump talked about expanding the G7 to include Russia and China. Not India."

Aishwarya Gowda case: ED summons Shivakumar, brother

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Bangalore, June 17: The Enforcement Directorate has summoned Karnataka Deputy Chief Minister D K Shivakumar and his brother D K Suresh, for questioning in an alleged cheating case linked to a money laundering probe against a local woman, official sources said on Tuesday.

The federal probe agency had arrested the local woman - 33-year-old Aishwarya Gowda - in April following searches against her and Congress MLA Vinay Kulkarni. The ED had then said in a statement that the woman claimed proximity with various "high-profile" politicians and cheated people by promising them high returns against gold, cash and bank deposits. She is alleged to have used the name of Suresh and claimed to be his sister.

There are at least three cheating cases registered at Chandra Layout and Rajarajeshwari Nagar police stations in Bengaluru against Gowda, who is accused of borrowing gold and ₹10 crore and not returning them. Confirming that the ED officials served him a notice when he and his brother were not at home, Shivakumar said he instructed those at home to receive the notice.

He said his brother had lodged a police complaint alleging that someone was misusing his name. Regarding the summons, the Deputy CM said, "My brother will cooperate with the ED whichever way possible. He will assist the ED by giving a statement. Some people who were cheated had come to me

Top court criticises K'taka govt for stalling 'Thug Life'

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: Coming down heavily on the Karnataka government after actor Kamal Haasan's film "Thug Life" was not screened in theatres in the state, the Supreme Court Tuesday said mob and vigilantes cannot be allowed to take over streets.

A bench of Justices Ujjal Bhuyan and Manmohan said the rule of law ought to be established and guns cannot be put to people's heads to stop them from watching the movie.

"We can't allow mobs and vigilantes to take over the streets. The rule of law must prevail. We can't allow this to happen. If somebody has made a statement, counter it with a statement. If somebody has written something, you can counter it by some writing," Justice Bhuyan told the Karnataka government's counsel and directed him to file a response on the matter by June 18. While people may not watch the movie if it is screened, they cannot be put to fear that theaters will be burnt down, the bench added. Advocate A Velam, appearing for petitioner M Mahesh Reddy, who challenged the film's non screening in Karnataka, said the state hadn't filed complaints against those issuing threats.

Justice Manmohan said, "Rule of law demands that any film which has a CBFC certificate must be released and the State has to ensure its screening. You cannot put a gun on people's head and say don't watch the movie." The judge went on, "It can't be that at the fear of burning down the cinemas, that the film can't be shown. People may not watch the film. That is a different matter. We are not passing any order that people must watch the film. But the film must be released."

The counsel representing Karnataka said a plea filed by the film producer was scheduled to come up for hearing in the high court June 20. The bench then indicated to transfer the petition pending before the high court to the apex court.

It was also critical of the observations made by the high court June 3, asking for an apology from Haasan for his remark suggesting that "Kannada was born out of Tamil".

"It is none of the business of the high court to seek an apology from him (actor)," Justice Manmohan said.

The judge continued, "This issue is concerning the rule of law and fundamental rights. Therefore, this court is intervening. That is what the Supreme Court is meant for to be a custodian of the rule of law and fundamental rights. It is not just about a film." The bench said if Haasan had uttered anything inconvenient it couldn't be taken as gospel truth and the enlightened people of Karnataka should have debated and said he was wrong.

Maha doubles honorarium for Emergency-era prisoners

During the cabinet meeting, chaired by Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, it was also decided that in case of the death of such individuals, their surviving spouse will be given half the amount of the monthly honorarium

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Mumbai, June 17: The Maharashtra cabinet Tuesday doubled the amount of monthly honorarium to ₹20,000 to those individuals in the state who were imprisoned for more than a month during the Emergency period.

During the cabinet meeting, chaired by Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, it was also decided that in case of the death of such individuals, their surviving spouse will be given half the amount of the monthly honorarium.

The decisions were taken a week ahead of the 50th anniversary of the Emergency, a 21-month period from June 25, 1975 to March 21, 1977 declared by the then prime minister Indira Gandhi. Many persons were jailed for participating in the democratic resistance during that period.

During Fadnavis' first term as the chief minister, the Maharashtra government had introduced a policy called in 2018 to provide a monthly honorarium to such persons in recognition of their sacrifices under its "Gaurav Yojana".

At present, there are around 3,000 beneficiaries of the scheme in the state. As per the revised policy, individuals who were imprisoned for more than one month during the Emergency will now receive ₹20,000 per month, while their surviving spouse (in case of the death of the individual who was imprisoned) will be eligible for ₹10,000 per month.

Those who were jailed for less than a month will receive ₹10,000 per month, while their surviving spouse will get ₹5,000.

In order to claim the honorarium, the surviving spouses must submit a fresh application to the respective District Collector offices. If the Emergency-era detainees passed away before January 2, 2018, their surviving spouse can still apply by submitting an affidavit along with the application, the chief minister's office (CMO) said in a statement.

The application window will remain open for 90 days from the issuance of the government resolution, it said. The cabinet also scrapped the earlier condition that the applicant must have been at least 18 years old at the time of arrest during the Emergency, it added.

Russia fired more than 440 drones and 32 missiles, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy said.

China to commission third aircraft carrier

Beijing: China plans to operationalise its third aircraft carrier 'Fujian' this year as it has completed nearly three years of sea trials, setting the stage for the Chinese navy for the first time to operate three carrier groups, official media reported on Tuesday. Fujian, stated to be China's most advanced aircraft carrier possessing the electromagnetic aircraft launch system (EMALS) similar to that of the American aircraft carrier USS Gerald R Ford, was launched in 2024 and since then completed multiple sea trials, accumulating more than 100 days of sea trials. The entry of the carrier with more than 80,000 tons carrying a wide variety of carrier-borne aircraft, including fighter jets, early warning aircraft, anti-submarine aircraft and drones will enable China to enter a new era of three aircraft carriers, state-run CCTV reported.

Khamenei sees his inner circle hollowed out by Israel

REUTERS

Dubai/London, June 17: Iran's 86-year-old Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei cuts an increasingly lonely figure.

Khamenei has seen his main military and security advisers killed by Israeli air strikes, leaving major holes in his inner circle and raising the risk of strategic errors, according to five people familiar with his decision-making process.

One of those sources, who regularly attends meetings with Khamenei, described the risk of miscalculation to Iran on issues of defence and internal stability as "extremely dangerous".

Several senior military commanders have been killed since Friday including Khamenei's main advisers from the Revolutionary Guards, Iran's elite military force: the Guards' overall commander Hossein Salami, its aerospace chief Amir Ali Hajizadeh who headed Iran's ballistic missile program and spymaster Mohammad Kazemi.

These men were part of the supreme leader's inner circle of roughly 15-20 advisers comprising Guards commanders, clerics, and politicians, according to the sources who include three people who attend or have attended meetings with the leader on major issues and two close to officials who regularly attend.

The loose group meets on an ad-hoc basis, when Khamenei's office reaches out to relevant advisers to gather at his compound in Tehran to discuss an important decision, all the people said. Members are characterised by unwavering loyalty to him and the ideology of the Islamic Republic, they added.

Khamenei, who was imprisoned before the 1979 revolution and maimed by a bomb attack before becoming leader in 1989, is profoundly committed to maintaining Iran's Islamic system of government and deeply mistrustful of the West.

Under Iran's system of government he has supreme command of the armed forces, the power to declare war, and can appoint or dismiss senior figures including military commanders and judges.

Khamenei makes the final decision on important matters, though he values advice, listens attentively to diverse viewpoints, and often seeks additional information from his counsellors, according to one source who attends meetings.

"Two things you can say about Khamenei: he is extremely stubborn but also extremely cautious. He is very cautious. That is why he has been in power for as long as he has," said Alex Vatanka, director of the Iran Program at the Middle East Institute think-tank in Washington.

"Khamenei is pretty well placed to do the basic cost-benefit analysis which really fundamentally gets to one issue more important than anything else: regime survival."

AIRPORTS CLOSE ACROSS MIDEAST

Beirut: After Israeli strikes landed near the hotel where he was staying in the Iranian province of Qom, Aimal Hussein desperately wanted to return home. But the 55-year-old Afghan businessman couldn't find a way, with Iranian airspace completely shut down. He fled to Tehran after the strike Sunday, but no taxi would take him to the border as the conflict between Iran and Israel intensified. "Flights, markets, everything is closed, and I am living in the basement of a small hotel," Hussein told The Associated Press by cellphone Monday. "I am trying to get to the border by taxi, but they are hard to find, and no one is taking us." Israel launched a major attack Friday with strikes in the Iranian capital of Tehran and elsewhere, killing senior military officials, nuclear scientists, and destroying critical infrastructure. Among the targets was a nuclear enrichment facility about 18 miles from Qom. Iran has retaliated with hundreds of drones and missiles. The dayslong attacks between the two bitter enemies have opened a new chapter in their turbulent recent history. Many in the region fear a wider conflict as they watch waves of attacks across their skies every night. The conflict has forced most countries in the Middle East to close their airspace. Dozens of airports have stopped all flights or severely reduced operations, leaving tens of thousands of passengers stranded and others unable to flee the conflict or travel home.

Israeli tanks kill 59 trying to get aid in Gaza

REUTERS

Cairo/Gaza, June 17: Israeli tanks fired into a crowd trying to get aid from trucks in Gaza Tuesday, killing at least 59 people, according to medics, in one of the bloodiest incidents yet in mounting violence as desperate residents struggle for food.

Video shared on social media showed around a dozen mangled bodies lying in a street in Khan Younis in the southern Gaza Strip. The Israeli military, at war with Hamas-led Palestinian militants in Gaza since October 2023, acknowledged firing in the area and said it was looking into the incident.

Witnesses interviewed by Reuters said Israeli tanks had launched at least two shells at a crowd of thousands who had gathered on the main eastern road through Khan Younis in the hope of obtaining food from aid trucks that use the route.

"All of a sudden, they let us move forward and made everyone gather, and then shells started falling, tank shells," said Alaa, an eyewitness, interviewed by Reuters at Nasser Hospital, where wounded victims lay sprawled on the floor and in corridors due to the lack of space.

"No one is looking at these people with mercy. The people are dying, they are being torn apart, to get food for their children. Look at these people, all these people are torn to get flour to feed their children."

Palestinian medics said at least 59 people were killed and 221 wounded in the incident, at least 20 of them in critical condition. Casualties were being rushed into the hospital in civilian cars, rickshaws and donkey carts. It was the worst death toll in a single day since aid resumed in Gaza in May.

In a statement, the Israeli military said: "Earlier today, a gathering was identified adjacent to an aid distribution truck that got stuck in the area of Khan Younis, and in proximity to IDF troops operating in the area. The IDF is aware of reports regarding a number of injured individuals from IDF fire following the crowd's approach. The details of the incident are under review. The IDF regrets any harm to uninvolved individuals and operates to minimise harm as much as possible to them while maintaining the safety of our troops."

Now we are 6: G7 leaders after Trump's early exit

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kananaskis (Canada), June 17: Six of the Group of Seven leaders are trying on the final day of their summit Tuesday to show the wealthy nations' club still has the clout to shape world events despite the early departure of President Donald Trump.

Prime Minister Mark Carney and his counterparts from the UK, France, Germany, Italy and Japan will be joined by Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy and NATO chief Mark Rutte to discuss Russia's relentless war on its neighbour.

World leaders had gathered in Canada with the specific goal of helping to defuse a series of pressure points, only to be disrupted by a showdown over Iran's nuclear programme that could escalate in dangerous and uncontrollable ways. Israel launched an aerial bombardment campaign against Iran Friday, and Iran has hit back with missiles and drones.

Trump left the summit in the Canadian Rocky Mountain resort of Kananaskis a day early late Monday, saying: "I have to be back, very important." It came as conflict between Israel and Iran intensifies and the US leader declared that Tehran should be evacuated "immediately" — while also expressing optimism about a deal to stop the violence.

Before leaving, Trump joined the other leaders in issuing a statement saying Iran "can never have a nuclear weapon" and calling for a "de-escalation of hostilities in the Middle East, including a ceasefire in Gaza." Getting unanimity — even on a short and broadly worded statement — was a modest measure of success for the group.

At the summit, Trump warned that Tehran needs to curb its nuclear programme before it's "too late." He said

Trump quashes US spies' claim that Iran wasn't building nuclear weapon

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington, June 17: Tulsi Gabbard left no doubt when she testified to Congress about Iran's nuclear programme earlier this year. The country was not building a nuclear weapon, the national intelligence director told lawmakers, and its supreme leader had not reauthorised the dormant programme.

But President Donald Trump dismissed the assessment of US spy agencies during an overnight flight back to Washington as he cut short his trip to the Group of Seven (G7) summit to focus on the escalating conflict between Israel and Iran.

"I don't care what she said," Trump told reporters. In his view, Iran was "very close" to having a nuclear bomb.

Trump's statement aligned him with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who has described a nuclear-armed Iran as an imminent threat, rather than with his own top intelligence adviser. The Republican president was expected to meet with national security officials in the Situation Room on Tuesday as he plans next steps.

Trump's contradiction of Gabbard echoed his feuds with US spy leaders during his first term, when he viewed them as part of a "deep state" that was undermining his agenda. Most notably, he sided with Russian President Vladimir Putin in 2018 when asked if Moscow had interfered in the 2016 election, saying Putin was "extremely strong and powerful in his denial."

The latest break over Iran was striking because Trump has staffed his second administration with loyalists rather than establishment figures Gabbard, a military veteran and former Democratic congresswoman from Hawaii, was narrowly confirmed by the Republican-controlled Senate because of her scant experience with intelligence or managing sprawling organisations.

Iranian leaders would "like to talk" but they had already had 60 days to reach an agreement on their nuclear ambitions and failed to do so before the Israeli aerial assault began. "They have to make a deal," he said.

Asked what it would take for the US to get involved in the conflict militarily, Trump said Monday morning, "I don't want to talk about that."

The sudden departure only heightened the drama of a world that seems on verge of several firestorms. Trump already has imposed severe tariffs on multiple nations that risk a global economic slowdown. There has been little progress on settling the wars in Ukraine and Gaza.

Trump's stance on Ukraine puts him fundamentally at odds with the other G7 leaders, who back Ukraine and are clear that Russia is the aggressor in the war.

The US president on Monday suggested there would have been no war if G7 members hadn't expelled Putin from the organisation in 2014 for annexing Crimea.

Trump on Monday demurred when asked if he supported Russia, saying "I only care about saving lives."

With talks on ending the war at an impasse, Starmer said Britain and other G7 members were slapping new tariffs on Russia in a bid to get it to the ceasefire negotiating table. Ukraine's President Volodymyr Zelenskyy is due to attend the summit Tuesday at Carney's invitation, along with other leaders including Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi and NATO chief Mark Rutte.

Trump declined to join in the sanctions on Russia, saying he would wait until Europe did so first. "When I sanction a country that costs the U.S. a lot of money, a tremendous amount of money," he said.

World's most trafficked mammal pangolin is endangered in US

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington, June 17: US officials proposed Monday to protect the pangolin, a small, nocturnal mammal covered in scales, under the Endangered Species Act.

The pangolin is "the most trafficked mammal in the world" in large part for its scales, used in traditional Chinese medicine, and meat, according to the World Wildlife Fund. The US Fish and Wildlife Service is looking to add protections for four species of the pangolin native to Asia — including the Chinese, Indian, Sunda and Philippine pangolin — and three species native to Africa, including the white-bellied, black-bellied and giant pangolin. Seven species are in danger of extinction, according to the Center for Biological Diversity.

An eighth species from Africa, the Temminck's ground pangolin, is already protected by the law. Scientists also say two more species of the mammal may exist. The protections were signed into law in 1973 with bipartisan support and are key for preserving global biodiversity and keeping iconic types of plants and animals, such as the bald eagle, from dying out. The Endangered Species Act protects over 2,000 US and foreign species. Conservation and environmental groups say habitat loss from climate change is just one reason the act is especially critical today.

The endangerment listing, once finalized, would help strengthen trade and import restrictions of pangolin parts in the US, except in the case of scientific or other conservation purposes, according to the Centre. It is illegal to trade them; the pangolin received certain commercial trade protections under the 2017 Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species. But tons of poached scales representing thousands of pangolin have been found by authorities around the world in recent years.

"I'm delighted the United States is doing its part to save these adorably odd creatures," Sarah Uhlemann, international program director at the Centre for Biological Diversity, said in a statement. "Pangolins are on the razor's edge of extinction, and we need to completely shut down any US market for their scales. There's no good reason for anybody to ingest any part of a pangolin."

The pangolin eats insects and rolls into a ball when threatened by predators. The Fish and Wildlife Service said pangolin populations have declined due to targeting by poachers and criminal activity, noting "proceeds from the illicit sale of pangolins and other imperiled species often fund serious crimes, including drug and arms trafficking."

While the act requires endangered species listing regardless of their origin, the designation could also assist in prosecuting smugglers violating the protections. Advocates, including from the International Fund for Animal Welfare and other national and international groups, have for years petitioned to list the pangolin. In 2020, these organizations and the Fish and Wildlife Service signed an agreement to enforce listing deadlines.

TROUBLE TRACKER

Google unveils safety charter to combat online fraud

In India, Google is fine-tuning inclusive AI via Gemini Language Testing and IndicGenBench, optimising performance across 29 languages for cultural relevance and accessibility.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: Google Tuesday unveiled its Safety Charter for India as part of efforts to crack down on online frauds, curb synthetic and misleading content, and promote cybersecurity and responsible AI development.

According to Google, the charter is a blueprint for tackling the online world's new challenges collaboratively with the wider ecosystem. This entails keeping the end user safe from online frauds and scams; cybersecurity for government and enterprise infrastructure; and building AI responsibly.

The move assumes significance as reports indicate a significant surge in cyber frauds, as scammers leverage advanced techniques like AI-generated content, deepfake videos, and voice cloning to create highly convincing fraudulent schemes.

UPI-related frauds reportedly cost Indians over Rs 1,087 crore in 2024, and industry estimates project that Indian entities could lose up to Rs 20,000 crore to cybercrime in 2025, if left unchecked, as per a Google blogpost. "It is about building digital safety. As we accelerate India's economic growth, there is one essential connective tissue, and that is trust. While the digital landscape brings many possibilities, we are all aware of the many unique challenges it presents as well," Preeti Lobana, Vice President and Country Manager, Google India, said at 'Safer with Google India Summit'.

Lobana pointed out that while the power of internet is a force multiplier for good, elements like safety, security and trust cannot be an "afterthought". As AI increasingly becomes part of people's digital lives, ensuring a safe and secure online environment becomes important, she added.

"Trust is the bedrock of our digital aspirations and the reason that India's digital economy has become a force multiplier and a growth engine," she noted.

Elaborating on the impact of its efforts, Google said under the 'Digikavach' programme, it has reached over 177 million Indians with AI-powered protections and awareness initiatives to combat financial fraud.

The tech giant further said that AI integration across its platforms is transforming threat detection. "Search now identifies 20 times more scam-related pages; impersonation attacks on customer service and government sites have dropped by over 80 per cent and 70 per cent, respectively. Google Messages blocks over 500 million scam texts monthly and has issued more than 2.5 billion suspicious link warnings via on-device AI," the company said in a release.

Since its October 2024 pilot in India, Google Play Protect has blocked nearly 6 crore high-risk app installation attempts across 13 million devices.

Combining AI-powered threat detection across platforms with cross-sector intelligence sharing and policy measures, Google said it has demonstrated "significant impact", including Google Pay averting Rs 13,000 crore in financial fraud during 2024.

Besides this, Google said it is enhancing cybersecurity through an 'AI-first, secure-by-design approach' focused on early threat detection and intelligence sharing.

SEBI bans Sanjiv Bhasin, 11 others from market

The regulator noted that Sanjiv Bhasin and others have been found to have violated provisions of PFUTP (Prohibition of Fraudulent and Unfair Trade Practice) norms and research analyst rules, collectively making illegal gains amounting to ₹11.37 crore

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: Security Exchange Board of India (SEBI) Tuesday barred Sanjiv Bhasin, a former director at IIFL Securities, and 11 others from the securities markets for indulging in share manipulation in a case pertaining to providing stock recommendations on media channels and other social media platforms, orders imposing of 11.37 crore.

In its 149-page interim order, the exchange noted that Bhasin was a well-known media guest expert with a huge following on social media. While associated with IIFL as a director or consultant, Bhasin provided stock recommendations through media channels, Telegram, and IIFL platforms.

Investigation revealed that prior to his appearances on media channels; Bhasin would take positions -- primarily buy orders-- in the trading accounts of Gemini Portfolios, Venus Portfolios, and HB Stock Holdings Ltd through dealers of the trading member RRB Master Securities Delhi Ltd.

Given the significant viewership of these channels, his stock recommendations had a considerable impact on the price and volume of the recommended scrips. Capitalizing on this influence, Bhasin would then execute opposite trades (sell orders) in the same accounts, contrary to his public buy recommendations, to profit from the surge in prices of the recommended scrips.

A search and seizure operation conducted by Sebi on June 13-14, 2024, across multiple locations in NCR led to the discovery of critical evidence, including WhatsApp (social media platform) chats and audio recordings.

It was also revealed that Lalit Bhasin, cousin of Sanjiv Bhasin, aided him and, at times, assisted in placing the alleged fraudulent trades. Further, Ashish Kapur, MD, RRB Master Securities Ltd provided the necessary infrastructure and set-up to facilitate the scheme.

SEBI noted that Sanjiv Bhasin and others have been found to have violated provisions of PFUTP (Prohibition of Fraudulent and Unfair Trade Practice) norms and research analyst rules, collectively making illegal gains amounting to Rs 11.37 crore.

Silver hits high, gold declines amid geopolitical tensions

AGENCIES

Mumbai, June 17: Silver futures on Multi Commodity Exchange (MCX) touched a new all-time high of Rs 1,09,250 per kilogram Tuesday. July 2025 silver contract jumped 2.5 per cent, gaining Rs 2,686 compared to the previous close of Rs 1,06,564 per kilogram.

In the evening trade, silver futures were trading 2.23 per cent higher at Rs 1,08,945 per kilogram, according to official MCX data. The sharp rise in silver prices reflects growing uncertainty in the global financial markets, where investors tend to move away from high-risk assets like equities and instead put their money into relatively safer options such as gold, silver, and government bonds.

On the other side, the yellow metal prices declined by Rs 1,200 to Rs 1,00,170 per 10 grams in the national capital Tuesday due to continuous selling by jewellers and stockists in line with weak global trends, according to the All India Sarafa Association.

The precious metal of 99.9 per cent purity had closed at Rs 1,01,370 per 10 grams in the previous market session. Gold of 99.5 per cent purity dipped below the Rs 1 lakh mark, by falling Rs 1,100 to Rs 99,450 per 10 grams (inclusive of all taxes).

Derivatives expiry day change for exchanges

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

SEBI has approved NSE's proposal to shift its weekly expiry day for equity derivatives from Thursday to Tuesday. To avoid simultaneous expiries, BSE Sensex expiry will move to Thursday, effective September 1, 2025

New Delhi, June 17: The National Stock Exchange (NSE) has received the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) approval to shift its expiry day to Tuesday for equity derivatives contracts, while BSE has been assigned Thursday as its expiry day, the exchanges announced.

This marks a swap from current schedule, where NSE conducts F&O (Futures & Options) expiry Thursdays and BSE Tuesdays.

The new schedule will apply to all new equity derivatives contracts that expire on or after September 1, 2025. Moreover, contracts expiring before this date will continue to follow the existing expiry schedule.

The exchanges said they would keep the expiry day of derivatives contracts unchanged for already introduced contracts - with the exception of long dated index options contracts for which equity exchanges would suitably realign expiry day.

To support a smooth transition, the exchanges are expected to issue detailed circulars soon, outlining the operational guidelines and implementation process. The move came after SEBI stated that expiries of all equity derivatives contracts across exchanges will be uniformly limited to Tuesdays or Thursdays. SEBI aims, to optimise the spacing between expiries and avoid designating, either the first or last day of the week as the expiry day. Additionally, the exchanges will seek its approval before launching or modifying any contract expiry or settlement day.

Earlier in March, Sebi came out with a consultation proposing that the expiries of all equity derivatives contracts across exchanges be uniformly limited to either Tuesdays or Thursdays. Following the consultation paper, the NSE deferred its plan to change the expiry day of all index and stock derivatives to Monday from Thursday until further notice.

The shift, which was scheduled to take effect April 4, 2025, would have seen all index and stock derivative contracts move from Thursday to Monday.

'I ruled out Test captaincy'

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Leeds, June 17: The peerless Jasprit Bumrah has revealed that he had ruled out Test captaincy during the IPL itself as part of his workload management, and had informed the BCCI of his desire to prioritise his bowling responsibilities over leadership duties.

During an interaction with former India wicketkeeper-batter Dinesh Karthik on Sky Sports Cricket, Bumrah explained the thought process behind his decision to turn down the Indian Test captaincy.

"There's no fancy stories to it. There is no controversy or a headlining statement that I was sacked. Before Rohit and Virat retired, I had spoken to the BCCI during the IPL about my workload going forward in a five-match series," Bumrah said.

"I've spoken to the people who have managed my back, I've spoken to the surgeon as well, who's always spoken to me about how smart you have to be about the workloads."

"And then we came to the conclusion that I have to be a little smarter. So then I called the BCCI and said I don't want to be looked at in a leadership role, because I won't be able to give all matches coming to a five-match Test series," added Bumrah.

After Rohit's retirement and with Bumrah ruling himself out, the BCCI appointed Shubman Gill as the skipper of the Test team with his first assignment being the five-match Test series against England, beginning in Leeds Friday.

During the interaction, Bumrah stressed on the need for continuity in leadership, particularly in a long series, something he would not be able to offer because of his heavy workload as the team's premier bowler.

"The BCCI was looking at me at (a) leadership (role). But then I had to say no as it's not fair for the team as well. It's not fair to the team if in a five-Test series, three matches somebody else is leading and two matches somebody else is leading."

"I always wanted to put the team first, even if me being there as a player offers a lot more just not as a captain," Bumrah said.

"Captaincy is a position. But you always have leaders in the team and I wanted to do. Obviously, if I'm not careful, I don't know about the future, and I don't want to be in a situation where I have to abruptly go away from this format."

Bumrah acknowledged that leading the Indian Test team is a huge honour but added that he loves the game more than captaincy.

"Captaincy meant a lot. I had worked very hard for it. But, unfortunately, sometimes you have to look after the bigger picture. I love cricket more than captaincy so I want to contribute more as a cricketer and to the Indian team as a player."

"Obviously ambitions are there but that's how it is and I called the BCCI and said that I don't want to be looked at in a leadership role," said the magnificent fast bowler.

Plan to play three Tests in

Pataudi medal for series winning captain

New Delhi: The Pataudi name will remain a part of the India-England cricket rivalry with the winning captain of the upcoming five-Test series set to be presented with a medal named after the royal family that has a rich connect with the game in both countries. The decision to rename the Pataudi Trophy to Tendulkar-Anderson Trophy was taken by the England and Wales Cricket Board. A formal announcement was due on the sidelines of the WTC final at Lord's last week but it was put off in light of the horrific Air India plane crash in Ahmedabad. Renaming the trophy drew criticism from the likes of former India captain Sunil Gavaskar. However, it has been learned that Tendulkar himself reached out to the ECB and expressed that the Pataudi name should remain a part of India-England cricket. ICC chairman Jay Shah also had a role to play. "When this happened Sachin reached out to ECB and conveyed that Pataudi name should remain a part of the India-England rivalry. Mr Jay Shah was involved in the discussions. ECB has agreed to the request and decided to present Pataudi Medal to the winning captain," said a BCCI source. With the planned ceremony not going ahead in the UK, a formal announcement on the renaming of the trophy is scheduled for June 19, a day before the series-opener at Leeds. Tendulkar is the leading run getter in Test cricket while Anderson has the most wickets in the traditional format as a fast bowler. The Pataudis, on the other hand, have deep ties to the India-England cricketing landscape. Iftikhar Ali Khan Pataudi and his son Mansur both captained India and both played county cricket in England.

England As far as his participation in the England series in concerned, Bumrah is planning to play in at least three Test matches, including the opener at Headingley.

"Obviously, the number is not decided. First (Test) is definitely on, that is going to happen. Rest, we will see how things are, what is the workload and scenario... but yes, 3 Tests is what I can manage at the moment."

India head coach Gautam Gambhir had also said Bumrah could play three Tests in the coming weeks.

Moosa-led U-23 team gear up for Tajikistan

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, June 17: India men's football team will take on hosts Tajikistan in a friendly match Wednesday, kicking off a crucial two-match tour that serves as preparation for the AFC U-23 Asian Cup 2026 Qualifiers later this year.

The match will be played at the Hisor Central Stadium near Dushanbe, with the second fixture against Kyrgyz Republic scheduled for Saturday.

Drawn in Group E alongside Bahrain, Qatar and Brunei Darussalam, India will be aiming to qualify for the continental event for the first time when the qualifiers are held in September.

The ongoing tour is seen as a vital tune-up in terms of acclimatisation, team cohesion, and tactical fine-tuning.

The Naushad Moosa-coached 23-member squad had been in camp in Kolkata since June 1 before flying out to Dushanbe.

After arriving in the Tajik capital Monday evening, the team held a mobility session Tuesday morning and followed it up with a 90-minute evening training session at the venue, which is located around 25 kilometre from the city.

Tajikistan U23s were last in action in November 2024 when they lost two friendlies against United Arab Emirates, both by a 0-3 margin.

At the AFC U23 Asian Cup 2024, Tajikistan were knocked out in the group stage after defeats to Iraq and Saudi Arabia and a win over Thailand.

Moosa, however, is not reading too much into past results and is focused on the task at hand. "We know Tajikistan are a strong team. They qualified for the U23 Asian Cup last year and also did well at the senior Asian Cup," Moosa stated in AIFF website.

"The players will, of course, be different tomorrow. The coach has changed. We just have to go out there and do our job right," added Moosa.

Despite Dushanbe being located 700 metre above sea level, the weather is hot at this time of the year, soaring to almost 40 degrees during the day.

What the Blue Colts mainly have to adjust to is the artificial turf surface of the Hisor Central Stadium, located 25 kilometre from the city of Dushanbe.

Moosa hoped for a good turnout at the 20,000-capacity venue.

"The weather is pretty warm. It's normal for us. It's always good to have supporters in the stands. We would love to have them cheer for us," said Moosa.

"Most of our players are coming here for the first time, so it would be great motivation for them. I think the last time the Indian senior team played in Tajikistan, there were a lot of Indian fans in the stadium, so let's hope for the same."

This tour marks Moosa's second assignment with the India U-23 side, having previously overseen their two friendlies against Malaysia in Kuala Lumpur last year.

The 53-year-old has been building momentum and instilling belief in the squad during this ongoing preparation phase.

"The boys are very eager for tomorrow. I've been talking to them about how important these games will be for us," added Moosa.

Utrecht (Netherlands), June 17: The Indian junior women's hockey team concluded their successful Tour of Europe with a hard-fought match against hosts Netherlands, narrowly losing 2-3 in the shootout after a goalless draw in regulation time.

My goal is to bring tennis back to life: Hitesh

AGENCIES

New Delhi, June 17: The 17-year-old Hitesh Chauhan, who recently became the first Indian to reach the second round of the French Open Juniors since 2016, has set his sights on a goal much bigger than winning a Grand Slam - re-igniting the diminishing flame of tennis in the country.

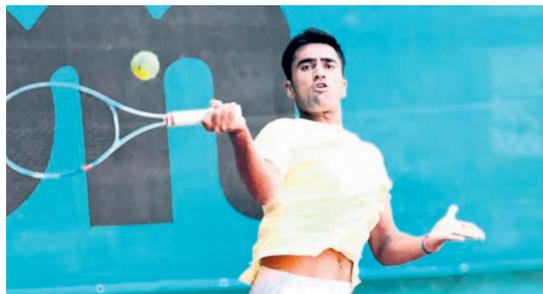

In an exclusive conversation, the young talent opened up about his dream of representing India in Grand Slams and breaking into the top 30 of the ATP rankings. For Chauhan, it's not just about personal glory — it's about inspiring a generation and reviving interest in tennis nationwide.

"It's going to be a long, tough journey. I don't think I'm even halfway there, but through it all, I just want to make my country, my parents, my coaches, Roundglass —everyone—proud. I want every Indian to see tennis. I want them to see an Indian playing Grand Slams, being in the top 50, and top 30 in the ATP rankings."

"My goal is to bring tennis back to life in India—not at the level of cricket, of course—but to give it the recognition it deserves. I'm ready for the competition, ready for the hard work. And I'm sure I'll be in the top 30—that's my goal," Hitesh told.

In the first round of the French Open Junior men's singles, Hitesh defeated Sweden's Ludvig Fredrik Hede 6-4, 6-3. This was the Indian's first win at a Grand Slam tournament. In the doubles, Hitesh, alongside teammate Haydar Cem Gokpinar (Turkiye), brushed past Ludvig Hede and Switzerland's Flynn Thomas 7-5, 6-3.

"It was an awesome experience over there. Playing with the champs over there, with the ATP players, No 1 Jannik Sinner, (Carlos) Alcaraz, and all. Then playing where all the ATP players play, on the historic courts over there at the French Open. And playing with an amazing crowd over there. I will never forget this experience in my whole life," Hitesh said. In an almost poetic manner, Hitesh's first win at a Grand Slam came during the tournament where his inspiration, Rafael Nadal, was honoured for his stellar career.

"Rafa is an inspiration, I always thought that one day I want to be like him. So I have to face these challenges in my life. That also motivated me a lot, thinking about him, thinking how he played with this much crowd. He also played the French Open when he was 17 years old," he said.

Hitesh's journey at the tournament came to an end when he was handed a 6-1, 6-4 defeat by American Benjamin Willworth. Despite the defeat, Hitesh showed incredible heart and fight by continuing and fighting for each point despite cramping up in the second set. He also revealed how Aditya Sachdeva, his coach at Roundglass Academy, was extremely proud of him and opened up on the heartwarming conversation they shared after the game.

"When I called him after I lost a match, he was like, in my mind, you have won. In my heart, you have won. The match you played today was just incredible. I'm so proud of you. The whole team, the whole academy, is so proud of you. This, I would not count as a loss. For me, it is a win that you played, even after you were injured. In the third set, you were 4-2 up, and then you got injured. You didn't leave. You didn't give up and you gave up every single, every single percentage of yours," Hitesh revealed.

After a memorable French Open, Hitesh now turns his attention towards the pinnacle of Tennis - Wimbledon. The 17-year-old is currently adapting to the grass courts at the Chandigarh Club, as it will be his first time playing on the surface.
